SANTA'S A MISFIT

Arlene Smith, third grader at St. Raphael's school, is undaunted by the fact Thanksgiving dinner hasn't even been cooked and Santa has made his first Marin appearance. The 30-foot high Mr. Claus arrived at the school yesterday in preparation for the St. Raphael's Mothers Guild Annual Mission Holiday Festival Sunday. Of some concern to Arlene, however, (bottom photo) was whether or not all of Santa was going to make it into the auditorium for the festival. Volunteer workers yesterday were unable to get the bottom half of him through a door. Barbara Rossi, festival cochairman, said today that, one way or another, all of Santa would be inside for the 7 a.m. festival opening Sunday.

Rehnquist Opponents Win Delay

The committee voted 10 to 5 against reopening hearings on the Rehnquist nomination, but Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., agreed to ask the FBI to look further into Rehnquist's alleged past connections with a conservative political action group called Arizonans for America.

There apparently was no committee opposition, at a closed meeting, to the nomination of Lewis F. Powell for a second Court vacancy, but the committee refused also by 10-5 vote, to report his selection separately to the full Senate. Motions to reopen the hearings and to separate the nominations were made by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Voting with Bayh on both were Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Quintin N. Burdick, D-N.D., Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and John V. Tunney, D-Calif.

Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., then won unanimous consent for a motion that a vote on both Powell and Rehnquist be taken no later than noon EST Tuesday.

Bayh said that between now and then, he and possibly other senators would submit written questions to Rehnquist on alleoations that he intimidated black voters in a 1964 election in Phoenix, his alleged association with Arizonans for America, and what Bayh described as "philosophical inconsistencies" in the hearing record on Rehnquist's attitudes toward civil liberties and civil rights.

Bayh told reporters following the nearly two-hour closed meeting that Eastland agreed to ask the FBI to interrogate people in Arizona who might have knowledge of Rehnquist's associations with Arizonans for America. Bayh described the organization as possibly a "precursor" to the John Birch Society.

"I would like to find out definitely that he was not a member," Bayh said.

The Justice Department has denied Rehnquist ever was a member. Rehnquist, 47, is now an assistant U.S. attorney general.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in a story by Curt Matthews, reported discovery of documents in the files of a Temple University professor which listed Rehnquist as a member of Arizonans for America.

The newspaper also said two officials in the Department of Justice have denied, on behalf of Rehnquist, that he ever was a member.

After the report appeared Wednesday, Attorney General John N. Mitchell issued a statement saying that an FBI investigation showed Rehnquist "participated in panel discussions sponsored by Arizonans for America on Sept. 12, 1958."

"However," Mitchell added, "a review of the FBI report clearly indicates that he was not a member of the organization as has been reported in a St. Louis Post-Dispatch news story today."

Rock Concert Plans Appear In Jeopardy

Promoter Attacks Conditions On Use

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A controversial rock concert which won the support of county supervisors on Tuesday over the objections of the manager of the Marin Veterans Memorial Building appeared in jeopardy today.

Fred Mayer, a Sausalito pharmacist and promoter of the concert, said he had received a list of conditions on use of the building which he may not be able to meet.

Mayer indicated he regarded the conditions as a vindictive effort by county administrative officers to nullify the supervisors' approval of the concert.

Mayer, chairman of the California Pharmaceutical Association drug abuse council, said the 12 to 15 conditions imposed by Leon G. Kalimos, manager of the auditorium violate the spirit of endorsement of the concert by the board of supervisors.

The concert, scheduled for Wednesday and featuring the Quicksilver Messenger and Big Brother and the Holding Company, has been criticized by Kalimos as "hard rock" that might "turn people on" causing damage to the building.

Mayer said today the conditions — which include the hiring of 30 security guards — would cost more than $2,000. Gross proceeds from the benefit concert will total about $5,000 if the 2,000-seat house is sold out, he said.

Promoters of the concert, which is to benefit county drug abuse programs, also expected to hand out literature on drug abuse but Mayer said that would not be permitted under the conditions.

"I don't know what this guy (Kalimos) is trying to do," Mayer said, adding that if the conditions remain in force it will probably mean cancelation of the show.

"This wasn't the intent of the supervisors," he continued. "What he (Kalimos) is saying to us is that 'you beat me at the meeting, but . . .'"

The list, he said, was given to

Remapping —It's A New Ball Game

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Bill Brophy's stunning upset victory in a special Los Angeles Assembly race threw reapportionment negotiations into turmoil today and threatened a delay in legislative adjournment until nearly Christmas.

"It's a brand new ball game," said Assembly GOP Caucus Chairman John Stull of Leucadia. "Republicans are going to want a little better shake. It's our political future we're talking about and if it takes until mid-December, so be it."

The GOP demanded that Assembly reapportionment reflect the party's new strength picked up in Tuesday's election, won narrowly by Brophy, whose home was mysteriously sprayed with gunfire the day before balloting.

Democrats now control the Assembly by only a slim 42-38 margin.

Both parties, meantime, offered analyses of why Brophy triumphed in a district heavily populated by Mexican-Americans and a voter registration favoring Democrats more than 2-to-1. Brophy, 36, a handsome economic consultant, defeated Democrat Richard Alatorre by a margin of roughly 4 1-2 percentage points.

Democrats said the unsolved shooting benefited Brophy because it gained him sympathy from voters and election eve publicity from television and newspapers. A volley of .22 rifle shots was fired into Brophy's home from a passing car, apparently narrowly missing the candidate.

Generating laughter from his colleagues, Republican Assemblyman Paul Priolo of Pacific Palisades arose on the Assembly floor Wednesday and jokingly remarked he was "a broker for Mr. Stull (who) has for sale a slightly used .22 rifle."

But Brophy, discussing the shooting's policial impact with Sacramento newsmen, said "if it did have an effect it was very

Calmer Situation At Catholic High

By C. P. McCARTHY

Marin Catholic High School appeared calm today during the fourth day of a strike by some of the school's lay teachers.

But the atmosphere at the Kentfield school was described as "uneasy" by one student leader.

There were rumors of a 10 a.m. walkout by students, which failed to materialize. Other students reported they had heard the walkout was scheduled for noon.

Only two striking teachers, as well as a young Marin Catholic alumnus, picketed for a short time early this morning, but they left before 10 a.m., reportedly to join a mass demonstration in support of the strike at Riordan High School.

Rev. Francis A. Lacey, Marin Catholic principal, said he had heard a mass demonstration was scheduled for Marin Catholic tomorrow, but the school would attempt to operate as normally as possible anyway.

Fourteen teachers are participating in the strike at Marin Catholic.

Marin Catholic and Riordan are among seven Bay Area schools operated by the San Francisco Archdiocese struck Monday by members of the Secondary Teachers Association in a salary dispute.

Negotiations in the strike were to resume at 7:30 p.m. today in San Francisco.

Student support for the Marin Catholic strikers — 10 of the school's 22 lay teachers and four nuns sympathetic to the strike — seemed to have diminished today.

Student Boyd vice president Eileen Hicken, who said the atmosphere among students was "uneasy," today described a show of student support yesterday as "impromptu, emotional" and the product of "mass psychology."

Two Citizens Groups Rip Industrial Smog

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — A citizens' campaign to crack down drastically on industrial air pollution erupted yesterday before a committee of Bay Area smog officials.

Regulations now allow industry to continue normal operations even when smog controls break down, and punishment is rare.

But under the tough new proposals by the Stop Smog Committee and the North Richmond Neighborhood Council, such breakdowns would mean mandatory fines and cessation of operations until the smog controls were repaired.

Richmond attorney Ralph E. Warner, speaking for both groups, said the changes would give industry an incentive "to maintain equipment and catch breakdowns before they happen." The present system subjects Bay Area citizens to intolerable pollution and allows industry to escape the consequences, he charged.

The two groups, which fought successfully last year to toughen other smog regulations, launched their new campaign before the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District's ad hoc committee on upset and breakdown procedures.

But the committee, in the face of strong staff opposition to Warner's arguments, split at first over recommending the changes to the district's advisory council. Despite the 2-2 vote, however, the committee decided to forward the proposed regulations to the council for its consideration.

Warner assured the committee that the two citizen groups will carry their campaign beyond the advisory council to the full board of directors. The advisory council will consider the issue at 1:30 p.m. next Wednesday in district offices, 939 Ellis Street.

The regulations proposed by Warner's groups were supported by the two committee members representing health and conservation organizations on the advisory council, and were opposed by two industrial representatives. Two members of the committee were absent.

Voting for Warner's proposals were Ruth Church Gupta of San Francisco, representing the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, and Walter Toney, director of the Berkeley Parks and Recreation Department.

Voting against them were Joseph D. Coons of San Rafael, a consulting engineer, and Charles W. Graham, utility manager for the Dow Chemical Co. in Pittsburg.

Graham insisted that while "a little tightening" may be needed in district regulations, "the district already has made

Nation's Goods, Services Run Ahead Of Forecasts

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The nation's output of goods and services grew at a slightly greater rate than the government had predicted during the July to September quarter, while inflation grew at a slightly slower rate than predicted.

Today's Commerce Department reports on the Gross National Product and the inflation rate were encouraging news for the administration, now moving into the second phase of a system of economic controls aimed at cooling inflation and stimulating the economy.

The GNP was put at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1,061 billion (1.061 trillion), up $17.8 billion from the second quarter and $1.8 billion more than the government had anticipated for the third quarter in a preliminary report a month ago.

The rate of inflation for the third quarter was put at 3.0 per cent. It originally had been projected at 3.3 per cent. The inflation rate report is much broader in scope than the consumer price index, which in recent months has been going up at an annual rate greater than 3 per cent.

The new economic reports came as the Pay Board, which with the Price Commission was created to oversee Phase II controls, met to consider the new soft coal miners' contract containing pay increases exceeding the board's 5.5 per cent general guideline. The miners'

Cambodia's Military Situation Worsens

SAIGON (UPI) — Military sources in Saigon said tonight the military situation in Cambodia has grown so serious that Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, had discussed it with top South Vietnamese leaders.

UPI dispatches from Phnom Penh said Cambodian troops battling elements of a North Vietnamese division only 11 miles from Phnom Penh were ambushed today and lost five killed and 50 wounded. The Cambodians withdrew from the trap and Cambodian T28 bombers hit the area with napalm.

Several major Communist units were reported moving toward Phnom Penh but UPI correspondent Kate Webb reported from the Cambodian capital it was generally believed the North Vietnamese and Khmer Rouge (Cambodian Communists) were trying to isolate the city and cause panic rather than capture it outright.

Photographer Don Sharpe, who free-lances for UPI, was with the Cambodian soldiers ambushed today. He said the 41st Infantry Battalion walked into an open, horseshoe-shaped tree line and ran into automatic weapon and mortar fire that pinned the force down for two hours.

He said the T28s came in and triggered an explosion in the nearby village of Phum Svay, indicating that munition stores had been destroyed. The North Vietnamese had captured the adjoining villages of Phum Svay and Sre Ampil a week ago. In fighting there Wednesday, 11 Cambodian soldiers were killed and 88 wounded.

The Communists have concentrated their efforts against airfields, highways, bridges and ferry crossings to try to isolate Phnom Penh. The Cambodian high command reported another rocket attack in 24 hours against the ferry crossing town of Neak Luong, where Highway 1 from Saigon reaches the Mekong River.

Cambodia also reported fight-

Due At Council

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Communist China will make its debut in the powerful 15-member United Nations Security Council Friday, probably during a debate on issues facing the protectorate of South West Africa Namibia.

Polish Ambassador Eugeniusz Kulaga, November president of the council, said the group would not meet before Friday, presumably at the request of the new Chinese delegation.

Communist China, which formally took its seat in the General Assembly Monday, will have one of the five vetoes in the Security Council.

Seeks Solution

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Willy Brandt said today his government sought a solution of the international monetary crisis that would avoid a trade war between Europe and the United States.

The 57-year-old chancellor spoke in his capacity as chairman of the ruling Social Democrat Party at the opening session of a three-day party congress called mainly to thrash out domestic economic problems.

Brandt said his government would "do everything in its power not to let national selfishness and shortsightedness prevail over political and economic good sense."

Alabama Plants Shut By Air Act

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)— The federal government, in its first action under the 1970 Clear Air Act, got an order today shutting down 23 plants accused of polluting the air over this industrial city.

U.S. District Judge Sam C. Pointer issued a restraining order at a 2 a.m. CST hearing in his home attended by officials of the Justice Department and the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

An official in the U.S. attorney's office said it would be mid-morning before restraining orders would be served on the plants because of preparatory paperwork.

"All of them know about it," the spokesman said. "They were called and told about the order shortly after it was issued."

Federal officials sought the order after the level of air pollution in Birmingham soared Wednesday for the second consecutive day to more than twice the federal alert level of 375 micrograms per cubic meter of air. The readings both days have been over 700 micrograms.

Douglas I. Hammer, acting chief of the EPA's epidemiology branch, submitted an affidavit stating that exposure to air pollution of 700 micrograms for two consecutive days constituted a danger to public health.

The restraining order has the effect of shutting down the 23 plants, which include U.S. Steel's huge Fairfield works.

A hearing has been set for Friday on the order.

The order states that if the air alert ends, the order will be lifted.

Birmingham has been in the throes of air pollution since Tuesday. It was a little worse Wednesday.

The pollution test in the heavily industrial North Birmingham section dropped to 728 at midafternoon after rising to 758 during the morning, officials reported.

"Persons with any form of lung or heart disease are being warned to stay indoors as much as possible and avoid any unnecessary exercise," a Health Department spokesman said.

The National Weather Service said a large high-pressure system that allowed the buildup of polluted air Wednesday started to move slowly northeast.

However, early morning weather conditions today were expected to allow for another buildup before the system moved out of the area.

India Beats Back Attack On E. Pakistan Border

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Indian border forces beat back a Pakistani attack at Boyra on the East Pakistan border Wednesday as new exchanges of fire were reported across at least two points on the frontier.

The Press Trust of India (PTI) news agency quoting official sources, reported the ground clash from Krishnagar, the capital of Nadia district in West Bengal state about 60 miles north of Calcutta. PTI gave no details.

Boyra, located on the Ichamati River 40 miles northeast of Calcutta, is the site for several large refugee camps. The river has been a popular crossing point for East Pakistani refugeds as they leave their homeland.

PTI reported continued shelling at Boyra and at Betai to the north.

The news agency also reported from Krishnagar the names of four Pakistani soldiers it said were killed in last Friday's Pakistani attack on the Shikarpur border post 90 miles north of Calcutta. The bodies were left behind in Indian territory.

Indian defense spokesmen have said that four battalions of Pakistani troops attacked the post in the biggest reported clash between India and Pakistan in the current border confrontation. The spokesmen estimated Pakistani dead at 135.

PTI gave no specific source for its report on the four dead Pakistani soldiers, quoting only "reports from the border," It listed the names of the dead Pakistanis, identifying them as a major, a company sergeant major, a sergeant and a corporal.

Mars South Pole Gleams Past Dust

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)— Mariner scientists focused their cameras today on their only target, the Martian south pole which gleamed frostily through the dust storm. They concluded the storm is not tapering off after all.

"There's no great change from what we've seen before. It's still a very dusty planet," said a spokesman for the Mariner 9 team at Jet Propulsion laboratories, receiving data from the satellite as it circles Mars.

"There was some thought at first that the pole peeking through was a sign the storm was clearing, but it wasn't that at all.

"It's just that the calibration of the cameras has been improving, so the pictures have improved too. We get better pictures of the pole because we've gotten better at taking pictures, not because the storm is dying."

Unemployment Rising In Britain

LONDON (UPI)—The number of unemployed in Britain rose again and edged closer to the one million mark in mid-November, official figures showed today.

For several months the total of unemployed has been the highest since the second World War.

The total of jobless was 970,022, a jump of 40,346 in the month, the department of employment said.

Workless people now represent 4 per cent of the country's total work force.

Joe (I'm Not A Fathead') Alioto Leaves Fee-Split Witness Chair

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) —Mayor Joseph L. Alioto returned to San Francisco today after finishing testimony in the $2.3 million civil lawsuit against him and two former Washington State officials.

The jovial mayor departed with a final speech to the jury and said he hoped to return regularly during the remaining months of the trial.

He apologized for his frequent use of the personal pronoun during his testimony and said, "if I appeared to be a fathead, I am not."

During lunch, the mayor personally said goodbye to most of the patrons and staff of the restaurant where he ate during his Vancouver stay.

The mayor spent five and one-half days on the witness stand and complained throughout that the proceedings should be conducted more speedily.

In the civil case, the state of Washington and 12 publicly owned utilities seek refund of $2.3 million they paid Alioto for serving as their attorney in antitrust cases in the 1960s before he became mayor.

They claim they were not informed about removal of a $1 million ceiling on the fee or that Alioto would share the fee with John J. O'Connell, then attorney general of Washington state, and George K. Faler, his assistant. The two men received a total of $802,000.

Trial has been set for Jan. 3 in Seattle for federal charges against the officials. The three are accused of conspiracy in an indictment claiming that the removal of the fee ceiling and the sharing of fees constituted bribery of a public official.

As soon as the mayor stepped from the witness stand, attorneys began to argue about the procedure for questioning Faler, former assistant attorney general in Washington state and another defendant in the case.

Faler's attorney, Kenneth A. MacDonald, had announced earlier that Faler would refuse to testify on Fifth Amendment grounds of possible self-incrimination.

MacDonald asked Judge Donald L. Gaines either to permit Faler to invoke his right not to testify in the absence of the jury or to restrict the questioning of Faler before the jury to his name, age, residency and marital status.

Paul Cressman, attorney for Alioto, and John J. O'Connell, the third defendant who is serving as his own attorney, supported MacDonald's request. They said the jury might draw inferences from Faler's silence which would hurt the other defendants.

William Helsell, attorney for the plaintiffs, argued that Faler should appear and be questioned to permit the jury to draw the inference "that his answers, if given, would be contrary to the position his attorney has taken."

Judge Donald L. Gaines ruled that Faler was to be called to the witness stand this morning and questioned until Helsell reached an area in which Faler invoked the Fifth Amendment privilege. Gaines said after that Helsell was to outline a subject on which he intended to ask questions and permit Faler to decide whether to invoke the right to refuse to answer on each subject.

Alioto's last day as a witness was marked by bitter argument between attorneys that brought the cloud of a federal criminal case into the courtroom.

The debate among attorneys and Judge Gaines Wednesday, like numerous earlier such arguments, concerned the scope of Helsell's questions to Alioto.

After the jury had left the courtroom, MacDonale quoted a statement he said Gaines had made earlier: "The civil case is just a dry run for the criminal case."

MacDonald said Larry Finegold, an assistant United States attorney from Seattle, had been making notes throughout the civil trial and will use material developed here by Helsell in the criminal case. MacDonald said some of the issues Helsell had developed were irrelevant in this case.

Man Talked Out Of Span Catwalk Walk

A 21-year-old man was plucked from the railing of the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday by California Highway Patrol officers after almost two hours of precarious balancing on girders and catwalks beneath the east side of the bridge.

Jeremy William Krauss of no known address, was taken to Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco for psychiatric observation following the ordeal.

The California Highway Patrol said it was the third time in a little over three months that Krauss had been removed from the bridge. Once he was caught as he attempted to climb over the railing and the other time he was taken into custody while loitering on the sidewalk.

The episode began shortly before noon when a bridge towman saw Krauss's knapsack and sleeping bag on the east sidewalk near midspan, then peered over the rail and saw the man perched on a girder below.

The highway patrol was called in, and for the next hour officers and bridge ironworkers attempted unsuccessfully to talk him into returning to the sidewalk.

At one point ironworker Eugene Peil lunged for Krauss, officers said, and both fell into a net strung under scaffolding used by bridge painters. Krauss then climbed out of the net and hung by one hand for two minutes before returning to the net.

After another 40 minutes, the patrol said, Krauss was talked into climbing back onto the bridge railing where he was grabbed and whisked to the hospital.

The California Highway Patrol said Robert D. Bunnell, of 1458 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was injured at 6:25 p.m. when his northbound motorcycle and a car making a left turn from Southbound Los Ranchitos to North San Pedro Road collided.

Man Talked Out Of Span Catwalk Walk

A 21-year-old man was plucked from the railing of the Golden Gate Bridge yesterday by California Highway Patrol officers after almost two hours of precarious balancing on girders and catwalks beneath the east side of the bridge.

Jeremy William Krauss of no known address, was taken to Mount Zion Hospital in San Francisco for psychiatric observation following the ordeal.

The California Highway Patrol said it was the third time in a little over three months that Krauss had been removed from the bridge. Once he was caught as he attempted to climb over the railing and the other time he was taken into custody while loitering on the sidewalk.

The episode began shortly before noon when a bridge towman saw Krauss's knapsack and sleeping bag on the east sidewalk near midspan, then peered over the rail and saw the man perched on a girder below.

The highway patrol was called in, and for the next hour officers and bridge ironworkers attempted unsuccessfully to talk him into returning to the sidewalk.

At one point ironworker Eugene Peil lunged for Krauss, officers said, and both fell into a net strung under scaffolding used by bridge painters. Krauss then climbed out of the net and hung by one hand for two minutes before returning to the net.

After another 40 minutes, the patrol said, Krauss was talked into climbing back onto the bridge railing where he was grabbed and whisked to the hospital.

Driver Held In Youngstown

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UPI) —James Anderson, 30, was ordered held under $126,000 bond Wednesday after he pleaded innocent to seven counts of homicide with a vehicle.

Anderson was charged as the driver of a car that crashed into a noon hour crowd in the downtown area here last Friday. Seven persons were killed and eight were injured.

In addition to vehicular homicide, Anderson was charged with driving without a license and attempting to escape from custody while confined to a hospital where he was taken after the accident.

Report On Doctors In Rural Area

The two young doctors who operated the West Marin Roving Medical Clinic last summer received training in rural medicine that is unusual today, a public health doctor said yesterday.

Dr. Elizabeth Paeth, in charge of the project in which two physicians operated a trailer clinic in various communities, gave a second report on the clinic yesterday to the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin.

Although Dr. Paeth said conclusions about the need and costs of such a program have not yet been made, she said the training the doctors received was very valuable.

Such experience in rural medicine could be used to train other young doctors, she said.

Dr. Paeth also told the council that about half the 212 patients seen during the summer had illnesses such as venereal disease or respiratory infections while the other half had either chronic problems or routine conditions.

The council yesterday also agreed to have a committee undertake a study of the need for a school lunch program in Marin, according to Chester F. Villalba, who acted as chairman for the meeting.

The request for the study had been made by the Interagency Nutritional Council.

Objecting that tougher pollution controls meant the district was forcing Bay Area industry to move elsewhere, Graham declared that "the more punitive we are, the more straws we pile on the back of industrial enterprise, the more (job) troubles we'll have."

Staff opposition to the tougher regulations came from the district's top administrator, D. J. Callaghan. He especially objected to fining industry for breakdowns of smog control equipment, claiming this often would mean "untold staff time" and "a long tedious operation" taking polluters to court.

Callaghan suggested that such a crackdown "could detract from the rest of our enforcement activity because of limitation of staff".

Warner, however, said Callaghan's argument was "not an answer for an enforcement agency to write a weaker regulation."

According to staff estimates, industry will report about 3,200 upsets and breakdowns of smog control equipment this year.

L. E. Coleman of Standard Oil objected from the audience that all other air pollution regulations in the nation allowed for upsets and breakdowns, and that the citizen groups' proposals would be unprecedented.

little. I don't know what it did except scare the hell out of me."

Democrats also blamed Chicanos for backing a splinter candidate, activist Raul Ruiz, whose 2,778 votes could have won it for Alatorre. The Democrat lost by only 1,587 votes.

"The reason we lost was a cynical alliance between neosegregationists in the Chicano community and the Republican Party," charged Assembly Reapportionment Committee Chairman Henry A. Waxman, D-Los Angeles.

But Stull said the election was "a strong indicator that Mexican-Americans are no longer content to be taken for granted by Democrats."

wage increases would run an estimated 10 per cent a year.

The Pay Board also must decide which, if any, workers to exempt from its general position against allowing retroactive pay increases. Sources close to the board said there was a chance the nation's 2.2 million teachers would be exempted from the retroactive pay decision.

In Miami Beach, AFL-CIO President George Meany said today President Nixon's Pay Board is stacked against workers because most of the public members are not really neutral and favor the business side.

"It adds up to a stacked deck," Meany said in his keynote address to the opening session of the AFL-CIO convention. "It adds up to playing with loaded dice."

Meany delivered a stinging attack against the administration's moves to control wages of workers, and said he feared Nixon would take even more "stringent and repressive" measures to control the economy if the present Phase II controls fail.

C. Jackson Grayson Jr., whose Price Commission has so far received less public attention than the more sensitive Pay Board, said in an interview with the Washington Star today, that as commission chairman he intends to make most of the decisions for the commission with the other six commissioners playing a supportive role.

He pledged to keep the commission informed of his actions and to consult them on pattern-setting cases, but "I am the only official authorized to sign for the commission, so the commission is advisory to me."

Grayson and George H. Boldt of the Pay Board are the only members of either board to receive a salary —$40,000 each —and are the only commissioners who work full time.

Defense Bill Amendment Move Halted

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate Appropriations Committee rejected today a move to attach to the defense money bill an amendment to stop all military spending in Vietnam except to withdraw remaining U.S. troops.

Backers of the amendment appeared more encouraged than discouraged, however, by the 14 to 10 vote in the committee which traditionally has been opposed to antiwar proposals. They interpreted the relatively close margin to mean they might succeed later in getting approval of the amendment on the Senate floor.

"I think this is a very encouraging development," said Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., who offered the amendment in the committee, of which he is a member. He told reporters of the vote.

President Nixon signed a weapons procurement bill Wednesday that contained an antiwar resolution but issued a statement saying he had no intention or requirement to abide by its request that he set a final date for U.S. involvement in Indochina.

Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., tried to attach a similar amendment to the foreign aid authorization last month and it failed by one vote. Church said Wednesday he thought it would pass this time.

Crash Injuries Prove Fatal To Marin Man

A San Rafael man died of massive head injuries at Marin General Hospital this morning, eight hours after he was thrown from his small foreign car on the west slope of White's Hill west of Fairfax.

The death of Dennis Dudley Gault, 29, of 320 C Street, brought to 31 the number of traffic fatalities in Marin this year, compared to 36 at this time last year.

The California Highway Patrol said Gault was driving west on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at 8:55 p.m. when his car spun out on a curve and overturned, ejecting him.

Officers said Gault probably would have survived had he been using a seat belt.

He was rushed to the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital but died at 4:50 a.m. today of a massive skull fracture, according to the Marin County coroner's office.

Gault worked at the Hemorex Equipment Co. in Santa Clara and is survived by his wife, Leslie A. Gault, of the home address.

Uncertainty Over Man Ordered Back To Prison

The administrative officer for the California Adult Authority said today it was uncertain whether an Oakland ironworker ordered back to prison will have to return to custody after all.

Joseph A. Spangler, the adult authority official, said there were a variety of options open in the case of Frank A. Nubin, 46, but that the authority has yet to consider the former inmate's fate.

Nubin has been asked to surrender tomorrow at the Crittendon Center in Oakland. Once Nubin turns himself in, Spangler said the adult authority has four courses of action:

1. Nubin's term can be refixed for immediate discharge.

2. He can be reinstated on parole.

3. He can be ordered back for a hearing before the adult authority to fix his release date.

4. He can be ordered to complete a 10-month prison term.

Under the first two alternates, Nubin would not have to return to prison at all.

Nubin was imprisoned in 1961 on an assault with a deadly weapon charge. Paroled in 1967, his final discharge was set for Jan. 4, 1969.

Because of a fight with his wife on Christmas Eve of 1968, resulting in an assault charge, his parole was revoked on Jan. 3, 1969, one day before final discharge, and he went back to prison.

Attorney Salle Soladay, fighting attempts to return Nubin to prison, contended one of the official documents showed revocation of parole came on Jan. 31, 1969, after the final discharge date, and therefore he was being held illegally.

On Jan. 26, 1970, Nubin was released on bail and has been working ever since.

Last week, after a hearing on the parole revocation, Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court reluctantly ordered Nubin back into custody this Friday. He said the adult authority had revoked parole in time and therefore has legal jurisdiction over Nubin.

Water Plan Foes Ready Vote Fight

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma Coalition last night kicked off its petition drive aimed at forcing a June election on the Sonoma County water plan.

Marsha Hamilton, coalition member and petitions chairman, said petitions will begin circulation tomorrow. The organization then has 69 days in which to collect 7,786 signatures to force the election.

The coalition has contended that Sonoma County voters have the right to vote on the water plan. Marin County voters on Nov. 2 overwhelmingly defeated a bond measure that would have allowed Marin to join Sonoma County in the water project.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors last year authorized the sale of $115 million in revenue bonds to finance the project. The proposed election would halt the project and force the supervisors to rescind the revenue bonds.

Miss Hamilton said coordinators will be named for each city in Sonoma County and that petitions will be circulated on a neighborhood basis.

Peter Leveque, a biology instructor at Santa Rosa Junior College, told the 30 coalition members last night that the water project should be halted pending studies on how the county can conserve its present water supply and until a county general plan is adopted.

Coalition members have contended that the extra water supplied by the aqueduct would encourage overdevelopment.

him this morning and must be fulfilled by tomorrow at noon.

Other conditions include a $250 rental fee plus $50 per hour after midnight (the show is expected to go on to 2 a.m.); $100 for spot lights which Mayer said aren't needed; $50 for a sound system though the bands have their own; a 5 per cent payment to the county on gross proceeds over $2,500; and a $2,000 cash security bond to cover damage and excessive janitorial clean up if needed.

Assist. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella said he couldn't understand why Mayer hadn't complained to the county administration. "I would think he would do that instead of going to the press," he said.

Campanella said the conditions were tentatively accepted by a concert representative who met with Kalimos yesterday. "The building isn't cheap," he added.

Mayer, who said he would approach the board of supervisors Tuesday on the matter, said the conditions "simply are ridiculous."

STRIKE

Father Lacey said the evacuation was made at the recommendation of Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos.

The students gathered in the bleachers of the school's football field during the evacuation yesterday and most joined in an impromptu rally in support of the strikers.

Miss Hicken said today that yesterday's activity was based on emotion and that students today were "split into two factions."

A student council meeting was scheduled for later today in hope of clarifying student opinion on the strike, she said.

Some students have disrupted classes by cutting and arriving late, she said, but she added that she thought "if kids really stopped and thought about what they're doing disrupting classes here, they would cooperate with the teachers who have stayed."

The strike was more heated in San Francisco where two of the struck schools were closed yesterday because of the possibility of student walkouts in support of the striking teachers.

Michael Walsh, student body president at Sacred Heart High School — one of the two closed schools — joined pickets at Riordan and told newsmen he didn't believe there would be negotiations in good faith unless the schools were closed.

Father Lacey said four or five substitute teachers had been brought in at Marin Catholic and that students were attending five of their regular seven periods daily on a rotating basis.

Full instruction was being continued, he said.

ing at Prey Veng, 27 miles east of Phnom Penh, at Badaeng, 15 miles to the southwest, and on Highway 6, 60 miles north of the capital.

In Vietnam, North Vietnamese mortar teams battered two American outposts near the Demilitarized Zone and U.S. planes struck inside North Vietnam and in the western sector of the DMZ to try to choke off the flow of Communist supplies along the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

In Saigon, the command reported five Americans were killed last week and 21 wounded, compared with eight killed and 13 wounded the previous week in the war zone.

The Communists carried out mortar attacks Wednesday night against Alpha 1 and Bravo 2, the eastern cornerstones of the allied defense line just south of the DMZ. The North Vietnamese fired 50 rounds of mortar fire into the two camps near the South China Sea but there were no casualties.

The U.S. command also reported an American helicopter shot down and two crewmen wounded late Wednesday in Binh Duong province 30 miles north of Saigon.

In the air war against the growing traffic of Communist supply truck convoys into South Vietnam and Cambodia from North Vietnam, U.S. B52 bombers struck a North Vietnamese road that cuts through the extreme western end of the DMZ.

The bombers dropped 180 tons of bombs in two waves of three planes each. There was no report on the damage.

Report On Doctors In Rural Area

The two young doctors who operated the West Marin Roving Medical Clinic last summer received training in rural medicine that is unusual today, a public health doctor said yesterday.

Dr. Elizabeth Paeth, in charge of the project in which two physicians operated a trailer clinic in various communities, gave a second report on the clinic yesterday to the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin.

Although Dr. Paeth said conclusions about the need and costs of such a program have not yet been made, she said the training the doctors received was very valuable.

Such experience in rural medicine could be used to train other young doctors, she said.

Dr. Paeth also told the council that about half the 212 patients seen during the summer had illnesses such as venereal disease or respiratory infections while the other half had either chronic problems or routine conditions.

The council yesterday also agreed to have a committee undertake a study of the need for a school lunch program in Marin, according to Chester F. Villalba, who acted as chairman for the meeting.

The request for the study had been made by the Interagency Nutritional Council.

Objecting that tougher pollution controls meant the district was forcing Bay Area industry to move elsewhere, Graham declared that "the more punitive we are, the more straws we pile on the back of industrial enterprise, the more (job) troubles we'll have."

Staff opposition to the tougher regulations came from the district's top administrator, D. J. Callaghan. He especially objected to fining industry for breakdowns of smog control equipment, claiming this often would mean "untold staff time" and "a long tedious operation" taking polluters to court.

Callaghan suggested that such a crackdown "could detract from the rest of our enforcement activity because of limitation of staff".

Warner, however, said Callaghan's argument was "not an answer for an enforcement agency to write a weaker regulation."

According to staff estimates, industry will report about 3,200 upsets and breakdowns of smog control equipment this year.

L. E. Coleman of Standard Oil objected from the audience that all other air pollution regulations in the nation allowed for upsets and breakdowns, and that the citizen groups' proposals would be unprecedented.

little. I don't know what it did except scare the hell out of me."

Democrats also blamed Chicanos for backing a splinter candidate, activist Raul Ruiz, whose 2,778 votes could have won it for Alatorre. The Democrat lost by only 1,587 votes.

"The reason we lost was a cynical alliance between neosegregationists in the Chicano community and the Republican Party," charged Assembly Reapportionment Committee Chairman Henry A. Waxman, D-Los Angeles.

But Stull said the election was "a strong indicator that Mexican-Americans are no longer content to be taken for granted by Democrats."

wage increases would run an estimated 10 per cent a year.

The Pay Board also must decide which, if any, workers to exempt from its general position against allowing retroactive pay increases. Sources close to the board said there was a chance the nation's 2.2 million teachers would be exempted from the retroactive pay decision.

In Miami Beach, AFL-CIO President George Meany said today President Nixon's Pay Board is stacked against workers because most of the public members are not really neutral and favor the business side.

"It adds up to a stacked deck," Meany said in his keynote address to the opening session of the AFL-CIO convention. "It adds up to playing with loaded dice."

Meany delivered a stinging attack against the administration's moves to control wages of workers, and said he feared Nixon would take even more "stringent and repressive" measures to control the economy if the present Phase II controls fail.

C. Jackson Grayson Jr., whose Price Commission has so far received less public attention than the more sensitive Pay Board, said in an interview with the Washington Star today, that as commission chairman he intends to make most of the decisions for the commission with the other six commissioners playing a supportive role.

He pledged to keep the commission informed of his actions and to consult them on pattern-setting cases, but "I am the only official authorized to sign for the commission, so the commission is advisory to me."

Grayson and George H. Boldt of the Pay Board are the only members of either board to receive a salary —$40,000 each —and are the only commissioners who work full time.

Defense Bill Amendment Move Halted

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate Appropriations Committee rejected today a move to attach to the defense money bill an amendment to stop all military spending in Vietnam except to withdraw remaining U.S. troops.

Backers of the amendment appeared more encouraged than discouraged, however, by the 14 to 10 vote in the committee which traditionally has been opposed to antiwar proposals. They interpreted the relatively close margin to mean they might succeed later in getting approval of the amendment on the Senate floor.

"I think this is a very encouraging development," said Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., who offered the amendment in the committee, of which he is a member. He told reporters of the vote.

President Nixon signed a weapons procurement bill Wednesday that contained an antiwar resolution but issued a statement saying he had no intention or requirement to abide by its request that he set a final date for U.S. involvement in Indochina.

Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., tried to attach a similar amendment to the foreign aid authorization last month and it failed by one vote. Church said Wednesday he thought it would pass this time.

Crash Injuries Prove Fatal To Marin Man

A San Rafael man died of massive head injuries at Marin General Hospital this morning, eight hours after he was thrown from his small foreign car on the west slope of White's Hill west of Fairfax.

The death of Dennis Dudley Gault, 29, of 320 C Street, brought to 31 the number of traffic fatalities in Marin this year, compared to 36 at this time last year.

The California Highway Patrol said Gault was driving west on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at 8:55 p.m. when his car spun out on a curve and overturned, ejecting him.

Officers said Gault probably would have survived had he been using a seat belt.

He was rushed to the intensive care unit at Marin General Hospital but died at 4:50 a.m. today of a massive skull fracture, according to the Marin County coroner's office.

Gault worked at the Hemorex Equipment Co. in Santa Clara and is survived by his wife, Leslie A. Gault, of the home address.

Uncertainty Over Man Ordered Back To Prison

The administrative officer for the California Adult Authority said today it was uncertain whether an Oakland ironworker ordered back to prison will have to return to custody after all.

Joseph A. Spangler, the adult authority official, said there were a variety of options open in the case of Frank A. Nubin, 46, but that the authority has yet to consider the former inmate's fate.

Nubin has been asked to surrender tomorrow at the Crittendon Center in Oakland. Once Nubin turns himself in, Spangler said the adult authority has four courses of action:

1. Nubin's term can be refixed for immediate discharge.
2. He can be reinstated on parole.
3. He can be ordered back for a hearing before the adult authority to fix his release date.
4. He can be ordered to complete a 10-month prison term.

Under the first two alternates, Nubin would not have to return to prison at all.

Nubin was imprisoned in 1961 on an assault with a deadly weapon charge. Paroled in 1967, his final discharge was set for Jan. 4, 1969.

Because of a fight with his wife on Christmas Eve of 1968, resulting in an assault charge, his parole was revoked on Jan. 3, 1969, one day before final discharge, and he went back to prison.

Attorney Salle Soladay, fighting attempts to return Nubin to prison, contended one of the official documents showed revocation of parole came on Jan. 31, 1969, after the final discharge date, and therefore he was being held illegally.

On Jan. 26, 1970, Nubin was released on bail and has been working ever since.

Last week, after a hearing on the parole revocation, Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court reluctantly ordered Nubin back into custody this Friday. He said the adult authority had revoked parole in time and therefore has legal jurisdiction over Nubin.

Water Plan Foes Ready Vote Fight

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma Coalition last night kicked off its petition drive aimed at forcing a June election on the Sonoma County water plan.

Marsha Hamilton, coalition member and petitions chairman, said petitions will begin circulation tomorrow. The organization then has 69 days in which to collect 7,786 signatures to force the election.

The coalition has contended that Sonoma County voters have the right to vote on the water plan. Marin County voters on Nov. 2 overwhelmingly defeated a bond measure that would have allowed Marin to join Sonoma County in the water project.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors last year authorized the sale of $115 million in revenue bonds to finance the project. The proposed election would halt the project and force the supervisors to rescind the revenue bonds.

Miss Hamilton said coordinators will be named for each city in Sonoma County and that petitions will be circulated on a neighborhood basis.

Peter Leveque, a biology instructor at Santa Rosa Junior College, told the 30 coalition members last night that the water project should be halted pending studies on how the county can conserve its present water supply and until a county general plan is adopted.

Coalition members have contended that the extra water supplied by the aqueduct would encourage overdevelopment.

him this morning and must be fulfilled by tomorrow at noon.

Other conditions include a $250 rental fee plus $50 per hour after midnight (the show is expected to go on to 2 a.m.); $100 for spot lights which Mayer said aren't needed; $50 for a sound system though the bands have their own; a 5 per cent payment to the county on gross proceeds over $2,500; and a $2,000 cash security bond to cover damage and excessive janitorial clean up if needed.

Assist. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella said he couldn't understand why Mayer hadn't complained to the county administration. "I would think he would do that instead of going to the press," he said.

Campanella said the conditions were tentatively accepted by a concert representative who met with Kalimos yesterday. "The building isn't cheap," he added.

Mayer, who said he would approach the board of supervisors Tuesday on the matter, said the conditions "simply are ridiculous."

STRIKE

Father Lacey said the evacuation was made at the recommendation of Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos.

The students gathered in the bleachers of the school's football field during the evacuation yesterday and most joined in an impromptu rally in support of the strikers.

Miss Hicken said today that yesterday's activity was based on emotion and that students today were "split into two factions."

A student council meeting was scheduled for later today in hope of clarifying student opinion on the strike, she said.

Some students have disrupted classes by cutting and arriving late, she said, but she added that she thought "if kids really stopped and thought about what they're doing disrupting classes here, they would cooperate with the teachers who have stayed."

The strike was more heated in San Francisco where two of the struck schools were closed yesterday because of the possibility of student walkouts in support of the striking teachers.

Michael Walsh, student body president at Sacred Heart High School — one of the two closed schools — joined pickets at Riordan and told newsmen he didn't believe there would be negotiations in good faith unless the schools were closed.

Father Lacey said four or five substitute teachers had been brought in at Marin Catholic and that students were attending five of their regular seven periods daily on a rotating basis.

Full instruction was being continued, he said.

ing at Prey Veng, 27 miles east of Phnom Penh, at Badaeng, 15 miles to the southwest, and on Highway 6, 60 miles north of the capital.

In Vietnam, North Vietnamese mortar teams battered two American outposts near the Demilitarized Zone and U.S. planes struck inside North Vietnam and in the western sector of the DMZ to try to choke off the flow of Communist supplies along the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

In Saigon, the command reported five Americans were killed last week and 21 wounded, compared with eight killed and 13 wounded the previous week in the war zone.

The Communists carried out mortar attacks Wednesday night against Alpha 1 and Bravo 2, the eastern cornerstones of the allied defense line just south of the DMZ. The North Vietnamese fired 50 rounds of mortar fire into the two camps near the South China Sea but there were no casualties.

The U.S. command also reported an American helicopter shot down and two crewmen wounded late Wednesday in Binh Duong province 30 miles north of Saigon.

In the air war against the growing traffic of Communist supply truck convoys into South Vietnam and Cambodia from North Vietnam, U.S. B52 bombers struck a North Vietnamese road that cuts through the extreme western end of the DMZ.

The bombers dropped 180 tons of bombs in two waves of three planes each. There was no report on the damage.

A native of Enoree, S.C., he was reared on the nearby Stribling plantation where the 182-year-old family home still stands.

He graduated from Clemson College in South Carolina in 1915 and enlisted in the Army, serving as a lieutenant in the infantry. Following World War I, he served in the active reserve while working as an analytical chemist for the Internal Revenue Service.

The family home was in Berkeley for many years.

In 1939 Stribling returned to active duty and attended the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. He served for a time on Gen. Joseph W. (Vinegar Joe) Stillwell's staff as a coordinator of logistics, and later was traffic expediter at Weymouth, England, during the Allied invasion of France.

Following World War II, Stribling served in Korea prior to outbreak of hostilities there. He retired in 1954, and he and his wife moved to Kentfield in 1958. The family home is at 29 Rosebank Avenue.

Stribling was a member of the Marin Rod and Gun Club, the Commonwealth Club of California and the Clemson University Alumni Association.

Shift In Sites For Meetings

Because of increased public attendance at Fairfax School District board meetings, the board has decided to hold future meetings at larger quarters in White Hill School.

Meetings previously were held at the district office.

The board's next meeting, the first at White Hill, will be at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday.

The board did not meet last Tuesday because it switched its November schedule of meetings to accommodate Supt. Reginald Hammond, who attended the National Association of School Executives meeting in Los Angeles earlier this month.

S. San Pedro Construction Halt Asked

Bayside Acres Group Wants City, County To 'Take 2nd Look'

Eight Bayside Acres familes demanded yesterday that San Rafael and Marin County Officials halt reconstruction of South San Pedro Road and take another look at a controversy that supposedly was settled two years ago.

The families, in an open letter to the San Rafael City Council, supervisors, Independent-Journal and neighbors, called for a return to the earlier plan to realign San Pedro Road by cutting across the pickleweed-covered Bayside Acres marsh.

The plan was voted down 8-to-2 on Nov. 8, 1969, at a joint meeting of the supervisors and councilmen. That vote capped a series of stormy hearings attracting up to 350 homeowners from Bayside Acres, Glenwood, Peacock Gap and neighboring areas.

"We feel the road should be stopped," the protesters wrote yesterday, until city and county officials "inspect the damage to be done" by widening the existing road to four lanes.

The lengthy protest letter was signed by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Curto, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guerrini, Edith B. Varner, Brevard Sinclair and Sonoma Finch, all of Bayside Acres.

They contended that "the present alignment (of South San Pedro Road) is taking traffic perilously close to homes on both sides . . . will create a noise nuisance . . . and removal of vegetation could make living in the affected areas almost unbearable."

Although conservationists, including Bayside Acres resident Dr. William F. Upton, successfully argued in 1969 that the marsh shortcut would destroy pickleweed and bird nesting areas, the marsh is privately owned, subject to development and is frequently sprayed by mosquito abatement crews, the protesters said yesterday.

Arguments that the marsh shortcut would destroy three homes also are now moot, the letter said.

The writers uged officials to "look at the hillside property . . . trees and other vegetation, some a hundred years old, that will be destroyed to be replaced with colly retaining walls" if the road's present alignment is followed.

A county aide said yesterday tha design on the construction project, east to Riviera Road, is nearly complete, following the path of the existing thoroughfare. Rights-of-way are at least 50 per cent secured, and the county hopes to call for construction bids in February, according to Lawrence Loder, assistant director of public works.

Carolers Must Enter By Dec. 1

Would-be Christmas carolers in Corte Madera must apply by Dec. 1 to participate in the fourth annual "Corte Madera Carols" event sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, according to chamber officials.

Caroling throughout the town will begin three days after the deadline and continue through Dec. 10, according to Barbara Packard, chamber manager.

On Dec. 10 at a party for all who have participated, cash awards donated by town merchants will be made to charities on behalf of winning carolers. Mrs. Packard said.

Major Chemical Finds In The Emptiness Of Space

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Radio astronomers are finding more and more complex molecules in the vast reaches of space between the stars.

Thus far nearly 25 chemicals ranging in the intricacy of their atomic structure from hydrogen to formaldehyde have been identified.

Scientists believe such molecules were the raw materials from which life was created on the earth.

Dr. Arno A. Penzias of the Bell Telephone Laboratories told a recent meeting of the National Academy of Sciences that carbon monoxide accounted for 90 per cent of the molecules in a region of interstellar space which he examined.

Carbon is the dominant element in plant and animal life on earth. Is space stocked with materials from which life could evolve on earth-like planets of other solar systems?

More or less in jest, Panzias remarked that carbon "seems to play a disproportionately large role (in interstellar space), even as it does in the things we have for lunch."

Assuming the building blocks of living tissue abound in space, and assuming that life has come into existence elsewhere in the universe, would living creatures on faraway other worlds resemble us and the plants and animals which coexist with us on earth?

Dr. Joseph Kraut who also addressed the academy, has a strong hunch that they would.

Kraut, a chemistry professor at the University of California at San Diego, is an authority on enzymes.

Enzymes are the numerous chemical control agents which nature has created to turn on, accelerate and regulate the myriad functions performed by the cells of plants and animals.

Studies of two specific enzymes provide, Kraut said, "the first concrete example that I know of that nature has twice come up with the same solution to a specific problem in molecular engineering."

This suggests that, "given a particular function to perform, nature will devise the same molecular machinery — presumably the most efficient machinery—to perform that function."

Although many scientists believe life must have evolved elsewhere in the depths of space, not all feel it necessarily would look like life on earth.

Kraut conceded that his notion that living things everywhere resemble those on this planet is "wild speculation." But, on the basis of his experience with enzymes, he said:

"We can suppose that nature does these things the same way because there is only one way to do them efficiently . . . we can then hypothesize that there is only one way in which living things can be assembled."

Reagan: Nixon Won't Give In To The Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday conservative political disgruntlement with President Nixon's policies toward Red China would disappear when conservatives see the President does not give in to the Communists during his trip to Peking.

"When they find that the President has no intention of bargaining away anything important to the United States, they will be reassured," Reagan said during a White House news conference.

Reagan met for 90 minutes with Nixon to report on his 15-day trip to South Vietnam, Japaa, Singapore, Thailand and Taiwan, where he was Nixon's personal representative to Taiwan's National Day.

Reagan said he found Asian allies concerned about Nixon's planned trip to Red China, but he reassured the Asian leaders by pointing out Nixon's long record of anticommunism.

Reagan said he told them there could well be cause for concern "if someone else was going."

He said he told them Nixon had "demonstrated throughout his whole public life" that he understands the great differences between communism and the American system.

"I had a very distinct feeling in each place we left that there was an eased feeling."

Reagan said the same would be true of conservatives in the United States and he said problems Nixon is having with conservatives in this country are "nothing that can't be resolved by the outcome of the Peking trip."

He said conservatives had a right to fear any policy of appeasement, but that appeasement was the way of the Democratic Party and not a Republican like Nixon.

Reagan also said conservatives had been upset by the vote to oust Nationalist China from the United Nations, but he avoided questions about what he felt the United States specifically should do now.

Reagan also repeated his earlier stand he would not be a candidate for the Republican presidential or vice presidential nomination, and said Vice President Spiro T. Agnew should be retained on the 1972 political ticket.

Reagan also discussed California's welfare problems.

He called welfare "probably one of the most colossal social failures" of our time but did not elaborate on what he told Nixon or whether he got any new commitments to help with California's disputes with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

He did say Nixon reiterated his support for California's plan to put more welfare recipients to work.

Grandmother's Pistol Kills Boy

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) —Sarah Campbell, 51, was visiting her daughter Wednesday afternoon when she dropped her purse.

Police said a .25 caliber pistol inside the purse discharged when the bag hit the floor. Mrs. Campbell's grandson, Howard Hunt Jr., 3, was struck in the head by the bullet and died.

Mrs. Campbell was charged with involuntary manslaughter and was released on $1,000 bond.

Doomed Teacher Won't Fight

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) —A teacher who expects to die of cancer before she legally can collect her retirement benefits says she has decided not to fight the red tape.

Mrs. Virginia Winfree said Wednesday night she will make no attempt to collect the $10,000 due her from the teachers' pension fund.

"I am just going to leave it there for my beneficiaries," she said.

Lawsuit On Vets Building

The builder of the new Marin Veterans Memorial Building has filed a $374,795 suit against the county and the building's architects.

The suit, filed in San Mateo County, alleges that the county and its architects breached their contract with the building firms of Paul V. Wright Inc. and Ben Oretsky Inc. by causing unnecessary delays.

The suit was filed last month in San Mateo Superior Court but was received in Marin only last Thursday.

The two construction firms claim that "during the course of construction . . . numerous errors, omissions and discrepancies were discovered in the drawings and specifications" supplied by the county and architects.

The architects named are Aaron G. Green, William Wesley Peters and the Taliesin Associated architects of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation.

"The failure of the defendants . . . to supply accurate and proper drawings and specifications was a breach of contract," the suit states, adding that each time a discrepancy was found it forced a halt in work.

It adds that even after errors were pointed out by the contractors, the county and its architects failed "to make timely and complete corrections."

Other charges include ones that delivery of auditorium seats and fixtures were delayed and that the contractors were "directed to perform work outside the scope of the contract" and with no compensation.

The auditorium opened in September, months behind schedule.

According to Joseph A. Forest, deputy county counsel, the suit is nearly identical to one filed last February by the contractor for the Hall of Justice.

That suit, also filed in San Mateo County and tangled in a web of legalities, named the same architects as well as the county.

It totals $1,580,078 and was filed by the Robert E. McKee firm, which was awarded the multimillion dollar Hall of Justice contract.

Among other charges, it alleges the county and architects "extensively redesigned portions of the building beginning shortly after work had commenced and continuing throughout a major portion of the life of the contract."

Forest said hat since that suit was filed, countersuits against the contractor and architects have been filed by the county.

Also, a cross-complaint has been filed against the contractor by the architects.

"It's the biggest suit we've had," he said. "It will take forever to clear up."

If the county is found liable in either or both of the contractors' suits, the damages must be paid by the taxpayers, Forest said.

PHOTOGRAPHER'S THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is just too good a picture-taking opportunity for any photographer to pass up. (And we're not just giving you the bird.)

Thanksgiving is a family affair. Often it means more of the family getting together for dinner than usual. Look for special human interest situations, like Grandma holding the new baby for the first time, or several generations of the men watching the pro football game on TV before dinner.

And, of course, don't neglect the groaning table, both before and after (everyone thinks of the before, but the after also tells a story, even if it's just Mom who's groaning over all those dishes.)

Family festivities come and go all too quickly. The magic of film makes them lifetime possessions. When it comes to a camera that won't let you miss those once-in-a-lifetime pictures, take a look at the Kodak Instamatic® line in our big display. They do all the thinking for you!

S. San Pedro Construction Halt Asked

Eight Bayside Acres families demanded yesterday that San Rafael and Marin County Officials halt reconstruction of South San Pedro Road and take another look at a controversy that supposedly was settled two years ago.

The families, in an open letter to the San Rafael City Council, supervisors, Independent-Journal and neighbors, called for a return to the earlier plan to realign San Pedro Road by cutting across the picklewe-eded-covered Bayside Acres marsh.

The plan was voted down 8-to-2 on Nov. 8, 1969, at a joint meeting of the supervisors and councilmen. That vote capped a series of stormy hearings attracting up to 350 homeowners from Bayside Acres, Glenwood, Peacock Gap and neighboring areas.

"We feel the road should be stopped," the protesters wrote yesterday, until city and county officials "inspect the damage to be done" by widening the existing road to four lanes.

The lengthy protest letter was signed by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sweeney, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Curto, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guerrini, Edith B. Varner, Brevard Sinclair and Sonoma Finch, all of Bayside Acres.

They contended that "the present alignment (of South San Pedro Road) is taking traffic perilously close to homes on both sides . . . will create a noise nuisance . . . and removal of vegetation could make living in the affected areas almost unbearable."

Although conservationists, including Bayside Acres resident Dr. William F. Upton, successfully argued in 1969 that the marsh shortcut would destroy pickleweed and bird nesting areas, the marsh is privately owned, subject to development and is frequently sprayed by mosquito abatement crews, the protesters said yesterday.

Arguments that the marsh shortcut would destroy three homes also are now moot, the letter said.

The writers urged officials to "look at the hillside property . . . trees and other vegetation, some a hundred years old, that will be destroyed to be replaced with cotly retaining walls" if the road's present alignment is followed.

A county aide said yesterday tha design on the construction project, east to Riviera Road, is nearly complete, following the path of the existing thoroughfare. Rights-of-way are at least 50 per cent secured, and the county hopes to call for construction bids in February, according to Lawrence Loder, assistant director of public works.

Carolers Must Enter By Dec. 1

Would-be Christmas carolers in Corte Madera must apply by Dec. 1 to participate in the fourth annual "Corte Madera Carols" event sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, according to chamber officials.

Caroling throughout the town will begin three days after the deadline and continue through Dec. 10, according to Barbara Packard, chamber manager.

On Dec. 10 at a party for all who have participated, cash awards donated by town merchants will be made to charities on behalf of winning carolers. Mrs. Packard said.

Major Chemical Finds In The Emptiness Of Space

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Radio astronomers are finding more and more complex molecules in the vast reaches of space between the stars.

Thus far nearly 25 chemicals ranging in the intricacy of their atomic structure from hydrogen to formaldehyde have been identified.

Scientists believe such molecules were the raw materials from which life was created on the earth.

Dr. Arno A. Penzias of the Bell Telephone Laboratories told a recent meeting of the National Academy of Sciences that carbon monoxide accounted for 90 per cent of the molecules in a region of interstellar space which he examined.

Carbon is the dominant element in plant and animal life on earth. Is space stocked with materials from which life could evolve on earth-like planets of other solar systems?

More or less in jest, Panzias remarked that carbon "seems to play a disproportionately large role (in interstellar space), even as it does in the things we have for lunch."

Assuming the building blocks of living tissue abound in space, and assuming that life has come into existence elsewhere in the universe, would living creatures on faraway other worlds resemble us and the plants and animals which coexist with us on earth?

Dr. Joseph Kraut who also addressed the academy, has a strong hunch that they would.

Kraut, a chemistry professor at the University of California at San Diego, is an authority on enzymes.

Enzymes are the numerous chemical control agents which nature has created to turn on, accelerate and regulate the myriad functions performed by the cells of plants and animals.

Studies of two specific enzymes provide, Kraut said, "the first concrete example that I know of that nature has twice come up with the same solution to a specific problem in molecular engineering."

This suggests that, "given a particular function to perform, nature will devise the same molecular machinery — presumably the most efficient machinery—to perform that function."

Although many scientists believe life must have evolved elsewhere in the depths of space, not all feel it necessarily would look like life on earth.

Kraut conceded that his notion that living things everywhere resemble those on this planet is "wild speculation." But, on the basis of his experience with enzymes, he said:

"We can suppose that nature does these things the same way because there is only one way to do them efficiently . . . we can then hypothesize that there is only one way in which living things can be assembled."

Reagan: Nixon Won't Give In To The Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday conservative political disgruntlement with President Nixon's policies toward Red China would disappear when conservatives see the President does not give in to the Communists during his trip to Peking.

"When they find that the President has no intention of bargaining away anything important to the United States, they will be reassured," Reagan said during a White House news conference.

Reagan met for 90 minutes with Nixon to report on his 15-day trip to South Vietnam, Japaa, Singapore, Thailand and Taiwan, where he was Nixon's personal representative to Taiwan's National Day.

Reagan said he found Asian allies concerned about Nixon's planned trip to Red China, but he reassured the Asian leaders by pointing out Nixon's long record of anticommunism.

Reagan said he told them there could well be cause for concern "if someone else was going."

He said he told them Nixon had "demonstrated throughout his whole public life" that he understands the great differences between communism and the American system.

"I had a very distinct feeling in each place we left that there was an eased feeling."

Reagan said the same would be true of conservatives in the United States and he said problems Nixon is having with conservatives in this country are "nothing that can't be resolved by the outcome of the Peking trip."

He said conservatives had a right to fear any policy of appeasement, but that appeasement was the way of the Democratic Party and not a Republican like Nixon.

Reagan also said conservatives had been upset by the vote to oust Nationalist China from the United Nations, but he avoided questions about what he felt the United States specifically should do now.

Reagan also repeated his earlier stand he would not be a candidate for the Republican presidential or vice presidential nomination, and said Vice President Spiro T. Agnew should be retained on the 1972 political ticket.

Reagan also discussed California's welfare problems.

He called welfare "probably one of the most colossal social failures" of our time but did not elaborate on what he told Nixon or whether he got any new commitments to help with California's disputes with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

He did say Nixon reiterated his support for California's plan to put more welfare recipients to work.

Grandmother's Pistol Kills Boy

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) —Sarah Campbell, 51, was visiting her daughter Wednesday afternoon when she dropped her purse.

Police said a .25 caliber pistol inside the purse discharged when the bag hit the floor. Mrs. Campbell's grandson, Howard Hunt Jr., 3, was struck in the head by the bullet and died.

Mrs. Campbell was charged with involuntary manslaughter and was released on $1,000 bond.

Doomed Teacher Won't Fight

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) —A teacher who expects to die of cancer before she legally can collect her retirement benefits says she has decided not to fight the red tape.

Mrs. Virginia Winfree said Wednesday night she will make no attempt to collect the $10,000 due her from the teachers' pension fund.

"I am just going to leave it there for my beneficiaries," she said.

Lawsuit On Vets Building

The builder of the new Marin Veterans Memorial Building has filed a $374,796 suit against the county and the building's architects.

The suit, filed in San Mateo County, alleges that the county and its architects breached their contract with the building firms of Paul V. Wright Inc. and Ben Oretsky Inc. by causing unnecessary delays.

The suit was filed last month in San Mateo Superior Court but was received in Marin only last Thursday.

The two construction firms claim that "during the course of construction . . . numerous errors, omissions and discrepancies were discovered in the drawings and specifications" supplied by the county and architects.

The architects named are Aaron G. Green, William Wesley Peters and the Taliesin Associated architects of the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation.

"The failure of the defendants . . . to supply accurate and proper drawings and specifications was a breach of contract," the suit states, adding that each time a discrepancy was found it forced a halt in work.

It adds that even after errors were pointed out by the contractors, the county and its architects failed "to make timely and complete corrections."

Other charges include ones that delivery of auditorium seats and fixtures were delayed and that the contractors were "directed to perform work outside the scope of the contract" and with no compensation.

The auditorium opened in September, months behind schedule.

According to Joseph A. Forest, deputy county counsel, the suit is nearly identical to one filed last February by the contractor for the Hall of Justice.

That suit, also filed in San Mateo County and tangled in a web of legalities, named the same architects as well as the county.

It totals $1,580,078 and was filed by the Robert E. McKee firm, which was awarded the multimillion dollar Hall of Justice contract.

Among other charges, it alleges the county and architects "extensively redesigned portions of the building beginning shortly after work had commenced and continuing throughout a major portion of the life of the contract."

Forest said hat since that suit was filed, countersuits against the contractor and architects have been filed by the county.

Also, a cross-complaint has been filed against the contractor by the architects.

"It's the biggest suit we've had," he said. "It will take forever to clear up."

If the county is found liable in either or both of the contractors' suits, the damages must be paid by the taxpayers, Forest said.

GOV. REAGAN AND THE RACER

Republican governors opened their two-day winter conference today in French Lick, Ind., and California Gov. Ronald Reagan was on hand to check out an Indianapolis 500 racer which was on display. Gov. Louie B. Nunn of Kentucky sounded the theme of the conference by attacking Democratic presidential candidates as "political parasites," and asking governors to support President Nixon.

California Gains In Education Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Fifteen states will lose more than $32 million in federal funds for educating needy children this school year, the U.S. Office of Education disclosed today.

But nine states and the District of Columbia will get $1 million more than they received last year under the $1.5 billion program of special school aid for welfare and other poor children. The money goes primarily for special reading, math and language instruction.

Whether a state gets more or less is determined by changes in welfare rolls and the costs of education, plus a new formula used for distributing money under Title I of the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act, a government spokesman said.

The program is the largest single source of federal aid to education. U.S. Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland Jr. said Wednesday it also offers the greatest potential for increasing federal aid to nonpublic school children.

Mississippi suffered the sharpest cutback among the 15 states —a loss of nearly $4 million. But close behind were Alabama, $3.6 million; Georgia, $3.7 million; Kentucky, $3.3 million; North Carolina, $3.7 million and Tennessee $3.1 million.

Other losers were Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia.

Many of these states in past years had been assured by law of receiving no less Title I funds than they received the year before; but that federal floor was removed in this year's legislation, the spokesman said.

As a result states with fewer eligible children this year — possibly because of population loss or decreasing welfare rolls —no longer were guaranteed last year's funding level.

Three states that had anticipated losses in the new money bill ended up getting the same amounts as last year: Florida, New Mexico and Wyoming.

California led the list of big gainers, receiving $19 million more for a total allocation of $122 million. The money does not go to states in a lump sum but remains on account for them to draw on during the school year and beyond, if necessary.

Increased welfare rolls or higher education costs, or both, contributed to some states receiving more money this year for needy students.

Safety Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill by Assemblyman Eugene Chappie, R-Cool, requiring school districts to include motorcycle safety instruction in their high school driver education courses, was signed Wednesday by Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke.

Belfast Mob Angered By Death Ruling

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A mob angered by an open verdict in the British army shooting of a deaf mute went on a three-hour rampage Wednesday night and today in the border town of Strabane, an army spokesman said.

As the crowd of 200 persons stoned troops, smashed windows and looted stores, three bombs destroyed or heavily damaged a library, bus depot and gas station, the spokesman said.

In Belfast, troops acting on intelligence information arrested 23 persons in Roman Catholic areas "in connection with terrorist activities" and turned them over to police, the spokesman said.

Police in London raided an empty store and arrested four men and a girl and seized 11 rifles, three automatics and 56 rounds of ammunition. The detectives were investigating Saor Eire, a splinter group of the provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA), police sources said.

The mob action in Strabane, a Roman Catholic town 14 miles south of Londonderry, came after a coroner's inquest Wednesday returned an open verdict in the August shooting of Eamonn McDevitt, 24, a deaf mute.

An open verdict means a coroner's inquest has been unable to find criminal blame for a death and cannot recommend prosecution.

McDevitt was killed by a trooper who said he saw him carrying a gun. Residents said McDivitt did not know how to use a gun and was only waving a used rubber bullet.

Police and troops finally succeeded in dispersing the Strabane crowds in the early morning hours.

Brown Aide Takes Los Angeles Job

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assistant Secretary of State H. P. (Pat) Sullivan has accepted an assignment as assistant chief deputy to Los Angeles Registrar-Recorder James Allison.

The announcement was made Wednesday by Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., who said Sullivan, who has been with the secretary of state's office for nearly five years, will take the new job by the end of December.

GOP Convention Contract Signed

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The Republican National Committee reports that a contract has been signed that guarantees use of the sports arena for the 1972 GOP convention.

California Gains In Education Fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Fifteen states will lose more than $32 million in federal funds for educating needy children this school year, the U.S. Office of Education disclosed today.

But nine states and the District of Columbia will get $1 million more than they received last year under the $1.5 billion program of special school aid for welfare and other poor children. The money goes primarily for special reading, math and language instruction.

Whether a state gets more or less is determined by changes in welfare rolls and the costs of education, plus a new formula used for distributing money under Title I of the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act, a government spokesman said.

The program is the largest single source of federal aid to education. U.S. Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland Jr. said Wednesday it also offers the greatest potential for increasing federal aid to nonpublic school children.

Mississippi suffered the sharpest cutback among the 15 states —a loss of nearly $4 million. But close behind were Alabama, $3.6 million; Georgia, $3.7 million; Kentucky, $3.3 million; North Carolina, $3.7 million and Tennessee $3.1 million.

Other losers were Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia.

Many of these states in past years had been assured by law of receiving no less Title I funds than they received the year before; but that federal floor was removed in this year's legislation, the spokesman said.

As a result states with fewer eligible children this year — possibly because of population loss or decreasing welfare rolls —no longer were guaranteed last year's funding level.

Three states that had anticipated losses in the new money bill ended up getting the same amounts as last year: Florida, New Mexico and Wyoming.

California led the list of big gainers, receiving $19 million more for a total allocation of $122 million. The money does not go to states in a lump sum but remains on account for them to draw on during the school year and beyond, if necessary.

Increased welfare rolls or higher education costs, or both, contributed to some states receiving more money this year for needy students.

Other $1 million plus gainers were Colorado, Illinois, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas and the District of Columbia.

Belfast Mob Angered By Death Ruling

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A mob angered by an open verdict in the British army shooting of a deaf mute went on a three-hour rampage Wednesday night and today in the border town of Strabane, an army spokesman said.

As the crowd of 200 persons stoned troops, smashed windows and looted stores, three bombs destroyed or heavily damaged a library, bus depot and gas station, the spokesman said.

In Belfast, troops acting on intelligence information arrested 23 persons in Roman Catholic areas "in connection with terrorist activities" and turned them over to police, the spokesman said.

Police in London raided an empty store and arrested four men and a girl and seized 11 rifles, three automatics and 56 rounds of ammunition. The detectives were investigating Saor Eire, a splinter group of the provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA), police sources said.

The mob action in Strabane, a Roman Catholic town 14 miles south of Londonderry, came after a coroner's inquest Wednesday returned an open verdict in the August shooting of Eamonn McDevitt, 24, a deaf mute.

An open verdict means a coroner's inquest has been unable to find criminal blame for a death and cannot recommend prosecution.

McDevitt was killed by a trooper who said he saw him carrying a gun. Residents said McDivitt did not know how to use a gun and was only waving a used rubber bullet.

Police and troops finally succeeded in dispersing the Strabane crowds in the early morning hours.

Jungle Vine For Thanksgiving Last Year—This Year Turkey

DENVER (UPI) — Last Thanksgiving, S. Sgt. John Sexton Jr. ate a celery-like stalk that grew in the Vietnam jungle. This year the former Viet Cong prisoner will eat turkey and the trimmings with his parents, friends and relatives at the Sexton home in Warren, Mich.

"It's very hard to describe in words. It's something that you want so much in your life while you are a prisoner of war," Sexton said Wednesday.

"It's all that's on your mind —getting back home to see your family."

Sexton was candid about his feelings and said he has some apprehensions about the future.

"Whenever I am in a dark room, like when I go to bed, and there is a real bright light, my mind tends to put me back in my bunker," Sexton said.

He was held prisoner in dark underground bunkers.

While a captive, Sexton said he was able to detach his mind from himself. The feeling still occurs at times, he said.

"Sometimes I find myself placing my food dish between my legs, like I ate in the jungle," he said. "You are not really eating and enjoying your food. It's something you do to exist."

Two Thanksgivings ago, Sexton said he ate a vine with some rice.

"The vine was high in vitamins —not much of a taste —but it helps keep you alive," he said.

Sexton said he asked the Viet Cong many times to help him get rid of his constant, severe headaches. Finally he just gave up.

"I thought I needed some kind of surgery for the Schrapnel wounds in my head," he said, "but doctors now say the shrapnel isn't bothering me."

He can look forward to Thanksgiving this year. Last year the holiday came as a surprise.

"In the afternoon, they had a radio broadcast from Hanoi that said it was Thanksgiving," he said.

He heard it after the banquet of the jungle stalk and rice.

10 To 25 Pct. Pay Hikes Asked

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— State employes should get pay increases ranging from 10 per cent to 25 per cent, the California State Employes Association declared Wednesday at a State Personnel Board meeting.

An association reported noted state employes had received no wage boosts in 1971 although a 5 per cent increase approved by the legislature was vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Contending state wages have lagged behind private industry and local governments, the association said, "State government has failed its employes. It has damaged employe morale—probably at its lowest point in history—and opened the door to potential labor problems, including strikes."

At a news conference, the association's deputy general manager John N. Bailey asserted "salaries have been determined not by facts or prevailing wages but by a political judgment that the state can get away with paying substandard wages.."

Bailey was denied an opportunity to address the board and board spokesman Roy Stephens said that was because there wasn't time on the agenda.

TRIDENT SUSPECT'S LAWYER OBJECTS

Devaney Bail Stays At 'High' $150,000

Is $150,000 bail too steep on a robbery charge, even if the suspect is reputed to be a skilled professional who uses scuba gear, acetylene torches and walkie-talkies?

The answer is "no," Marin Superior Court Judge Henry J. Broderick decided yesterday after mulling the question since Tuesday.

Edward Walter Devaney, 32, of Alamo (Contra Costa County), accused of the robbery of the Trident restaurant in Sausalito Oct. 25, wants the $150,000 bail lowered so that he can get out of Marin County Jail.

His attorney, Spence W. Strellis of Oakland, argued that $150,000 is so high that "it might as well be a million dollars."

"I know he won't run," said Strellis. "He's married and is a homeowner in Alamo."

Deputy Dist. Atty. Joshua W. Thomas was not quite so trusting. Thomas said Devaney and his accused partner, William Ettleman of El Cajon (San Diego County), are suspected leaders of a sophisticated three-state burglary ring that uses walkie-talkies, explosives and acetylene torches.

Devaney is already awaiting trial in San Diego for burglary of a grocery store by use of acetylene torch.

"He (Devaney) faces the possibility of a long prison sentence," said Thomas. "The motivation to flee the jurisdiction would be overwhelming."

Strellis called for a $30,000 bail, but Thomas warned that Devaney might easily raise that amount. "These are two big dealers with lots of money. About $30,000 was taken from the Trident alone," the deputy district attorney pointed out. "And the money has not been recovered."

In refusing to cut bail, the judge explained: "Under all the circumstances, I can't say it is excessive."

Marin Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith set the $150,000 bail when Devaney was arrested on Nov. 11, and the bail was confirmed by Judge Robert A. Smallman on Tuesday before Strellis appealed to Marin Superior Court.

Ettleman, about 50, Devaney's co-defendant, is still under treatment in a San Diego hospital for a heart attack, Strellis reported.

The two are accused of burglary and armed robbery of the Trident, where two employees were handcuffed while three men clad in wetsuits opened a safe with blow torches, taking about $30,000 in weekend receipts.

Others involved have not been caught.

A report of the robbery in the Independent-Journal noting that the robbers were thought to have entered the restaurant from the Bay led a Sausalito resident to furnish a description of a boat he had seen at about the time of the crime. Such a boat was soon located on San Francisco's waterfront and the arrests of Devaney and Ettleman followed.

Fraud Charged To Novato Man

A 21-year-old Novato man was arrested on suspicion of using another person's credit card to defraud, San Rafael police reported.

Howard Earl Rhodd of 1726 Center Road, Novato, was scheduled to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

According to police, Rhodd on Tuesday used the credit card of George Morf of 9 Lido Lane, San Rafael, to purchase gasoline from the Union 76 Station at 360 Third Street, San Rafael. Milton C. Adams, station attendant, then discovered that the credit card had been reported lost.

Agnew Blasts U.N. For Hearty Peking Reception

CHICAGO (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew Wednesday night digressed from a prepared speech to take a verbal pot shot at the United Nations' hearty reception for the Communist Chinese delegation.

Departing from a scathing assessment of behavioral science, the Vice President referred to the arrival of the Communist Chinese delegation at the U.N.

"I understand the United Nations gave Red China a big hand when it denounced the U.S. the other day," he said. "That may be. But that wasn't half as big as the hand the United Nations has had in the pocket of the U.S. taxpayers for the last 26 years."

The comment, made before the Illinois Agriculture Association, met with a stout round of applause from the 1,200 persons in the ballroom audience and another 1,800 viewing the speech on closed circuit television in two other rooms.

In his main speech, Agnew lashed out at behavioral scientists, charging that they are attempting to perform "radical surgery on the national psyche" through new learning techniques used on children.

"Character that was once molded in the home is now more often the product of the classroom and there are some who would like to take it a step further and indoctrinate or condition all pre-school age children from infants on up to kindergarten. They admire the Soviet system in which the state takes over this function from the parents," Agnew said.

Agnew specifically attacked new techniques such as the use of drugs to control behavioral disorders and classroom techniques such as "psycho-drama" in which children act out real life incidents.

Woman Treated After Cars Hits Three Others

A San Anselmo woman was treated at Marin General Hospital today for injuries suffered when the car she was driving struck three parked cars in San Rafael.

Susan Carpenter, 29, of 66 Monterey, suffered facial cuts, the hospital said.

San Rafael police said Mrs. Carpenter was unable to tell them exactly what happened, but the car she was driving about 2:52 a.m. today left a 92-foot long skid mark on Fifth Avenue, near G Street.

Police said her car struck cars owned by Frank W. Donnelly and Janette F. Smith, both of 1712 Fifth Avenue, and Susan I. Disken of 1702 Fifth Avenue.

Agnew specifically attacked new techniques such as the use of drugs to control behavioral disorders and classroom techniques such as "psycho-drama" in which children act out real life incidents.

Woman Treated After Cars Hits Three Others

A San Anselmo woman was treated at Marin General Hospital today for injuries suffered when the car she was driving struck three parked cars in San Rafael.

Susan Carpenter, 29, of 66 Monterey, suffered facial cuts, the hospital said.

San Rafael police said Mrs. Carpenter was unable to tell them exactly what happened, but the car she was driving about 2:52 a.m. today left a 92-foot long skid mark on Fifth Avenue, near G Street.

Oklahoma Fire Sweeps Campus

NORMAN, Okla (UPI)—Fires believed set by an arsonist flared in three points on the University of Oklahoma campus before dawn today, destroying one building and chasing hundreds of students from a dormitory.

"We've had seven with cuts and burn injuries, but I couldn't even count the number of students overcome by smoke," a spokesman at Norman Municipal Hospital said. "The hospital is full of them."

The injuries were at the Walker Tower Dormitory, which houses both male and female students in separate sections. The 700 occupants were evacuated quickly, walking into the chilly night air in various stages of dress. Temperatures were in the lower 40s.

"Arson is definitely a possibility," said field Capt. Joe Hyde of the Norman fire department. "That's just too much coincidence to be spontaneous."

A police dispatcher said fires at the Walker Tower Dormitory and Wilson Center cafeteria were reported at 4:30 a.m. and both were controlled within 15 minutes.

By 5 a.m. an old army Quonset hut at Chesapeake and Lawrence was ablaze. The fire spread to two other barracks buildings before firemen could put it out. One of the buildings was destroyed.

"There was no way to save that one," the dispatcher said. "It went up in minutes. The firefighters had their hands full trying to save the other barracks close to it. They had to wet them all down."

"Someone banged at my door and said there was a fire, but I couldn't hear any bells," said Linda Hargrove, an Edmond, Okla., junior living on the 11th floor of the burning dormitory. "I called police to check and they said to evacuate the building at once."

She said she then began banging on doors to alert her friends, some of them still sleeping.

She was on the elevator when it filled with smoke on the fourth floor.

"It stopped on every floor on the way down, but most people used the stairs," she said. "When it stopped on four we all choked and our eyes were burning. One girl passed out. Most of us had wet wash rags to put over our faces."

Initial damage reports indicated only one room of the Walker Tower suffered extensive damage, but much of the fourth and fifth floors had smoke and water damage. Students returned to their rooms by 6 a.m., except those residing on the fourth floor.

Youths Arrested In Burglary Of Items From Car

Two Santa Rosa youths were arrested yesterday in Rohnert Park on suspicion of burglary.

Booked into Sonoma County Jail were Jerry Robert Soldate, 18, and Ralph Salinas, also 18. Police said they were seen breaking into a car on Avenida Calla yesterday at 2:10 a.m. and were stopped by police 15 minutes later. Officers said a stereo tape deck and tapes reported stolen from the car owned by Marshall Hays were found in their possession.

Police said the youths were also accused of the burglary yesterday of a car owned by Roy A. Bullard, 7595 Beverly Drive, Rohnert Park. They were scheduled for arraignment today in Central Sonoma Municipal Court.

San Jose State Pleads Poverty

SAN JOSE (UPI)—Pleading poverty, San Jose State College said Wednesday it was cancelling its mid-year commencement. There isn't enough money to hire a speaker.

Whether there will be enough money to hire a June commencement speaker is still in question, a spokesman added.

President John J. Bunzel said lecture funds had been stricken from the college budget and college officials said speakers had charged between $1,500 and $2,000 at the last three commencements.

The exercises themselves had cost more than $3,000 each the last three times.

Pesticides And The Sea

FRESNO (UPI) —Oceanographer Jon Lindbergh, the son of famed aviationist Charles Lindbergh, warned Wednesday that pesticide residues, particularly DDT, are damaging the world's great oceans.

In a lecture to the San Joaquin Valley Town Hall, Lindbergh said dumping of sewage, oil spills and careless exploitation were all killing the seas but that infiltration by pesticides which do not easily break down pose the most serious threat.

"While we need pesticides in agriculture, forestry and household use, we need to utilize those chemicals which break down quickly after use," he said. "DDT, for instance, does not break down for decades."

Lindbergh, chairman of the Oceanographic Commission, said comparing oil spills to pesticide pollution is like "comparing a bucket of molasses spilled on the living room rug to arsenic in the well."

Hickel Asks Resources Preserving

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The federal government must revise its priorities to include man's spirit as well as his body, and should form a federal agency to police the use of natural resources, former interior secretary Walter J. Hickel said Wednesday.

"People believe there is no tomorrow," he said. "Someone at the top has to care."

Hickel spoke to the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

"Individuals, industry and government have spent too much time, energy and money on making a living. They have confused free enterprise with a free society. Everything has been used as a market. We should have used people as humans," he said.

He proposed establishment of "a department of natural resources and the environment" to regulate "areas of depleting resources.

"Environmental and social problems can be solved, but to say they can be solved individually or at the local level is a federal government copout."

"Free enterprise allowed to run free will destroy itself," he said.

He cited as an example the whaling industry, which killed 3,000 blue whales a year in the 1930s, but can find only 50 to 100 whales a year now because of the depleted population.

Kennedy Still Leads, But Is Losing Ground

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Maybe California's Democrats are beginning to believe the repeated assurances by Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts that he is not running for the presidency in 1972.

While the latest California Poll released today shows that he is still the favorite for the nomination among the state's Democrats, he lost 6 per cent support between August and November.

Kennedy is first choice of 31 per cent of the Democrats sampled by the poll compared to 37 per cent in August. Sen. Edmund Muskie holds firm at 19 per cent while Sen. Hubert Humphrey has increased to 17 per cent in latest figures, compared to 13 per cent in August.

Others include (with November and August figures) Sen. Eugene McCarthy (9-9), Mayor John Lindsay (8-8), Sen. George McGovern 85-8), Sen. Henry Jackson (3-1), Mayor Samuel Yorty (3-3), Rep. Wilbur Mills (1-1) and Rep. Shirley Chisholm (1-0).

Yorty far and away heads the list among those candidates Democrats "would ... find it most difficult to vote for," drawing 42 per cent in this category. Humphrey was mentioned by 12 per cent and Kennedy by 11 per cent.

In the overall profile of favorable vs. unfavorable impression, the strength of Senator Muskie is seen. He has a favorable impression among 58 per cent of those questioned and unfavorable among 13 per cent.

No other candidate can match the better than 4-1 ratio on the positive side. Senator Kennedy, for instance, is 69-20 and Senator Humphrey 59-23.

Peace Prospects?

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Two top Israeli officials believe prospects for a Middle East peace settlement remain good despite the calls for war from Arab capitals.

Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon and Lt. Gen. Haim Barlev, the Israeli chief of staff, professed optimism in statements yesterday that some agreement could be found with Cairo. But they warned that Israel will win if another war breaks out.

Six-Member Jury Format Is Urged

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) —The Kern County grand jury passed a resolution Wednesday calling for state legislation authorizing six member juries and nonunanimous verdicts in misdemeanor and felony cases.

In a resolution forwarded to the Board of Supervisors and Kern County legislators, the jury said six member juries in certain cases, such as misdemeanor proceedings, and less than unanimous verdicts in criminal cases would result in fewer hung juries and thus less expense for trials.

The resolution suggested that in cases heard by 12-member juries, only 10 votes for conviction or acquittal would be necessary for a verdict. Five jurors of a six-member panel would control the decision.

The jury also urged the Board of Supervisors to support legislation to permit certain organizations to sponsor bingo games.

The resolution urged that bingo be permitted under the auspices of paternal, charitable and tax exempt organizations.

Innocent Plea To Robbery, Assault

John A. Short, 18, of Occidental, pleaded innocent yesterday to charges of rape and armed robbery.

Southern Sonoma Municipal Court Judge Alexander J. McMahon set a preliminary hearing for Dec. 3 at 2:30 p.m. and released Short on his own recognizance.

Short was arrested Monday after a 19-year-old woman said he raped her and took $12 from her purse in a remote area on Lakeville Highway, Petaluma, Sunday night.

THE BUILDING PROBLEM

Trustees In College Cost Fight

Marin Community College District trustees will wrestle one more round — and perhaps two — next week with the problem of building costs.

The board last night adjourned to 7 p.m. Monday in the Science Center, after spending much of the evening threshing out what it would and would not talk about at the Monday session.

The board still is seeking solutions to the roadblock thrown up Nov. 2 when voters refused to pass a $16.7 million bond issue intended for construction of Indian Valley Colleges near Novato and completion of buildings to serve 5,000 students at the Kentfield campus.

The trustees sought "community input" from their citizens advisory committee at a special meeting Tuesday, and will do so again Monday, they agreed last night.

But board president Donald K. Felt said he was not certain that he wanted the board to reach its conclusions at a workshop-style meeting. Dr. John A. Grasham, district superintendent-president, suggested the board could adjourn Monday's meeting to Tuesday, if necessary.

Dale A. Fleming, district planner, explained that the board must make up its mind by Dec. 1 for him to prepare the necessary applications for state building funds for 1973-74. He must be able to tell the state how the college district plans to finance its share of the building program, he noted.

Fleming said he was feeding data into the college computer in order to arrive at a series of alternate building proposals he will present Monday. He brought four ideas Tuesday evening, but the citizens and board were satisfied with none of them.

Trustees agreed that on Monday they will try to decide whether a building tax override will be needed — possibly at the expense of operational programs — and whether the building program should be scaled down, stretched out or whatever.

Both Felt and Trustee Frances Compton expressed reservations about inviting the community to sit in on further review of the alternatives.

"I'm great on listening, but there's got to come a time for the board to work out something," Felt said. "It's very important to be very deferential to the people of the community but it's very difficult for decision making."

At last night's session, the College of Marin Academic Senate presented a resolution urging the trustees to not abandon the building program, and asked the board to remember that the buildings were needed to serve students.

Non-Teacher Wages Are Scaled Upward

Marin Community College District trustees voted 6-to-1 last night to reclassify salary ranges in 23 non-teaching jobs at the college, resulting in pay raises ranging from 2.5 to 7.5 per cent.

The reclassifications and raises will take effect Jan. 1, if wage-price rules permit, according to Dr. John A. Grasham, district superintendent-president. They resulted from a survey of all the district's classified personnel during the summer, to compare their salaries with similar size school districts, other government agencies and private industry, Grasham said.

Trustee Charles R. Best, without explanation, cast the lone negative vote.

Trustee Theodore R. Wellman complained that including Tamalpais High School District classified salaries in the comparison sample "distorted" the figures because the Tam salaries were much higher than other districts. Grasham claimed, however, that the college district must compete with the Tam district to hire employees.

Turning to the wage freeze, Grasham reported the issue still was in limbo for a number of teachers who did not start work until after the Aug. 15 freeze although their contracts dated back to June. He said County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney had advised against lawsuits to force resolution of the issue.

In a few cases where overpayment had been found by the economic preparedness officials, the amounts paid will be deducted from future salaries over a three-months basis, Grasham said.

The Marin Community College Board Also:

REGISTRAR — Appointed George H. Egan, registrar at San Fernando Valley State College, as administrative assistant (registrar) for the district. Egan was selected from among 20 applicants. He will be paid $15,775 a year if the wage-price freeze permits; otherwise $14,810.

LEAVE — Granted history teacher Eduardo Bodipo-Malumba an 18-month leave of absence, beginning Jan. 28, to teach and work with the United Nations at the University of Geneva, Switzerland.

TRIP — Authorized spending up to $575 travel expenses for Indian Valley Colleges staff and a board member to travel to Long Beach to inspect Cypress and Golden West colleges.

LIAISON — Named Grace Mitchell of Novato as community liaison representative to the Indian Valley Colleges. Mrs. Mitchell was co-chairman of the recent unsuccessful election campaign for a $16.7 million college building bond issue.

CLASSROOM CENTER — Accepted architects' recommendations that the Kentfield campus's future classroom center and offices building be built on the site of the present cluster of portable buildings. Trustee Charles W. Gray dissented, favoring having the building straddle Corte Madera Creek.

WIDENING — Postponed action on a contract with the county for widening Sir Francis Drake and constructing a left-turn lane onto College Avenue, to the board's adjourned meeting Monday.

VOCATIONAL PROGRAM — Watched a 30-minute slide presentation on the college's varied vocational courses, by Asst. Dean Joseph Berruezo.

RULES — Eased residence rules for earning an associate's degree from College of Marin, to conform with state law. The new rule will require that a student earn 12 credits at the college, with no specified time limit, in addition to sufficient credits at other schools.

COURSES — Approved 14 new and revised credit courses, including a survey of fantasy and science fiction, turfgrass management and water safety instruction.

HIRINGS — Approved hiring David Ferguson as a laboratory technician at $706 per month for 11 months; Virginia Havel as a temporary replacement for Russell Ridge, on sabbatical leave, and Dr. Helene Fatt to replace Ruth Nash, both in the life sciences department.

RETURN — Approved return of Diane Howell, on sabbatical leave, to replace Paul R. Miller on the faculty at a reduced teaching load of 9 units.

New Zoning Districts Are Sought

Two new zoning districts, one of which would be combined with other zones, were recommended for approval last night by the Sausalito Planning Commission.

Planning director H. Eric Borgwardt said the panel endorsed creation of H (height) and T (transportation) districts. The recommendation will be forwarded to the city council.

The H district would be combined with other zones and would permit the city to limit building heights more stringently than present laws allow.

The T district, Borgwardt said, would be applied to roads, transportation rights-of-way and transit corridors through the city.

In other business, the commission recommended city council approval of a variance to allow Scoma's restaurant, 588 Bridgeway, to increase its seating capacity by 16.

The commission recommended, however, that a requirement for providing four additional off-street parking spaces not be waived, as the restaurant had requested, and Scoma's instead be made to pay the city $8,000 in in-lieu fees.

Influenza Kills 62 In Hungary

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) —Sixty-two persons have died from an influenza epidemic which has affected millions of Hungarians and is spreading west, Health Ministry sources said today.

The deaths involved elderly persons who had previously suffered from heart and blood-circulation troubles, the sources said.

Actress Withers Finally Gets Her Big Bear Chair

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In 1934 when she was a child actress filming "Bright Eyes" with Shirley Temple, Jane Withers admired a chair on the set.

"It was a big chair like a bear, with the bear's head over the headrest and paws on the armrest," she told an employe at Sotheby Park-Benet Wednesday. "I always wanted it for my own."

Sotheby's, conducting a week-long auction of props from Twentieth Century Fox studios, sent a man to rummage among the dusty, old artifacts for Miss Withers, frequently seen now as "Josephine the Plumber" in TV commercials and one of the most active buyers at the auction.

Going once, going twice, sold to the lady with the big smile, one "chair like a bear" for $350.

THE BUILDING PROBLEM

Trustees In College Cost Fight

Marin Community College District trustees will wrestle one more round — and perhaps two — next week with the problem of building costs.

The board last night adjourned to 7 p.m. Monday in the Science Center, after spending much of the evening threshing out what it would and would not talk about at the Monday session.

The board still is seeking solutions to the roadblock thrown up Nov. 2 when voters refused to pass a $16.7 million bond issue intended for construction of Indian Valley Colleges near Novato and completion of buildings to serve 5,000 students at the Kentfield campus.

The trustees sought "community input" from their citizens advisory committee at a special meeting Tuesday, and will do so again Monday, they agreed last night.

But board president Donald K. Felt said he was not certain that he wanted the board to reach its conclusions at a workshop-style meeting. Dr. John A. Grasham, district superintendent-president, suggested the board could adjourn Monday's meeting to Tuesday, if necessary.

Dale A. Fleming, district planner, explained that the board must make up its mind by Dec. 1 for him to prepare the necessary applications for state building funds for 1973-74. He must be able to tell the state how the college district plans to finance its share of the building program, he noted.

Fleming said he was feeding data into the college computer in order to arrive at a series of alternate building proposals he will present Monday. He brought four ideas Tuesday evening, but the citizens and board were satisfied with none of them.

Trustees agreed that on Monday they will try to decide whether a building tax override will be needed — possibly at the expense of operational programs — and whether the building program should be scaled down, stretched out or whatever.

Both Felt and Trustee Frances Compton expressed reservations about inviting the community to sit in on further review of the alternatives.

"I'm great on listening, but there's got to come a time for the board to work out something," Felt said. "It's very important to be very deferential to the people of the community but it's very difficult for decision making."

At last night's session, the College of Marin Academic Senate presented a resolution urging the trustees to not abandon the building program, and asked the board to remember that the buildings were needed to serve students.

Non-Teacher Wages Are Scaled Upward

Marin Community College District trustees voted 6-to-1 last night to reclassify salary ranges in 23 non-teaching jobs at the college, resulting in pay raises ranging from 2.5 to 7.5 per cent.

The reclassifications and raises will take effect Jan. 1, if wage-price rules permit, according to Dr. John A. Grasham, district superintendent-president. They resulted from a survey of all the district's classified personnel during the summer, to compare their salaries with similar size school districts, other government agencies and private industry, Grasham said.

Trustee Charles R. Best, without explanation, cast the lone negative vote.

Trustee Theodore R. Wellman complained that including Tamalpais High School District classified salaries in the comparison sample "distorted" the figures because the Tam salaries were much higher than other districts. Grasham claimed, however, that the college district must compete with the Tam district to hire employees.

Turning to the wage freeze, Grasham reported the issue still was in limbo for a number of teachers who did not start work until after the Aug. 15 freeze although their contracts dated back to June. He said County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney had advised against lawsuits to force resolution of the issue.

In a few cases where overpayment had been found by the economic preparedness officials, the amounts paid will be deducted from future salaries over a three-months basis, Grasham said.

The Marin Community College Board Also:

REGISTRAR — Appointed George H. Egan, registrar at San Fernando Valley State College, as administrative assistant (registrar) for the district. Egan was selected from among 20 applicants. He will be paid $15,775 a year if the wage-price freeze permits; otherwise $14,810.

LEAVE — Granted history teacher Eduardo Bodipo-Malumba an 18-month leave of absence, beginning Jan. 28, to teach and work with the United Nations at the University of Geneva, Switzerland.

TRIP — Authorized spending up to $575 travel expenses for Indian Valley Colleges staff and a board member to travel to Long Beach to inspect Cypress and Golden West colleges.

LIAISON — Named Grace Mitchell of Novato as community liaison representative to the Indian Valley Colleges. Mrs. Mitchell was co-chairman of the recent unsuccessful election campaign for a $16.7 million college building bond issue.

CLASSROOM CENTER — Accepted architects' recommendations that the Kentfield campus's future classroom center and offices building be built on the site of the present cluster of portable buildings. Trustee Charles W. Gray dissented, favoring having the building straddle Corte Madera Creek.

VOCATIONAL PROGRAM — Watched a 30-minute slide presentation on the college's varied vocational courses, by Asst. Dean Joseph Berruezo.

RULES — Eased residence rules for earning an associate's degree from College of Marin, to conform with state law. The new rule will require that a student earn 12 credits at the college, with no specified time limit, in addition to sufficient credits at other schools.

COURSES — Approved 11 new and revised credit courses, including a survey of fantasy and science fiction, turfgrass management and water safety instruction.

HIRINGS — Approved hiring David Ferguson as a laboratory technician at $706 per month for 11 months; Virginia Havel as a temporary replacement for Russell Ridge, on sabbatical leave, and Dr. Helene Fatt to replace Ruth Nash, both in the life sciences department.

RETURN — Approved return of Diane Howell, on sabbatical leave, to replace Paul R. Miller on the faculty at a reduced teaching load of 9 units.

New Zoning Districts Are Sought

Two new zoning districts, one of which would be combined with other zones, were recommended for approval last night by the Sausalito Planning Commission.

Planning director H. Eric Borgwardt said the panel endorsed creation of H (height) and T (transportation) districts. The recommendation will be forwarded to the city council.

The H district would be combined with other zones and would permit the city to limit building heights more stringently than present laws allow.

The T district, Borgwardt said, would be applied to roads, transportation rights-of-way and transit corridors through the city.

In other business, the commission recommended city council approval of a variance to allow Scoma's restaurant, 588 Bridgeway, to increase its seating capacity by 16.

The commission recommended, however, that a requirement for providing four additional off-street parking spaces not be waived, as the restaurant had requested, and Scoma's instead be made to pay the city $8,000 in in-lieu fees.

Reno Arrest Of Man In Forgery

A man wanted in Marin County on suspicion of forgery and petty theft was arrested yesterday in Reno, Nev., and returned to San Rafael.

George D. Beauchamp, 27, no known address, was held in lieu of $3,000 bail to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

According to San Rafael Police, Beauchamp allegedly forged a $300 check at the main branch of the Bank of America in San Rafael on Oct. 17 on the account of Edith M. Denny of Mill Valley.

The Marin County sheriff's office also had a warrant out for him for petty theft. Details of this warrant were not available.

Session Set At Maguire

The Mill Valley School District board has set Monday's regular meeting for 8 p.m. at the Edna Maguire School annex intead of Park School in an attempt to accommodate an expected large turnout.

The board will discuss actions it intends to take in response to a petition signed by more than 1,300 persons in the district questioning innovative and experimental programs and asking for a return to more traditional teaching methods.

Complaints about alleged experimentation without evaluation, a lack of discipline at schools and de-emphasis of academic subjects have been leveled at three special meetings called by the board in response to the petitioners.

Mayor Attacks New Articles

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Mayor-elect Frank L. Rizzo, the city's police commissioner for four years, says a series of newspaper articles charging widespread corruption were a "smear on the whole police department."

The copyright articles, published in the Philadelphia Inquirer this week, were, Rizzo said, "filled with innuendo and very little fact."

"I have read the two articles and I feel that they absolutely should not have been printed," he said.

Thanom Warns Of Executions

BANGKOK (UPI)—Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn said today Wednesday's bloodless coup was designed "to keep Thailand independent." He warned government officials that any action against the national interest could lead to their execution.

Thanom and his new Revolutionary party suspended the Thai constitution, dissolved the cabinet and parliament and imposed martial law throughout this Southeast Asian nation.

U. Alexis Johnson, U.S. undersecretary of state for political affairs and the No. 3 man in the State Department, and U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger met with Thanom and other party leaders at the organization's headquarters today.

Thanom, who keeps his post as prime minister and commander in chief under the new regime, called in 600 government leaders for a meeting today. He told them the coup was "to keep Thailand independent and to maintain and respect the monarchy." He said the coup was necessary because of "the confusing world situation" and also because of internal unrest.

He told the officials that anyone acting against the national interest faces "absolute punishment," which he said could mean execution.

He also mentioned the three million Chinese in Thailand, "We don't know which ideology these people favor," he said. "If they favor communism, the internal situation may get more complicated because of the Communist insurgency in our country."

A broadcast made early this morning said the coup was carried out because "the current world situation and the increasing threat to the national security required prompt action which is not possible through due process of law under the present constitution."

In one of a series of appointments, Thanom named Gen Prapass Charusathiara, former deputy prime minister, as deputy head of the Revolutionary party and as director of military administration. Prapass was considered to be even more politically powerful than Thanom before the coup and apparently maintained his power.

Los Angeles Murderer At Prison

Charles (Tex) Watson, convicted leader of the bloody forays which resulted in the Tate-Labianca slayings, arrived yesterday at San Quentin.

The 25-year-old member of the Manson cult was convicted in Los Angeles of seven counts of murder and one of conspiracy and was sentenced to death in the gas chamber.

Watson, who was described by a prison official as looking "shaggy", was to receive a physical examination at the prison hospital today and then be moved to Death Row in the adjustment center.

Four others have also been sentenced to death for the Tate killings. They are Charles Manson, Leslie van Houten, Susan Atkins and Patricia Krenwinkle.

The robe fits like a sweater and is styled like a coat with an up-to-the-minute fashion expertise that transforms the familiar wrap and tie into an intriguing cover. Clogs for slippers also start the day with a lift.

IN PREGNANCY

Genetic Disorders Can Be Traced

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — No two people (with the exception of identical twins) have the same genes, just as no two people look exactly alike.

Occasionally these differences in genes can produce an abnormal or defective baby, says the California Medical Association. Mentally retarded infants, babies born with malfunctioning hearts, cleft palates, single or multiple pnysical abnormalities (such as missing or deformed fingers, toes, hips, feet, etc.) are sometimes victims of genetic disorders.

These disorders may be hereditary in nature, meaning that one or both parents has passed this kind of gene to the child, or they may be chromosomal in nature, meaning that some damage to the chromosomes, which are the carriers of genes, has occurred during fetal development.

In this case, the risk may not be high that this kind of disorder would show up in subsequent children. Only a physician is qualified to determine these factors, and parents with known genetic disease in their families are advised to seek genetic counseling, the CMA said.

In some cases of genetic disease, such as Down's Syndrome ("mongolism"), the disorder can be either inherited or sporadic. In general, the risk factor in mothers under 30 producing mongoloid infacts is very low — but at age 45 the risk factor increases to a high level, with one infant out of every fifty to sixty being a likely candidate for Down's Syndrome.

WHILE NOT all genetic diseases can be detected in the early weeks of pregnancy, many can. In cases where the likelihood of a seriously defective baby is high, therapeutic abortions can be performed. It is very important, however, that the mother seek this help early in the pregnancy. After 12 weeks of gestation, sample fluid can be extracted and the likelihood of the suspected disease can be ascertained. Physicians feel that beyond 20 weeks of fetal gestation the risk to the mother is too high for abortion to be practical.

Radiation-induced mutations and the effects of drugs on the unborn are other major areas of concern to parents and genetic counselors. Some drugs, such as thalidomide and certain cancer chemotherapeutic agents, are known to cause disorders.

Others, such as LSD, are suspect although no definite medical conclusion has yet been reached on them. Your physician will probably advise you that during the first three crucial months of pregnancy no drugs, other than those specifically prescribed by him, should be taken.

AFTER THE BIRTH of a defective baby the genetic counselor can play a very helpful role in removing errors of thinking from parents and their families. The tendency to "blame" one side of the family or the other in cases of genetic disease is universal.

Even in cases where one parent is the known carrier, such as the female who carries the gene resulting in hemophilia or muscular dystrophy in a male child, there is no cause for blame, the CMA said. Seeing the disorder in perspective as one to which no personal fault should be attached can assist families so that needless emotional problems do not handicap their lives and the lives of their children.

HAPPY DAYS start in a slick body dress, and the carefree feeling can linger into evening for lounging in a step-in dress covered with a zoo full of amusing animals. The dress, designed by Matej Sherko to fill the house with whimsy, has a matching disc belt.

Lady Bird's Parnis Spree

NEW YORK — Former First Lady Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson was here Monday from the Johnson Ranch in Texas for some shopping with designer Mollie Parnis.

Lady Bird bought all Parnis designs, reports Women's Wear Daily — a navy dress with white collar and cuffs, a long, high-necked white lace dress and a mauve dress and matching jacket. For her daughter Luci Nugent she ordered a bright yellow dress.

Mrs. Johnson was in New York while the former president was making a speech on the economic situation at New York University.

Take Up Sewing

Some 40 boys at Aurora Central High School in the Denver, Colo., area have enrolled in a sewing class. The instructor, Carlann Johnson, explained, "They are really interested once they learn how to thread the sewing machine." She said that the boys make simple vests, pants, aprons and neckties, reports Women's Wear Daily.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

How can wives expect to keep their husbands when the "single" life is made so attractive?

Over half the fellows in my husband's place of business are divorced. They live in "singles" apartments and maintain swingin' bachelor pads that naturally turn married men green with envy.

About three-fourths of the still-married men have a little something going on the side. They figure it's their due.

And divorce is so easy these days; if you wake up one morning and think "All this responsibility isn't for me," by evening you can set the wheels in motion to have your marriage dissolved. That goes for women as well as men but, if the woman has children, she isn't so apt to follow her inclinations.

I'm not really worried about my own security — yet; but with all the temptation around — girls throwing themselves at married men, conventions, persuasive high-flyers (male) who poke fun at the "faithful Fenways," the free stuff waiting at bars, etc. — how long will it be before my good faithful husband decides he's missing out on the action? — GETTING MORE WORRIED WITH EACH WRINKLE

DEAR GMWWEW:

'Good, faithful husbands" may dream a bit (as do good faithful wives, right?) but if home fires keep burning extra bright, only their minds wander — usually.

Here's an added thought: if the single life were so action-packed-great, how come divorced men remarry at such a fast clip?

... And I refuse to believe that "three-fourths of all married men" have a little something going on the side. Even our free and easy modern world doesn't offer that much opportunity. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 63, alone, with only one close relative, my brother who is 10 years younger. He lives 600 miles away and is constantly calling me on the phone — only to deal out abuse. If I tell him I'm not well and can't take his meanness, he curses me.

He misconstrues everything I write in my letters, then calls to tell me how worthless I am. He's constantly bringing up old unpleasantness — what happened when we were children, and how our parents always favored me (as if that were my fault!).

He left home 30 years ago, and never once helped with the old folks — I stayed home and cared for them until they passed on. He and his wife visit me once a year and he picks at every little thing until I'm a nervous wreck by the time they leave.

He has a good life — grown children, an executive position. There's no reason for his bad temper. It's as if he enjoys making me cry.

Yet, he's all the family I have, and still my "little brother." Friends say to hang up on him. Is this the only way? — OLDER SISTER

DEAR SISTER:

It's the only way — unless you subconsciously want to be a long-distance punching bag. A woman who has expended most of her life on her family may be programmed to "take it" the rest of her life, so a break won't be easy. But it also may not be permanent: when your brother realizes you'll only listen if he's civil, he might change his tune. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Write to Helen Bottel care of the Independent-Journal.

Some Ideas To Brighten Teen Meals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Milkshakes and babysitting have produced a generation of overweight and undernourished teen-agers, according to nutritionists.

There are gum and candy in the morning, cookies and potato chips in the afternoon, a sandwich, cake, and soda at home after school, and soda and pretzels with homework or TV after dinner — all empty calories, they say.

A proposal by Dr. Ivy Celender, director of General Mills' nutritional service department, has suggested way-out menus to catch the fancy of bored teen-agers:

Breakfast could be hamburger on a bun, chocolate milk, and an orange, perhaps eaten on the run. Tacos made with hamburger, lettuce, tomato, and cheese could be the main lunch dish, along with a banana milk shake and an apple. For dinner there could be cheese pizza, carrot sticks, butterscotch pudding, and cola, and ready-to-eat cereal with milk would make a late evening snack.

Dr. Ruth M. Leverton, top scientific adviser in the Agricultural Research Service, warned against faddish practices like the Zen Macrobiotic diets which are increasingly popular with the young.

The diets are purported to be fashioned after that of Zen Buddhist monks, a claim not substantiated by fact, she said.

The first level of the Zen diet includes cereals, vegetables, fruit, seafoods, and desserts, and need not be inadequate, Dr. Leverton said. But the goal eventually is to omit everything from the diet except cereals, chiefly brown rice, and to avoid fluid intake as much as possible.

Dr. Leverton quoted a warning by the Council on Foods and Nutrition that Zen Macrobiotic diets have been followed by cases of scurvy, anemia, and various forms of malnutrition, as well as loss of kidney function because of the restriction on liquids.

Dollar Stretching

To stretch the meat dollars in your budget plan more large roasts and use some of the meat for sandwiches. Also: pass up chicken parts. Cut up a whole bird. If the price pinch is less, use fish more often.

FACELIFT, CONTACTS, RETAINER

Phyllis Diller's Recycling Herself

DALLAS (UPI)—Phyllis Diller, who usually looks like a sequined peacock on the rampage in her comedy act, is becoming a new woman.

For the past year and a half, she has been wearing retainers on her teeth, has switched to the new "soft" contact lenses and goes to the "fat doctor" once a week. To top it all off, she's getting a face lift in December.

"It's re-cycling," she explained with the shrill laugh that has made her a madcap queen of comedy for 16 years.

She explained that it's both a beauty and health measure, "so I can breathe and so my teeth won't fall off my jaw from malocclusion."

"I'VE GOT to get rid of these bags under my eyes, they make me look tired and I'm not tired," she said. She dug into her second helping at the Fairmont Hotel's buffet line, where she entertained her audience with lines such as "My life is like the sixth day of a five-day deodorant pad — it stinks."

Actually she says she is "gloriously in love" with her second husband, Warde Donovan, a handsome singer and Broadway actor. They have seven children from first marriages; Phyllis has five, ages 21 to 31, and he has two, ages 18 and 23.

"She and Donovan definitely presented a colorful picture at the hotel, she in a multi-colored harlequin robe "made up for re-cycled old costumes" and a triangular feather hat. He had on a patterned coat with a print shirt and silk scarf-tie, all in various shades of pink and brown.

"WHEN I get through with my re-vamp I should be thin, adorable, my nose will be straighter and I can breathe out of both sides instead of one... the only trouble is I won't be able to play any more witches' parts," she kidded.

She said that Dallas residents will get a before-and-after look, since her first date after the face job will be as a concert pianist with the Dallas symphony Dec. 31.

The 54-year-old former housewife got her first big break as a comedienne when she was in her 30s, but as a child she trained to be a concert pianist.

"I decided it was too stodgy for me," she said. "So I gave it up."

But she has added a piano number to her nightclub act—at husband Warde's insistence—and plans to add more. She also plans to add more singing numbers like selections she favors from her "Hello Dolly" musical role.

CONTRARY TO "rumor" that "the police brought me," she said she was born in Lima, Ohio, the only child of an insurance agent and his homemaker wife. She started voice, dance and piano training early in life. ("In high school I was always in the operettas and I always had the funny part.")

She attended Sherwood Music School in Chicago and Bluffton College in Ohio, but she did not graduate because she eloped two months before graduation with Sherwood Diller, a salesman.

The marriage ended in divorce 25 years later. She credits Diller with having talked her into show business but said, "I'm all for this marriage isn't forever thing. It's ideal to be in love and get married and stay married, but to stay in a marriage that's bad is wicked."

A COOKING enthusiast, she plans to start a series called "Kitchen Kween" on syndicated television next fall. She said she doesn't want any more Broadway roles because "There's no money in it. I turned down "Mame" and just did "Hello Dolly" for myself."

She said she wants more time to write, cook and be with her family."

"I'm a terrific cook," she said.

"Isn't she humble?" said her husband.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

DEAR HELEN:

How can wives expect to keep their husbands when the "single" life is made so attractive?

Over half the fellows in my husband's place of business are divorced. They live in "singles" apartments and maintain swingin' bachelor pads that naturally turn married men green with envy.

About three-fourths of the still-married men have a little something going on the side. They figure it's their due.

And divorce is so easy these days; if you wake up one morning and think "All this responsibility isn't for me," by evening you can set the wheels in motion to have your marriage dissolved. That goes for women as well as men but, if the woman has children, she isn't so apt to follow her inclinations.

I'm not really worried about my own security — yet; but with all the temptation around — girls throwing themselves at married men, conventions, persuasive high-flyers (male) who poke fun at the "faithful Fenways," the free stuff waiting at bars, etc. — how long will it be before my good faithful husband decides he's missing out on the action? — GETTING MORE WORRIED WITH EACH WRINKLE

DEAR GMWWEW:

'Good, faithful husbands'' may dream a bit (as do good faithful wives, right?) but if home fires keep burning extra bright, only their minds wander — usually.

Here's an added thought: if the single life were so action-packed-great, how come divorced men remarry at such a fast clip?

. . . And I refuse to believe that "three-fourths of all married men" have a little something going on the side. Even our free and easy modern world doesn't offer that much opportunity. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 63, alone, with only one close relative, my brother who is 10 years younger. He lives 600 miles away and is constantly calling me on the phone — only to deal out abuse. If I tell him I'm not well and can't take his meanness, he curses me.

He misconstrues everything I write in my letters, then calls to tell me how worthless I am. He's constantly bringing up old unpleasantness — what happened when we were children, and how our parents always favored me (as if that were my fault!).

He left home 30 years ago, and never once helped with the old folks — I stayed home and cared for them until they passed on. He and his wife visit me once a year and he picks at every little thing until I'm a nervous wreck by the time they leave.

He has a good life — grown children, an executive position. There's no reason for his bad temper. It's as if he enjoys making me cry.

Yet, he's all the family I have, and still my "little brother." Friends say to hang up on him. Is this the only way? — OLDER SISTER

DEAR SISTER:

It's the only way — unless you subconsciously want to be a long-distance punching bag. A woman who has expended most of her life on her family may be programmed to "take it" the rest of her life, so a break won't be easy. But it also may not be permanent: when your brother realizes you'll only listen if he's civil, he might change his tune. — H.

Some Ideas To Brighten Teen Meals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Milkshakes and babysitting have produced a generation of overweight and undernourished teen-agers, according to nutritionists.

There are gum and candy in the morning, cookies and potato chips in the afternoon, a sandwich, cake, and soda at home after school, and soda and pretzels with homework or TV after dinner — all empty calories, they say.

A proposal by Dr. Ivy Celender, director of General Mills' nutritional service department, has suggested way-out menus to catch the fancy of bored teen-agers:

Breakfast could be hamburger on a bun, chocolate milk, and an orange, perhaps eaten on the run. Tacos made with hamburger, lettuce, tomato, and cheese could be the main lunch dish, along with a banana milk shake and an apple. For dinner there could be cheese pizza, carrot sticks, butterscotch pudding, and cola, and ready-to-eat cereal with milk would make a late evening snack.

Dr. Ruth M. Leverton, top scientific adviser in the Agricultural Research Service, warned against faddish practices like the Zen Macrobiotic diets which are increasingly popular with the young.

The diets are purported to be fashioned after that of Zen Buddhist monks, a claim not substantiated by fact, she said.

The first level of the Zen diet includes cereals, vegetables, fruit, seafoods, and desserts, and need not be inadequate, Dr. Leverton said. But the goal eventually is to omit everything from the diet except cereals, chiefly brown rice, and to avoid fluid intake as much as possible.

Dr. Leverton quoted a warning by the Council on Foods and Nutrition that Zen Macrobiotic diets have been followed by cases of scurvy, anemia, and various forms of malnutrition, as well as loss of kidney function because of the restriction on liquids.

Dollar Stretching

To stretch the meat dollars in your budget plan more large roasts and use some of the meat for sandwiches. Also: pass up chicken parts. Cut up a whole bird. If the price pinch is less, use fish more often.

FACELIFT, CONTACTS, RETAINER

Phyllis Diller's Recycling Herself

DALLAS (UPI)—Phyllis Diller, who usually looks like a sequined peacock on the rampage in her comedy act, is becoming a new woman.

For the past year and a half, she has been wearing retainers on her teeth, has switched to the new "soft" contact lenses and goes to the "fat doctor" once a week. To top it all off, she's getting a face lift in December.

"It's re-cycling," she explained with the shrill laugh that has made her a madcap queen of comedy for 16 years.

She explained that it's both a beauty and health measure, "so I can breathe and so my teeth won't fall off my jaw from malocclusion."

"I'VE GOT to get rid of these bags under my eyes, they make me look tired and I'm not tired," she said. She dug into her second helping at the Fairmont Hotel's buffet line, where she entertained her audience with lines such as "My life is like the sixth day of a five-day deodorant pad — it stinks."

Actually she says she is "gloriously in love" with her second husband, Warde Donovan, a handsome singer and Broadway actor. They have seven children from first marriages; Phyllis has five, ages 21 to 31, and he has two, ages 18 and 23.

"She and Donovan definitely presented a colorful picture at the hotel, she in a multi-colored harlequin robe "made up for re-cycled old costumes" and a triangular feather hat. He had on a patterned coat with a print shirt and silk scarf-tie, all in various shades of pink and brown.

"WHEN I get through with my re-vamp I should be thin, adorable, my nose will be straighter and I can breathe out of both sides instead of one. . . the only trouble is I won't be able to play any more witches' parts," she kidded.

She said that Dallas residents will get a before-and-after look, since her first date after the face job will be as a concert pianist with the Dallas symphony Dec. 31.

The 54-year-old former housewife got her first big break as a comedienne when she was in her 30s, but as a child she trained to be a concert pianist.

"I decided it was too stodgy for me," she said. "So I gave it up."

But she has added a piano number to her nightclub act—at husband Warde's insistence—and plans to add more. She also plans to add more singing numbers like selections she favors from her "Hello Dolly" musical role.

CONTRARY TO "rumor" that "the police brought me," she said she was born in Lima, Ohio, the only child of an insurance agent and his homemaker wife. She started voice, dance and piano training early in life. ("In high school I was always in the operettas and I always had the funny part.")

She attended Sherwood Music School in Chicago and Bluffton College in Ohio, but she did not graduate because she eloped two months before graduation with Sherwood Diller, a salesman.

The marriage ended in divorce 25 years later. She credits Diller with having talked her into show business but said, "I'm all for this marriage isn't forever thing. It's ideal to be in love and get married and stay married, but to stay in a marriage that's bad is wicked."

A COOKING enthusiast, she plans to start a series called "Kitchen Kween" on syndicated television next fall. She said she doesn't want any more Broadway roles because "There's no money in it. I turned down "Mame" and just did "Hello Dolly" for myself."

She said she wants more time to write, cook and be with her family."

"I'm a terrific cook," she said.

"Isn't she humble?" said her husband.

GAS PUMP — Things are not always what they seem, not even in photography, as proved by this life-sized gas pump created by Darryl Curran in the current College of Marin show of new trends in photography.

ART REVIEW

New Trends In Photography Highlighted In College Show

By LAURA DEVENDORF

It used to be said that a photographer merely "recorded" whereas an artist "created." And to dignify a photographer's position by calling him an artist was a "no-no," at least as far as other artists were concerned.

But the argument over how much "creation" is required to make photography art should be laid eternally to rest by new trends in the field, trends which make photography one of the more exciting of all art forms.

Many of these are explored in the "Photo-Genics" exhibit which continues through Dec. 17 at the College of Marin gallery. This is no put-your-eye-to-the-hole-and-snap-the-shutter kind of stuff. Some of it is so technically complex that even the well-versed would have to ask the photographers involved exactly what they did before being certain.

In this exhibit photography is often freed from its usual two-dimensional limits. Several of Darryl Curran's "Gas Pump" series, for example, are free-standing, three-dimensional pump shapes covered with gas pump photos, cloud patterns and figures.

Another method of giving dimension to figures is used by Joanne Leonard, who prints them on cloth and then quilts and sometimes embroiders them on small pillows.

Much like a statement taken out of context, an object enlarged beyond its usual size can seem much different. For example, the strip of 35mm negative multiplied by R. Heinkcken about ten times has a startling effect as do the awkward family album snapshots enlarged by Robert E. Brown even to include the black corner mounts.

Several photographers superimpose images on layers of glass or mirrors. Eilene Cowin shows negatives over old photographs, while Karl Folsom prints repeats or different parts of a scene on several levels of glass, backing them with a mirror which is also imprinted. As you pass by them there is an eerie three-dimensional sense of scenery moving outside a car window, particularly in the ones showing fences, a wooded park and a freeway.

Pieces seemingly unrelated to the photographic process are Eleanor Moty's pendant, necklace and hand mirror. But their chunky rumpled metals do use photographic methods such as copper photo-electroplate.

Not all the work is so experimental. Several photographers concentrate on simple superimposition, as does Edmund Teske, to a meaningful degree with compositions such as the haunting, ghostly face with eyes closed which appears dimly over a photo of workmen tearing down an old building.

Mild or wild, photography just isn't what it used to be and some of the best and most exciting evidence is in this College of Marin exhibit.

Western Victorian Look Eyed

The Larkspur Planning Commission has recommended creating a Western Victorian character in the downtown area.

The suggestion to the city council agreed with the recommendation of the downtown committee of the Larkspur Town Meeting, according to John W. Appleton, city planning director.

He said the proposed special zoning district, discussed at Tuesday's meeting, would include Magnolia Avenue and side streets between Williams Avenue and Doherty Drive.

The Larkspur Planning Commission also:

PARKING — Referred to the city planning consultants, Williams and Mocine, for review revisions in parking regulations including requirements of more spaces per unit in new apartment developments and per office in new medical and dental buildings.

CREEK PRESERVE — Suggested that the parks and recreation commission consider the upper end of Baltimore Canyon for a park after looking at a proposal by J. G. Burke of 25 Monte Vista Avenue to create a nature preserve along the length of Larkspur Creek.

APPEAL CHANGE — Scheduled a public hearing for its next meeting on a proposal to extend the time allowed to file appeals from seven to 15 days.

NEXT MEETING — Cancelled the regularly scheduled meeting of Nov. 23 for lack of a quorum. The next meeting will be either Dec. 7 or Dec. 14, Appleton said.

Ecuador Breaks With China

QUITO (UPI)—Ecuador severed diplomatic relations with Nationalist China Wednesday, a move aimed at opening the way for commercial relations with Communist China.

Foreign Minister Rafael Garcia Velasco had said last week Ecuador's vote for Communist China's admission to the United Nations meant it would break relations with Taiwan, so the government action came as no surprise.

There was no immediate indication that diplomatic relations would be opened with the Peking regime.

GAS PUMP — Things are not always what they seem, not even in photography, as proved by this life-sized gas pump created by Darryl Curran in the current College of Marin show of new trends in photography.

ART REVIEW

By LAURA DEVENDORF

It used to be said that a photographer merely "recorded" whereas an artist "created." And to dignify a photographer's position by calling him an artist was a "no-no," at least as far as other artists were concerned.

But the argument over how much "creation" is required to make photography art should be laid eternally to rest by new trends in the field, trends which make photography one of the more exciting of all art forms.

Many of these are explored in the "Photo-Genics" exhibit which continues through Dec. 17 at the College of Marin gallery. This is no put-your-eye-to-the-hole-and-snap-the-shutter kind of stuff. Some of it is so technically complex that even the well-versed would have to ask the photographers involved exactly what they did before being certain.

In this exhibit photography is often freed from its usual two-dimensional limits. Several of Darryl Curran's "Gas Pump" series, for example, are free-standing, three-dimensional pump shapes covered with gas pump photos, cloud patterns and figures.

Even more dramatically three-dimensional are Inverness artist Ellen Brooks's nudes. Blown up and stretched over bulging figure-suggestive forms they rise in rounded grandeur from a huge bed of sand.

Another method of giving dimension to figures is used by Joanne Leonard, who prints them on cloth and then quilts and sometimes embroiders them on small pillows.

Much like a statement taken out of context, an object enlarged beyond its usual size can seem much different. For example, the strip of 35mm negative multiplied by R. Heinkcken about ten times has a startling effect as do the awkward family album snapshots enlarged by Robert E. Brown even to include the black corner mounts.

Several photographers superimpose images on layers of glass or mirrors. Eilene Cowin shows negatives over old photographs, while Karl Folsom prints repeats or different parts of a scene on several levels of glass, backing them with a mirror which is also imprinted. As you pass by them there is an eerie three-dimensional sense of scenery moving outside a car window, particularly in the ones showing fences, a wooded park and a freeway.

Pieces seemingly unrelated to the photographic process are Eleanor Moty's pendant, necklace and hand mirror. But their chunky rumpled metals do use photographic methods such as copper photo-electroplate.

Not all the work is so experimental. Several photographers concentrate on simple superimposition, as does Edmund Teske, to a meaningful degree with compositions such as the haunting, ghostly face with eyes closed which appears dimly over a photo of workmen tearing down an old building.

Mild or wild, photography just isn't what it used to be and some of the best and most exciting evidence is in this College of Marin exhibit.

Western Victorian Look Eyed

The Larkspur Planning Commission has recommended creating a Western Victorian character in the downtown area.

The suggestion to the city council agreed with the recommendation of the downtown committee of the Larkspur Town Meeting, according to John W. Appleton, city planning director.

He said the proposed special zoning district, discussed at Tuesday's meeting, would include Magnolia Avenue and side streets between Williams Avenue and Doherty Drive.

The Larkspur Planning Commission also:

PARKING — Referred to the city planning consultants, Williams and Mocine, for review revisions in parking regulations including requirements of more spaces per unit in new apartment developments and per office in new medical and dental buildings.

CREEK PRESERVE — Suggested that the parks and recreation commission consider the upper end of Baltimore Canyon for a park after looking at a proposal by J. G. Burke of 25 Monte Vista Avenue to create a nature preserve along the length of Larkspur Creek.

APPEAL CHANGE — Scheduled a public hearing for its next meeting on a proposal to extend the time allowed to file appeals from seven to 15 days.

NEXT MEETING — Cancelled the regularly scheduled meeting of Nov. 23 for lack of a quorum. The next meeting will be either Dec. 7 or Dec. 14, Appleton said.

Ecuador Breaks With China

QUITO (UPI)—Ecuador severed diplomatic relations with Nationalist China Wednesday, a move aimed at opening the way for commercial relations with Communist China.

Foreign Minister Rafael Garcia Velasco had said last week Ecuador's vote for Communist China's admission to the United Nations meant it would break relations with Taiwan, so the government action came as no surprise.

There was no immediate indication that diplomatic relations would be opened with the Peking regime.

Ordinance On Bicycles Supported

The Marin County Council of Mayors and Councilmen last night endorsed a proposed countywide bicycle registration ordinance.

A committee of police chiefs and city managers was named to confer with the county counsel's office to draw up such an ordinance, which could be adopted by the cities and the board of supervisors.

Police chiefs have asked for such an ordinance in order to make tracing of stolen bikes easier.

The council last night also heard a report on Sausalito's proposed noise abatement ordinance, according to Betty Behel, Corte Madera town clerk, who acted as secretary for the meeting.

The council was told that the ordinance is being checked by the city attorney to determine if the section dealing with sound trucks is constitutional. Under the proposed ordinance, police would use a sound meter to ascertain whether noises were above a prohibited level.

The council, which met at Le Tonneau Restaurant in Corte Madera, adjourned to a Dec. 8 meeting at Hamilton Air Force Base's officers club. No business is planned for that meeting which is being held so officials can meet the new base commander.

Broker's Wife Asks Dissolution

The wife of Stephen Kramer, longtime real estate broker in Marin and former Mill Valley planning commissioner, has requested dissolution of their marriage.

Gloria R. Kramer filed a petition yesterday in Marin Superior Court. She said they were married in 1966 in New York and separated last month after five years and nine months. They have no children.

Kramer opened his real estate firm in Mill Valley in 1953 and served on the Mill Valley Planning Commission from 1954 to 1958. He was also a director of the Marin Development Foundation from 1955 to 1957.

Townhouse Proposal Foes, Friends Argue

A proposed Marinwood townhouse development was criticized by opponents today as too dense and incompatible with surrounding homes, while supporters said it would help bolster a scarce housing market for moderate income persons.

Kaiser Aetna Co. plans for the development, at Miller Creek Road and Las Gallinas Avenue, were discussed today on radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board."

James C. Winter, a director of the Marinwood Homeowners Association, and Richard H. O'Brien, a member of the Marinwood Community Services District board, spoke against the project, while Albert Bianchi, attorney for Kaiser Aetna, and Margaret B. Azevedo, a county planning commissioner, endorsed it.

Development plans currently are pending before the county planning commission, which earlier had approved the project but has been ordered by the county board of supervisors to modify it. A total of 145 units originally were proposed, but the figure is now down to 108, and opposing Marinwood residents say they would prefer an even lower density of 62 units.

Although unopposed to townhouse developments and housing provisions for moderate income persons, O'Brien and Winter said Kaiser Aetna's development was too dense for the 18-acre site, would "loom up over the surrounding neighborhood" because of the height of the buildings and provided no buffer to surrounding homes.

While acknowledging the proposed density conflicted with the Marinwood master plan, Mrs. Azevedo noted the project would provide housing that could be purchased by moderate income persons and said it conformed to the aims of the preliminary countywide master plan.

Bianchi, answering a listener's query on why Kaiser Aetna had not proposed single-family homes on the site, said his client felt that homes would consume much of the eight acres proposed as open space under the present plan.

The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be repeated by tape at 10:05 a.m. Sunday.

State To Pay Interest On Unpaid Claims

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation requiring the state to pay interest on unpaid claims against it by local public agencies and private persons has been signed into law by the governor.

The measure, SB 1053 by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, was introduced at the request of the Marin County Board of Supervisors. Similar measures by other legislators in previous years never even cleared committee.

Marin County and many other local agencies often wait months for the state to pay their back claims. Interest, at 6 per cent, would be paid starting 60 days after a claim was filed. The new law also imposes the interest on unpaid claims by the state against local public agencies.

U.S. Road Grant For Petaluma

A federal grant of $421,000 has been approved for construction of a Highway 101 overpass at Rohnert Park.

Rep. Donald H. Clausen, R-First District, told Mayor Warren K. Hopkins that the federal Economic Development Administration grant has been approved, although official notice may not be received for several days.

The grant will assist the city in the long-awaited overpass project designed to provide better access to the freeway for Sonoma State College and open up new areas for industrial and commercial development.

The grant represents one-half of the project's estimated cost. The state highway commission is expected to provide the remaining funds needed. Hopkins said he hoped construction could begin in the spring.

60,000 GIs May Leave Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says a Senate subcommittee has voted to remove 60,000 U.S. troops from Europe by June 15.

Laird said the action was taken Wednesday in the Senate Defense Appropriations subcommittee and was "reckless" because negotiations were planned soon with the Warsaw Pact nations.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., the subcommittee chairman, refused to discuss Laird's statement.

Teacher Tenure Bill Is Voted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Assembly has approved legislation giving community college teachers tenure after two years but allowing them to be fired without cause during their first year of employment.

The bill by Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento, was sent to the Senate for concurrence in Assembly amendments Wednesday on a 42-11 vote.

Mental Aid Board Maps Priorities

The Marin Mental Health Advisory board last night gave priorities to five expensive suggested programs that probably will not be funded, according to its president.

Peter W. Palmer said the board gave priorities to five programs for 1972-73 with an estimated cost of $639,000. The list, if approved by the Marin board of supervisors, will be forwarded to the state Department of Mental Hygiene.

However, Palmer said, "It is very unlikely that we will get any money."

The programs in order of priority are: a $30,000 mental health project aimed at Marin City, a $114,000 program aimed at preventing and detecting mental problems in children, a $75,000 day program for mentally retarded adults, a drug and alcohol abuse program with a $308,000 price tag, and a $112,000 senior citizen program, Palmer said.

The priority list was developed so the state will know local preferences when considering new programs, according to Dr. John S. Guerrant, director of the Marin Community Mental Health Center.

Ordinance On Bicycles Supported

The Marin County Council of Mayors and Councilmen last night endorsed a proposed countywide bicycle registration ordinance.

A committee of police chiefs and city managers was named to confer with the county counsel's office to draw up such an ordinance, which could be adopted by the cities and the board of supervisors.

Police chiefs have asked for such an ordinance in order to make tracing of stolen bikes easier.

The council last night also heard a report on Sausalito's proposed noise abatement ordinance, according to Betty Behel, Corte Madera town clerk, who acted as secretary for the meeting.

The council was told that the ordinance is being checked by the city attorney to determine if the section dealing with sound trucks is constitutional. Under the proposed ordinance, police would use a sound meter to ascertain whether noises were above a prohibited level.

The council, which met at Le Tonneau Restaurant in Corte Madera, adjourned to a Dec. 8 meeting at Hamilton Air Force Base's officers club. No business is planned for that meeting which is being held so officials can meet the new base commander.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

This Hand Separates The True Expert From Successful Player

Thousands of the best bridge players of North America will begin play tomorrow in Phoenix in the national bridge tournament, but they aren't all equally skillful. Some of them will put themselves to the guess instead of rising above mere guesswork. The sort of hand shown today is never misplayed by the true experts but is often mishandled by quite successful tournament players.

LOW HEART

West opens the five of hearts, and East puts up the king. I blush to report that many a successful tournament player would win the first trick with the ace of hearts. This play cannot gain, but may lose.

South is sure of two hearts and four diamonds, so needs three tricks in the black suits. South must knock out both of the black aces, and his contract depends on guessing which ace to knock out first.

If South begins with the spades, East takes the ace of spades at once and leads his other heart. South cannot gain by refusing the trick, for West will overtake and return a third heart to force out the queen.

South cannot make nine tricks without the clubs, but as soon as South leads a club, West steps up with the ace of clubs to defeat the contract with the hearts.

GOOD GUESS WORKS

South can make his contract by a good guess. If declarer leads clubs first, West can take the ace of clubs but then has no further entry for the hearts.

How does South know that he must lead clubs before spades? There is no sensible way. South makes his contract only if he is a good guesser.

Declarer can make his contract without guessing if he refuses the first heart trick. East leads another heart, and South wins with the queen.

SOUTH IS SAFE

Now South is safe no matter which black ace he knocks out. If South leads spades, East cannot continue the attack on hearts. South therefore has time to develop the clubs while he still has the ace of hearts to stop the long suit.

If South leads clubs first, West can set up his hearts, but he cannot regain the lead to take his heart tricks.

FIDEL'S FATIGUED

Cuban premier Fidel Castro is tired and he shows it by resting his forehead in his hands as he waits to address workers at a state steel refinery in Huachipato, Chile. He's been making an extensive tour of the South American country and keeping up a gruelling pace, playing and talking.

Persian Rug Auction

SUNDAY NOV. 21 - 1:00 P.M.
PREVIEW FROM 11:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M.
CORTE MADERA RECREATION CENTER
(Take Larkspur Exit then West on Tamalpais)

Due to the recent dock strike, over 1000 Rugs have been consigned to W. J. Gilbert for immediate sale. There will be a great variety of Rugs & Colors, including runners, small & large room size Rugs, prayer & silk Rugs.

Oriental Rugs are blooming anew. The disciplined, yet graceful design of Oriental Rugs gives a room the feel it otherwise lacks. The muted colorings of Oriental Rugs blend with most color schemes, be it traditional or modern.

The beauty of Oriental Rugs increases with age. Applied to wools of fine texture, the colors derived from vegetable or animal dyes grow more mellow with the passing years and acquire a luster and softness comparable to the colors of an autumn day.

As centuries have passed, the appreciation and value of Oriental Rugs have continued to rise as it would for any field of art. The Persian carpet has commonly been referred to as the stocks and bonds of Iran (Perisa) and since time began, they have proven to be valuable stocks for those who possess them.

Inspect these fabulous floor coverings of heirloom quality, richly beautiful, each a sample of the dying craft of hand weaving. Come early this Sunday (the public inspection begins at 11 A.M.). Then take advantage of the auction which begins at 1:00 P.M. in the Corte Madera Recreation Ctr., and remember that this auction will represent considerable savings to you for these prized possessions which will grow in value.

Each rug is sold to the highest bidder. There is no minimum price which must be reached to complete a sale. You, or any member of the auction audience open the bidding and control the sale. It is this fair procedure of auciton practice, together with the established authority of your host, W. J. Gilbert, which have earned the respect and successful acceptance by the public of Mr. Gilbert's Oriental Rug auctions such as the event Sunday evening at the Corte Madera Recreation Center.

And remember that all rugs sold by Mr. Gilbert may be traded in at full value for 5 years.

5 Viets On Tour In Petaluma

Five touring South Vietnamese officials took a first look yesterday at the operations of local government — Petaluma style.

The men, members of the Urban Administrative Leadership Team of Vietnam, made their first stop in Petaluma as a part of a month-long tour that also will take them to Southern California, Texas, Arizona and Hawaii.

The visitors included Le Van Them, deputy province chief of Dinh Tuong; Mguyen Ngoc Vy, Deputy mayor of Can Ranh City; Ho Van Diep, deputy province chief of Bac Lieu; Vo Tam Vinh, deputy province chief of Binh Long; and Le Van Toan, deputy mayor of Vung Tau.

The five listened without comment to a string of speeches by Petaluma officials — the visitors speak no English.

They were accompanied by a Vietnamese interpreter and Laurence Williams, field manager from the State Department. Williams said the men will observe governmental operations in various-sized American cities and return with the information to Vietnam where it is hoped they can play a role in government leadership as the country grows independent of American advisors.

The team spent the morning at Petaluma city hall where they were greeted by Mayor Helen Putnam and four councilmen. Each welcomed the group, gave personal histories and their reasons for seeking election to the council.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer and City Atty. Edouard E. Robert explained the operations of the city and along with other department heads led the group on a tour of the city and its facilities.

The tour included the police station, fire stations, water pollution control plant, parks, swimming pool, schools, Petaluma plaza shopping center, new subdivisions and other residential sections of the city.

They also were honored at a luncheon at Sonoma Joe's restaurant where they were greeted by Sonoma County supervisor Philip L. Joerger and representatives of state Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, and Rep. Donald H. Clausen, R-First District.

Supermarkets today carry anywhere from 2,000 to 10,000 different items.

SEWER PROJECT STARTS

A 24-inch section of liner pipe is hoisted from a truckbed in preparation for installation as part of San Rafael's $1.4 million sewer reconstruction project. Work on the $534,592 first phase of the project began Friday on Hetherton Street between Mission Avenue and Second Street. Norris M. Rawles, San Rafael director of public works, said the sewer work on city streets will be halted next Wednesday through the Christmas Holiday season, so as not to interfere with traffic. The project will proceed during that time with work on easements through offstreet property.

VIEWS HELD SELFISH

Lagoon Residents Are Assailed

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A Marin County park and recreation commissioner assailed West Marin residents yesterday for what he termed their "selfishness" in trying to stop outsiders from enjoying scenic Bolinas Lagoon.

Commissioner Leroy M. Gerner said demands from some Bolinas and Stinson Beach residents that development around the bay be prohibited was "being unfair and completely selfish."

His comments came during the parks and recreation commission's afternoon meeting which included a third hearing on the preliminary Bolinas Lagoon Plan.

As proposed by Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, the plan envisions parking areas, observation points, picnic areas and pedestrian paths scattered around the picturesque lagoon.

At the two earlier meetings, held in West Marin, residents called for no "tourist-oriented" development and proposed banning all parking along Highway 1 and prohibiting visitor traffic around the lagoon.

Opposition to any development was voiced again yesterday and prompted the criticism from Gerner who said he had remained silent long enough.

"It's not right to tell everyone else in California that only people in Bolinas can enjoy the Lagoon," he said sternly. "You people have to consider other people . . . It's a beautiful area for everyone to enjoy."

(Last week about 100 residents of Bolinas and Stinson Beach persuaded the county planning commission to junk the 1961 master plan for the area. They complained that it proposed too much development.)

Gerner's position was supported by Commissioner Merritt A. Robinson, who said that under Joske's proposal educational centers consisting of simple displays will be provided. "In most instances, mankind only acts against nature through ignorance," he concluded.

"The plan allows preservation of the lagoon and still allows people to enjoy it," concurred commission chairman Albert J. Boro.

Earlier in the hearing, the plan was attacked as encouraging destruction both of the lagoon and the rural way of life in the sister communities.

Peter Warshell, an ecologist with Bolinas Future Studies, criticized parts of the plan as proposing parking areas, picnic grounds and a new road at the Pine Gulch Creek area which is used as a resting spot for shore birds.

Suggesting no cars be allowed into downtown Bolinas, he said residents opposed their community "becoming a tourist attraction."

"The attitude of most residents is to keep people from the town," he said, calling for some form of tourist mass transit.

Ann Tartaul, a West Marin resident and member of the Sierra Club, said the plan's assumption of controlling visitors by offering facilities was "self-defeating."

She said the only way to keep the lagoon's ecological balance as well as that of the surrounding area was to keep people away.

Just as the conservationist-isolationist's proposals were labeled "too extreme" by the commission, proposed dredging of the lagoon by proponents of greater development also were winced at by the commission.

A proposal from the California Marine Parks and Harbors Association —described by one conservationist as a lobby group for boating enthusiasts — that the mouth of the lagoon be dredged to provide a "safe harbor" for storm endangered vessels brought criticism from Commissioner Polly Smith.

She said such action would simply open up the quiet lagoon to year-round pleasure boating by power craft.

A proposal from William Kent, developer of the Seadrift subdivision in Stinson Beach that the lagoon be dredged to provide proper water circulation necessary to sustain marine life also raised eyebrows.

One member of the audience said the proposal was suggested so that Kent could provide boating facilities for subdivision residents.

At the end of the hearing, which heard other support and opposition to the lagoon plan, Joske made a concession to conservationists in recommending elimination of much of the parking and picnicking development at Pine Gulch Creek. The area would, however, have a pedestrian path and observation platform, he said.

The commission, which expressed support for the plan and proposed revision, continued the matter to its December meeting for adoption.

Joske said he hoped to have the plan before the county planning commission in Janury and the board of supervisors in February.

North Marin Water Voters May Face April Bond Attempt

The North Marin Water District board may place another bond proposal before voters next April or June to finance facilities to deliver Russian River water, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

A $1.6 million bond measure on the Nov. 2 ballot failed to get the needed two-thirds vote.

The Marin Municipal Water District's bid to join the proposed aqueduct also was defeated, and the aqueduct is a dead issue at present, Churchill said.

Board members contemplated their next move toward getting delivery of Russian River water at their Tuesday night session, Churchill said.

The North Marin District has been receiving some Russian River water through the current line, but a larger line is needed so it can be assured of delivery of the entire 10,000-acre feet a year.

The Sonoma Agency is proceeding with plans to increase facilities, and under a 1960 agreement the North Marin District and Petaluma are obligated to share in the cost of a line from the river to Cotati, Churchill said.

Directors learned that the district does not need financing for the line until next summer, so they will have time to review the plans and "perhaps — present a bond measure to voters in April or June," he said.

The district had planned to use the $1.6 million from the November bond measure and $1.29 million in previously authorized bonds for a new line.

Churchill said he didn't know how much money would be required under the Sonoma Agency's new plan but expected that it would be higher than $3 million.

The North Marin County Water District board also:

FAREWELL — Bade farewell to two longtime members, Emil Renati, who had been on the board 16 years, and Arnold Heise, 14 years, who didn't seek reelection, and who were attending their last session as board members.

METERS — Received a report from Churchill that due to errors in meter readings, mainly in West Novato, some consumers will be overcharged, but the over charges will be corrected in the next billing.

ACCOUNTING — Authorized a computer program for accounting procedures with the county at a cost of $2,800 for the first two stages with director George A. Amaroli dissenting.

REORGANIZATION — Adjourned until Dec. 7 at 8 p.m. at the district office, 999 Atherton Avenue, for a reorganizational meeting when newly elected directors Patrick Heffernan and William W. Wright, and reelected director Franklin Gustafson will be seated.

Dissolution For Pfeiffers

John C. Pfeiffer, former member of the San Rafael Board of Education, and his wife Mary Curtis have been granted a dissolution of their marriage in Marin Superior Court.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson granted the dissolution Tuesday on grounds of irreconcilable differences.

Pfeiffer, an executive with a San Francisco management consulting firm, served on the San Rafael Board of Education until last April.

Water District Candidate Backs Central County Agency Concept

Halsey H. Lyon of Sleepy Hollow, candidate for a vacant seat on the Marin Municipal Water District board, yesterday supported the concept of a central county agency handling water supply and sewage treatment.

Lyon, who was interviewed by district directors, also envisioned future merger of public utilities, including Pacific Gas and Electric Co., on at least a regional basis. He foresaw a "total conservation and energy program in the long run."

The consolidation question, which has drawn mixed reaction from officials of Marin utilities, was raised as the water district board completed interviews with 11 persons vying for the seat vacated by Ray W. Foreaker Jr., now county public works director.

The board interviewed 10 of the candidates last week, scheduling yesterday's adjourned meeting because Lyon was out of town on business. He is president of Diesel Systems Inc. in San Rafael and a former Sausalito Chamber of Commerce president.

In other remarks, Lyon sided with the other candidates in opposing a notion that the district should act to control population growth, and said he thought water reclamation probably was in the district's future. He said, however, that the public would have to be sold on the reclamation idea.

The board is scheduled to select Foreaker's successor at its Nov. 23 meeting.

Package Sewer Treatment Suggested For Bolinas

A Marin County supervisor has recommended the community of Bolinas solve its sewage problems with purchase of a "package sewage treatment plant."

In a letter to the Bolinas Public Utility District this week Supervisor Louis H. Baar said: "It would appear . . . this type of system could provide a tremendous benefit to your area . . ."

The package plant, sold by a number of firms, is a relatively small treatment unit which can be trucked in and then placed in the ground.

According to William L. Desmond, county director of environmental health, the system would be adequate if properly installed and maintained.

Desmond said he could not give an exact figure of cost, but estimated a plant for Bolinas would run about $250,000.

That figure does not include improvement or replacement of the old collection system now serving the seaside community, he said.

The district, whose plans for an $8.1 million waste disposal system were killed last month when the state withdrew promised support, is under orders to stop dumping raw sewage into Bolinas Lagoon.

That system would have included service to the community of Stinson Beach. Baar's proposal mentions nothing of service to Stinson Beach.

Under the original $8.1 million proposal, the joint treatment plan would have cost about $700,000 with the rest going for pumping facilities and a collection system.

Desmond said he could not estimate, nor did Baar's letter indicate, the cost of a collection system for the "package plant."

However, Desmond said it would be expensive since the old downtown sewer lines would probably have to be replaced or 90 per cent repaired.

He said the "package plant" could not handle extensive infiltration of water into collection lines overburdening its capacity.

The plant, which can be constructed to any size desired, would probably be about 15 by 20 feet in size, he said, adding several Marin County subdivisions now use plants as does the Synanon community in Marshall.

Mailliard Backs Transportation For Seashore

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Formation of a citizens advisory committee on transportation for Point Reyes National Seashore and the proposed Golden Gate National Recreation Area has won the support of Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District.

Its formation was proposed in September by Joseph C. Rumburg Jr., director of the western region for the National Park Service.

Mailliard, in a letter to Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton, said "the people of Marin should be consulted and represented by a citizens advisory committee."

Torture Toys Measure Voted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The California Senate without debate has passed a bill outlawing toys designed to depict torture or resemble a bomb or hand grenade.

The measure by Assemblyman John J. Burton, D-San Francisco, was sent Wednesday on a 24-2 vote to the Assembly for concurrence in amendments. Republican Sens. H.L. Richardson of Arcadia and Clark L. Bradley of San Jose cast the dissenting votes.

SEWER PROJECT STARTS

A 24-inch section of liner pipe is hoisted from a truckbed in preparation for installation as part of San Rafael's $1.4 million sewer reconstruction project. Work on the $534,592 first phase of the project began Friday on Hetherton Street between Mission Avenue and Second Street. Norris M. Rawles, San Rafael director of public works, said the sewer work on city streets will be halted next Wednesday through the Christmas Holiday season, so as not to interfere with traffic. The project will proceed during that time with work on easements through offstreet property.

VIEWS HELD SELFISH

Lagoon Residents Are Assailed

By ERIK M. INGRAM

A Marin County park and recreation commissioner assailed West Marin residents yesterday for what he termed their "selfishness" in trying to stop outsiders from enjoying scenic Bolinas Lagoon.

Commissioner Leroy M. Gerner said demands from some Bolinas and Stinson Beach residents that development around the bay be prohibited was "being unfair and completely selfish."

His comments came during the parks and recreation commission's afternoon meeting which included a third hearing on the preliminary Bolinas Lagoon Plan.

As proposed by Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director, the plan envisions parking areas, observation points, picnic areas and pedestrian paths scattered around the picturesque lagoon.

At the two earlier meetings, held in West Marin, residents called for no "tourist-oriented" development and proposed banning all parking along Highway 1 and prohibiting visitor traffic around the lagoon.

Opposition to any development was voiced again yesterday and prompted the criticism from Gerner who said he had remained silent long enough.

"It's not right to tell everyone else in California that only people in Bolinas can enjoy the Lagoon," he said sternly. "You people have to consider other people . . . It's a beautiful area for everyone to enjoy."

(Last week about 100 residents of Bolinas and Stinson Beach persuaded the county planning commission to junk the 1961 master plan for the area. They complained that it proposed too much development.)

Gerner's position was supported by Commissioner Merritt A. Robinson, who said that under Joske's proposal educational centers consisting of simple displays will be provided. "In most instances, mankind only acts against nature through ignorance," he concluded.

"The plan allows preservation of the lagoon and still allows people to enjoy it," concurred commission chairman Albert J. Boro.

Earlier in the hearing, the plan was attacked as encouraging destruction both of the lagoon and the rural way of life in the sister communities.

Peter Warshell, an ecologist with Bolinas Future Studies, criticized parts of the plan as proposing parking areas, picnic grounds and a new road at the Pine Gulch Creek area which is used as a resting spot for shore birds.

Suggesting no cars be allowed into downtown Bolinas, he said residents opposed their community "becoming a tourist attraction."

"The attitude of most residents is to keep people from the town," he said, calling for some form of tourist mass transit.

Ann Tartaul, a West Marin resident and member of the Sierra Club, said the plan's assumption of controlling visitors by offering facilities was "self-defeating."

She said the only way to keep the lagoon's ecological balance as well as that of the surrounding area was to keep people away.

Just as the conservationist-isolationist's proposals were labeled "too extreme" by the commission, proposed dredging of the lagoon by proponents of greater development also were winced at by the commission.

A proposal from the California Marine Parks and Harbors Association —described by one conservationist as a lobby group for boating enthusiasts — that the mouth of the lagoon be dredged to provide a "safe harbor" for storm endangered vessels brought criticism from Commissioner Polly Smith.

She said such action would simply open up the quiet lagoon to year-round pleasure boating by power craft.

A proposal from William Kent, developer of the Seadrift subdivision in Stinson Beach that the lagoon be dredged to provide proper water circulation necessary to sustain marine life also raised eyebrows.

One member of the audience said the proposal was suggested so that Kent could provide boating facilities for subdivision residents.

At the end of the hearing, which heard other support and opposition to the lagoon plan, Joske made a concession to conservationists in recommending elimination of much of the parking and picnicking development at Pine Gulch Creek. The area would, however, have a pedestrian path and observation platform, he said.

The commission, which expressed support for the plan and proposed revision, continued the matter to its December meeting for adoption.

Joske said he hoped to have the plan before the county planning commission in Janury and the board of supervisors in February.

North Marin Water Voters May Face April Bond Attempt

The North Marin Water District board may place another bond proposal before voters next April or June to finance facilities to deliver Russian River water, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

A $1.6 million bond measure on the Nov. 2 ballot failed to get the needed two-thirds vote.

The Marin Municipal Water District's bid to join the proposed aqueduct also was defeated, and the aqueduct is a dead issue at present, Churchill said.

Board members contemplated their next move toward getting delivery of Russian River water at their Tuesday night session, Churchill said.

The North Marin District has been receiving some Russian River water through the current line, but a larger line is needed so it can be assured of delivery of the entire 10,000-acre feet a year.

COUPE

$625

This little Opel sport coupe in baby blue with bucket seats would make the perfect 2nd or 3rd car for some Marin family with teen-agers.

Built in Germany by General Motors and distributed in the US by Buick — we sold this car new in '66 to local family and have taken back on another new Opel.

We've just gone through the engine on this clean little Opel — so you should drive trouble-free for quite awhile. Over 25 miles-per-gallon of gas.

Adulthood-At-18 Bill Wins Senate Nod In Close Vote

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate has voted to lower the age of adulthood from 21 to 18 and impose the responsibility of serving on juries, working as policemen and signing contracts on youths. But they still won't be able to drink alcohol.

The vote on the measure by Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades, was 22-18: It was returned to the lower house for concurrence in amendments.

Sen. Arlen Gregorio, upper house sponsor, said now that they have the vote, 18-year-olds should also be given adult privileges.

He said this would include jury duty, contract signing, working as policemen, firemen and even becoming licensed to carry a machine gun.

In the case of young men age 18, 19, and 20, they could also get married without parental consent, which they now must obtain. Women are free to marry at age 18.

A proposed constitutional amendment lowering the drinking age from 21 to 18 is pending in the Senate. If approved, it would be submitted for ratification or rejection next year.

One other major revision of the bill would cut off child support payments at 18. But support orders issued prior to the measure's effective date would have to be paid to the child's 21st birthday.

Fifteen Democrats joined by seven Republicans voted for the bill and 10 Republicans and one Democrat opposed it. It required 21 votes for passage and got 22.

Major School Funding Bill Is Killed By Panel In Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The legislature's last major school financing bill has been killed in an Assembly committee, apparently cutting off all hope this year for extra money for California's public schools.

The measure and other proposals to increase funds to schools were waylaid by a general feeling among legislators that the problem of school financing should be put off until the 1972 session because of the state Supreme Court decision in August.

The court held that California's system of financing schools was unconstitutional because it relied too heavily on local property taxes, thus unfairly penalizing children in poorer school districts.

The last bill, killed Wednesday, would have provided an additional $300 million annually in state school aid beginning next July.

The measure was taken under submission by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee at the request of its author, Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento.

According to his office, Rodda withdrew the bill because he feared the committee would not approve it in the light of other legislative actions defeating school financing bills since the Supreme Court decision.

The senator's bill would have increased state support from $279 to $350 a student annually and guaranteed cost-of-living boosts in state aid.

In addition to Rodda's proposal, three other school financing measures have died in legislative committees since the Supreme Court decision despite the declaration last May by Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, that "the schools are in chaos."

"They are on the verge of financial collapse," Riles said. "Teachers are being laid off. Classes are larger. Some districts are broke."

Contributing to the demise of the school bills were Gov. Ronald Reagan's statement that he was "unalterably opposed" to any new state spending that would require a tax increase, an impasse on agreement on a major tax package, including property tax relief, and mounting pressure for adjournment within a week or two.

Reagan did propose, as part of an overall tax package, a half-cent sales tax increase to raise $250 million annually for schools. Negotiations on the package broke down over disagreement over its other elements.

Henderson Held Probing Massacre

Ft. MEADE, Md (UPI) —An officer who served in Vietnam at the time of the My Lai massacre testified today he heard Col. Oran K. Henderson instruct a subordinate to formally investigate reports of slaying of unarmed civilians.

Lt. Col. Donald J. Vest, who was supply officer in Henderson's brigade, appeared as the 31st defense witness at Henderson's court martial trial on charges of failing to make a full inquiry into the My Lai affair.

Vest said that some time after the assault on the village on March 16, 1968, he walked by a briefing tent and "heard this conversation ... I think it was Col. Henderson talking with Col. Barker, I think it was Col. Barker."

The witness referred to Col. Frank Barker, who commanded the My Lai task force and was killed in a helicopter crash about three months after the operation.

Vest said Henderson normally was a calm man, but that the conversation he overheard "got to the fingerpointing stage." He said Henderson told the man he remembered to be Barker: "I want you to conduct a formal investigation of this because I want to know just where the hell we stand."

Thieu Economic Plan Attacked

SAIGON (UPI)—A group of opposition senators attacked President Nguyen Van Thieu's new economic plan today and said the South Vietnamese economy is collapsing.

Sen. Vu Van Mau, spokesman for the 15-man opposition block in the 59-member senate, said, "Thieu has betrayed the Vietnamese people and is forcing them to more poverty."

At least 70 members of the 159-man lower house expressed dissatisfaction Tuesday with the new economic measures announced by the government the day before.

Minor Injuries As Truck Strikes Pole

A Black Point woman received minor injuries at 7:20 p.m. yesterday when her westbound truck ran off Highway 37 at Atherton Avenue and struck a utility pole, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Phyllis T. Greer, 45, of 275 Channel Drive, was treated at Novato General Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Bagley Revives Measure On Forcing Student Fees

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Reversing a previous vote, the Assembly has approved legislation allowing imposition of a $15 student fee to finance football and other activities at Sonoma State College, which has no student government.

The bill, which had been defeated in September and relegated to the inactive file, was resurrected Wednesday and passed on a 41-20 vote.

It was brought to life by Assemblyman William Bagley, R-San Rafael, despite objections by Assemblyman William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, that it would circumvent the desires" of Sonoma State students who voted student government out of existence.

Under the bill, state college trustees could levy up to a $15 fee for extracurricular activities if a majority of the students approved.

It would apply to any state college, but currently Sonoma State is the only one without a student government.

Opponents of the measure by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, argued, that the bill would effectively bar student lobbyists from all state colleges from working for or against measures in the capitol.

Before it came up for a vote Wednesday, it was amended to include a provision which Assemblyman Frank Murphy, R-Santa Cruz, said could destroy the effectiveness of student lobbyists.

It barred the use of student funds to support "any political issue" but said that the funds could be used to support "governmental affairs representatives" of the students in Sacramento.

'Nothing Further To Say,' U.S. Tells Hanoi In Paris

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter cut short today's session of the Vietnam peace talks after telling the Communists the United States has "nothing further to say" until it receives what he called a "constructive reply" to American proposals.

Porter, in an abrupt switch in American tactics coinciding with the return of chief Hanoi negotiator, Xuan Thuy, read a 23-word statement, then sat back and listened to the usual Viet Cong and North Vietnamese diatribes against President Nixon's Vietnamese policies.

When they had finished attacking Nixon's Friday statements on more troop withdrawals, Porter stated:

"There is nothing new in your statements today. You are using the same stale material I have heard since my arrival here. I have no further comment and propose adjournment."

Porter then proposed that the 137th session be postponed until Dec. 2 because of the American Thanksgiving holiday next Thursday and "to give you time to reflect on your position." The Communist side agreed and the negotiating teams left the chamber.

In his 23-word formal statement, Porter said about the same thing:

"Ladies and Gentlemen, we have repeatedly made our position clear, we are awaiting a constructive reply and, therefore, have nothing further to say." It was perhaps the shortest speech ever delivered by the American side at the talks.

Teven Ledogar, a spokesman for the U.S. delegation, said the brief statement did not mean the United States was walking out of the stalemated talks, now in their third year.

"We are staying," Ledogar said.

The American position to which Porter referred has been a cease-fire in place, followed by negotiations for withdrawal of both American and North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam. Elections would follow with the Viet Cong allowed to participate as a political party.

The Viet Cong and Hanoi insist on immediate, unilateral withdrawal of only U.S. forces, ouster of the present Saigon regime headed by President Nguyen Van Thieu and establishment of a coalition government including Communists. They have refused to discuss the release of American prisoners of war until the United States sets a firm date for total U.S. withdrawal.

Ledogar said after the session Porter's refusal to deliver a formal statement applied only to today's session. He said, "We try in our opinion to say what should be said and this is what we thought ought to be said today."

Adulthood-At-18 Bill Wins Senate Nod In Close Vote

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate has voted to lower the age of adulthood from 21 to 18 and impose the responsibility of serving on juries, working as policemen and signing contracts on youths. But they still won't be able to drink alcohol.

The vote on the measure by Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades, was 22-18: It was returned to the lower house for concurrence in amendments.

Sen. Arlen Gregorio, upper house sponsor, said now that they have the vote, 18-year-olds should also be given adult privileges.

He said this would include jury duty, contract signing, working as policemen, firemen and even becoming licensed to carry a machine gun.

In the case of young men age 18, 19, and 20, they could also get married without parental consent, which they now must obtain. Women are free to marry at age 18.

A proposed constitutional amendment lowering the drinking age from 21 to 18 is pending in the Senate. If approved, it would be submitted for ratification or rejection next year.

One other major revision of the bill would cut off child support payments at 18. But support orders issued prior to the measure's effective date would have to be paid to the child's 21st birthday.

Fifteen Democrats joined by seven Republicans voted for the bill and 10 Republicans and one Democrat opposed it. It required 21 votes for passage and got 22.

Major School Funding Bill Is Killed By Panel In Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The legislature's last major school financing bill has been killed in an Assembly committee, apparently cutting off all hope this year for extra money for California's public schools.

The measure and other proposals to increase funds to schools were waylaid by a general feeling among legislators that the problem of school financing should be put off until the 1972 session because of the state Supreme Court decision in August.

The court held that California's system of financing schools was unconstitutional because it relied too heavily on local property taxes, thus unfairly penalizing children in poorer school districts.

The last bill, killed Wednesday, would have provided an additional $300 million annually in state school aid beginning next July.

The measure was taken under submission by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee at the request of its author, Sen. Albert Rodda, D-Sacramento.

According to his office, Rodda withdrew the bill because he feared the committee would not approve it in the light of other legislative actions defeating school financing bills since the Supreme Court decision.

The senator's bill would have increased state support from $279 to $350 a student annually and guaranteed cost-of-living boosts in state aid.

In addition to Rodda's proposal, three other school financing measures have died in legislative committees since the Supreme Court decision despite the declaration last May by Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, that "the schools are in chaos."

"They are on the verge of financial collapse," Riles said. "Teachers are being laid off. Classes are larger. Some districts are broke."

Contributing to the demise of the school bills were Gov. Ronald Reagan's statement that he was "unalterably opposed" to any new state spending that would require a tax increase, an impasse on agreement on a major tax package, including property tax relief, and mounting pressure for adjournment within a week or two.

Reagan did propose, as part of an overall tax package, a half-cent sales tax increase to raise $250 million annually for schools. Negotiations on the package broke down over disagreement over its other elements.

Henderson Held Probing Massacre

Ft. MEADE, Md (UPI) —An officer who served in Vietnam at the time of the My Lai massacre testified today he heard Col. Oran K. Henderson instruct a subordinate to formally investigate reports of slaying of unarmed civilians.

Lt. Col. Donald J. Vest, who was supply officer in Henderson's brigade, appeared as the 31st defense witness at Henderson's court martial trial on charges of failing to make a full inquiry into the My Lai affair.

Vest said that some time after the assault on the village on March 16, 1968, he walked by a briefing tent and "heard this conversation ... I think it was Col. Henderson talking with Col. Barker, I think it was Col. Barker."

The witness referred to Col. Frank Barker, who commanded the My Lai task force and was killed in a helicopter crash about three months after the operation.

Vest said Henderson normally was a calm man, but that the conversation he overheard "got to the fingerpointing stage." He said Henderson told the man he remembered to be Barker: "I want you to conduct a formal investigation of this because I want to know just where the hell we stand."

Thieu Economic Plan Attacked

SAIGON (UPI)—A group of opposition senators attacked President Nguyen Van Thieu's new economic plan today and said the South Vietnamese economy is collapsing.

Sen. Vu Van Mau, spokesman for the 15-man opposition block in the 59-member senate, said, "Thieu has betrayed the Vietnamese people and is forcing them to more poverty."

At least 70 members of the 159-man lower house expressed dissatisfaction Tuesday with the new economic measures announced by the government the day before.

Minor Injuries As Truck Strikes Pole

A Black Point woman received minor injuries at 7:20 p.m. yesterday when her westbound truck ran off Highway 37 at Atherton Avenue and struck a utility pole, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Phyllis T. Greer, 45, of 275 Channel Drive, was treated at Novato General Hospital for cuts and bruises.

Bagley Revives Measure On Forcing Student Fees

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Reversing a previous vote, the Assembly has approved legislation allowing imposition of a $15 student fee to finance football and other activities at Sonoma State College, which has no student government.

The bill, which had been defeated in September and relegated to the inactive file, was resurrected Wednesday and passed on a 41-20 vote.

It was brought to life by Assemblyman William Bagley, R-San Rafael, despite objections by Assemblyman William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, that it would circumvent the desires" of Sonoma State students who voted student government out of existence.

Under the bill, state college trustees could levy up to a $15 fee for extracurricular activities if a majority of the students approved.

It would apply to any state college, but currently Sonoma State is the only one without a student government.

Opponents of the measure by Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, argued, that the bill would effectively bar student lobbyists from all state colleges from working for or against measures in the capitol.

Before it came up for a vote Wednesday, it was amended to include a provision which Assemblyman Frank Murphy, R-Santa Cruz, said could destroy the effectiveness of student lobbyists.

It barred the use of student funds to support "any political issue" but said that the funds could be used to support "governmental affairs representatives" of the students in Sacramento.

'Nothing Further To Say,' U.S. Tells Hanoi In Paris

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter cut short today's session of the Vietnam peace talks after telling the Communists the United States has "nothing further to say" until it receives what he called a "constructive reply" to American proposals.

Porter, in an abrupt switch in American tactics coinciding with the return of chief Hanoi negotiator, Xuan Thuy, read a 23-word statement, then sat back and listened to the usual Viet Cong and North Vietnamese diatribes against President Nixon's Vietnamese policies.

When they had finished attacking Nixon's Friday statements on more troop withdrawals, Porter stated:

"There is nothing new in your statements today. You are using the same stale material I have heard since my arrival here. I have no further comment and propose adjournment."

Porter then proposed that the 137th session be postponed until Dec. 2 because of the American Thanksgiving holiday next Thursday and "to give you time to reflect on your position." The Communist side agreed and the negotiating teams left the chamber.

In his 23-word formal statement, Porter said about the same thing:

"Ladies and Gentlemen, we have repeatedly made our position clear, we are awaiting a constructive reply and, therefore, have nothing further to say." It was perhaps the shortest speech ever delivered by the American side at the talks.

Teven Ledogar, a spokesman for the U.S. delegation, said the brief statement did not mean the United States was walking out of the stalemated talks, now in their third year.

"We are staying," Ledogar said.

The American position to which Porter referred has been a cease-fire in place, followed by negotiations for withdrawal of both American and North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam. Elections would follow with the Viet Cong allowed to participate as a political party.

The Viet Cong and Hanoi insist on immediate, unilateral withdrawal of only U.S. forces, ouster of the present Saigon regime headed by President Nguyen Van Thieu and establishment of a coalition government including Communists. They have refused to discuss the release of American prisoners of war until the United States sets a firm date for total U.S. withdrawal.

Ledogar said after the session Porter's refusal to deliver a formal statement applied only to today's session. He said, "We try in our opinion to say what should be said and this is what we thought ought to be said today."

Court Hears Widow In Slaying Trial

SANTA ROSA (UPI)—The attractive widow of a heavy equipment operator testified Wednesday that she did not tell anyone about her husband's slaying because "I didn't know what to do."

Mrs. Dee Mancini Wilson, 26, a part-time model and former waitress, appeared in Sonoma County Superior Court at the murder trial of Joseph B. Baron, 39, a former Massachusetts underworld figure.

Baron, who was staying here on parole from the Walpole, Mass., State Prison, was accused of killing Clay Wilson, 26, last July. His body was found near a creek in Glen Ellen.

Mrs. Wilson also told the court that she lied, when first questioned, about what she saw the night of the killing. "I was afraid of Joe, and I still am," she said.

She previously testified that she was aware that her husband had been involved in the theft of guns and $300,000 in stocks and bonds. She added her husband and Baron had argued about the stocks and bonds.

Authorities had said Baron was employed as a merchant marine cook and had been permitted to serve his parole in California to hide from the Massachusetts underworld.

The prosecution announced that it would call to the witness stand Thursday William Geraway, a convicted murderer serving a term at the Walpole penitentiary. Authorities said he informed officials that Baron killed Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson spent four days on the witness stand.

Plea Date Set In Burglary Case

George Theodore Gerhardt, 19, of Kent Woodlands, has been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on a burglary charge.

Judge Robert A. Smallman has set Nov. 23 as the date for Gerhardt to enter a plea. He is accused of burglarizing the Ford Heath home on C Street in San Rafael on Oct. 21.

Court Hears Widow In Slaying Trial

SANTA ROSA (UPI)—The attractive widow of a heavy equipment operator testified Wednesday that she did not tell anyone about her husband's slaying because "I didn't know what to do."

Mrs. Dee Mancini Wilson, 26, a part-time model and former waitress, appeared in Sonoma County Superior Court at the murder trial of Joseph B. Baron, 39, a former Massachusetts underworld figure.

Baron, who was staying here on parole from the Walpole, Mass., State Prison, was accused of killing Clay Wilson, 26, last July. His body was found near a creek in Glen Ellen.

Mrs. Wilson also told the court that she lied, when first questioned, about what she saw the night of the killing. "I was afraid of Joe, and I still am," she said.

She previously testified that she was aware that her husband had been involved in the theft of guns and $300,000 in stocks and bonds. She added her husband and Baron had argued about the stocks and bonds.

Authorities had said Baron was employed as a merchant marine cook and had been permitted to serve his parole in California to hide from the Massachusetts underworld.

The prosecution announced that it would call to the witness stand Thursday William Geraway, a convicted murderer serving a term at the Walpole penitentiary. Authorities said he informed officials that Baron killed Wilson.

Mrs. Wilson spent four days on the witness stand.

CANCER FIGHTING CAT — Hank the cat now graces seven postal cards such as this one to benefit the kitty of the Marin chapter, American Cancer Society. The Fairfax cat raised a ruckus this year when officials forced him off his stand at Harry's Mart and out into the rain.

Old Hank, The Cat, Turns The Tables

Hank, the cat, once nearly banned from a Fairfax food market for health reasons, has turned the tables on his antagonists.

Hank, long a fixture at Harry's Mart on Bolinas Road, has become the focus of the American Cancer Society's fund-raising drive in Marin.

The aging cat is pictured on seven different postcards, each bearing Hank's personal warning, "You don't have nine lives." Proceeds from the sale of the cards will benefit the cancer society's Marin chapter.

Grocer Harry Fong, Hank's owner, thought of the idea for the cards, and ordered 1,200 printed at his own expense. They are available at Harry's Mart and other outlets.

The county health department earlier this year ordered Hank evicted from the grocery, but public protests headed off the planned ouster.

Top Russ Rabbi Dies In Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) — Rabbi Judah Leib Levin, the Soviet Union's most prominent Jewish clergyman, died Wednesday the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Rabbi Levin was 76 years old. He suffered from heart trouble.

He was often called the "chief rabbi" of the Soviet Union, although technically he was only the rabbi of Moscow's Grand Khoral Synagogue, the largest in the nation.

Rhodesia Issue Embarrasses U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Administration officials, embarassed by new legislation which will put the United States in violation of United Nations sanctions against Rhodesia, today began a search for ways out of the dilemma.

The problem stems from the signature Wednesday by President Nixon of the $21.3 billion military procurement bill which included an amendment permitting the United States to resume purchases of chrome ore from Rhodesia on Jan. 1, 1972.

If U.S. corporations or the U.S. government now resume imports from Rhodesia they will be in direct violation of sanctions imposed by the United Nations in 1965 against the all-white Rhodesian government which declared independence from Great Britain in that year.

Ali Drops Buster Mathis 4 Times; Gets Decision

HOUSTON (UPI)—Muhammad Ali, who insists he'd give up fighting "if I knew how to make a living some other way," followed up his easy victory over Buster Mathis today with the announcement that the next stop on his long road back to Joe Frazier will be in Switzerland.

The date is Dec. 18 in Zurich, and the opponent Jurgin Blin of Germany, a promising young heavyweight who figures to be just as much of an underdog against Ali as the hulking, out-of-shape Mathis.

"I plan to fight about five times a year until I get Frazier," said Ali after his four-knockdown, 12-round decision Wednesday night before a crowd of 21,000 in the Astrodome and closed circuit TV watchers at 106 locations in the United States and 27 foreign countries.

"Then," he added, "I'll retire and work for my religion."

The 256-pound Mathis, who got up off the canvas four times in the last two rounds in a stubborn effort to prove he's no "pussycat," provided Ali with little more than a spirited workout. For 10 rounds, Ali stayed out of harm's reach until Buster was falling-down weary, and then he chopped down the big man four times.

BUSTER MATHIS
Tired loser

However, Mathis, for one, came away convinced that Ali is exactly what he keeps saying he is —better than champion Frazier.

Big Buster, who was knocked out by Frazier in 11 rounds back in 1968, insisted, "Ali is still a better fighter than Frazier. He's the best fighter I know."

"Some day I'm going to be champion of this world," said Buster, who had spent the last 2 1-2 years trying to make up his mind whether he ever wanted to fight again, and he dropped his head a moment, and added softly, "Some day."

In victory, Ali was generous with his praise of Mathis, explaining, "I didn't open up any sooner because I couldn't find an opening. Buster Mathis is a lot better than you writers told me he was."

And, as usual, Ali had sharp words for the man he always is really fighting, no matter the name of the man in the other corner —Joe Frazier.

"Both Jimmy Ellis and Mathis were better boxers than Frazier," said Ali. "You can print that Frazier is no boxer —he is just an animal."

The first 10 rounds of the Astrodome fight were dull and repetitious. Ali, who'd said he would fight "in and out," fought strictly "out"—staying away from Mathis and spearing him with long lefts and snapping long rights. When the desperately lunging Mathis did manage to maul him into the ropes, Ali disdained slugging and tied him up.

The first knockdown in the 11th round was surprising, because it came after punches that seemed no stronger than a 100 that Ali landed earlier. Mathis went down on his knees, but was up at six. Again he went down from a cuff near the right ear, and this time the bell sounded at four.

His handlers got him out for the 12th and Ali dropped him twice more, each time for a seven-count taken on one knee. At the end Mathis was on rubber legs, but he was standing when the gong sounded.

Ali said referee Chris Jordan should have stopped the fight.

"He should have stopped it when he saw I could just play with him," said Ali. "I toyed with him because he obviously was out and I didn't want to kill him."

Ali also didn't gun for a kayo because he obviously knew he was safely ahead on the scorecards. On the "10 point must" system in Texas that gives a round winner 10 points, Ali won, 118-104, on the card of judge Ernie Taylor, 118-105, from Jordan, and 119-108 from judge Earl Keel.

EX-49ER AIDE

Poor Blocking Prompts Ernie Zwahlen Firing

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Oilers' front office has two ways of dealing with former San Francisco 49er coaches — fire one and keep the other.

Head coach Ed Hughes and his assistant Ernie Zwahlen are the cases in point. With Houston out of title contention, the administration decided an immediate change was necessary. Since Adams had signed Hughes to an extended contract, dumping the bench boss would not do. Thus, Zwahlen was dropped because the club's offensive line "couldn't block against Westbury High School," according to owner K. S. "Bud" Adams.

Adams said he and general manager John Breen disagreed with Hughes over the job done by Zwahlen.

"I fired Zwahlen," Breen said. "I want to get that straight. I fired him, not Mr. Adams.

"Naturally I expect coach Hughes to back up his own people," Breen said. "It is not that we doubt his judgment, it is just that sometimes coaches are so close to their people they can't see the forest for the trees."

In an awkward luncheon meeting with newsmen, Adams and Breen did most of the talking while Hughes, whose record is 1-7-1, kept quiet.

Hughes, who predicted after the exhibition season that Houston would win the AFC central division, would not comment on whether he felt the front office was showing a lack of confidence in him.

After the luncheon, Breen said Hughes was hired on a "produce now basis — none of this rebuilding junk."

"He told us he would produce a winner," Breen said. "He even predicted flatly we would win our division before the Cleveland game. The headlines were all over the Browns' bulletin boards."

Cleveland beat Houston 31-0.

Adams, who has been through six head coaches in the Oilers' 12 years, sat next to Hughes as he said it was his opinion, and that of Breen, the offensive line was the reason Houston ranks last in the conference in rushing and 11th in total offense.

"We got Zwahlen the personnel he wanted," Adams said. "He got rid of Glen Ray Hines, who didn't look too bad (for New Orleans) when I saw him on TV, and he wanted to get rid of Tom Regner. I stopped that. But he put Regner on the move list.

"He was using (Bob) Young instead of Regner. We let Bobby Maples go and used Jerry Sturm. We're still trying to find out whether Sturm is 34 or 38 or just exactly how old he is."

Adams added, "We've got a fine defense, but nothing on offense. We know there must be a reason. "We've got a fine set of quarterbacks and receivers, but no rushing. It has to be the backs or the line.

"We traded for new backs — proven runners (Dick Post from Denver and Robert Holmes from Kansas City).

"Finally we had to realize our line couldn't block against Westbury High School," Adams said.

Breen, who was hired by Adams in 1959 to put together a team for the new American football league and has been with the Oilers ever since in some capacity.

Redwood Finishes Fourth At Fremont

Redwood High School's varsity cross country team tied for fourth yesterday in the North Coast Sectional championships in Fremont, best showing ever for a Marin County Athletic League team.

With Jan-Eric Moller finishing 16th and Mike Killeen 17th, Redwood tied Ygnacio Valley of Concord with 144 points. Washington High of Fremont won the meet with 74 points, followed by Antioch, 88 points, and San Ramon, 134.

Moller was clocked at 14 minutes, 39 seconds and Killeen at 14:44 over the approximately three-mile course at Lake Elizabeth. Mike Dayton of San Ramon won the meet with a 14:01 clocking.

Dan Hutton of Novato High School, competing as an individual, finished in 30th place.

In the frosh-soph division, San Rafael High School's team, led by the running of Tom Stibich (23rd), Ray Green (27th) and Brian McCurdy (30th), scored 187 points for sixth place. Redwood's team, with freshman Pete Demarais 14th, scored 209 points for eighth place. Joey Biancalana of Tamalpais, competing as an individual, placed 24th.

Redwood's frosh-soph team was weakened slightly when Kevin Glasner was moved back to the varsity to replace Bryan Tracy, injured in a recent automobile accident.

That was the final meet of the season for all Marin County high schools.

WEST COAST ROUNDUP

Tribe Practice Pleases Ralston; Bears Healthy

STANFORD (UPI) —Stanford coach John Ralston was pleased Wednesday with place kicker Rod Garcia's workout as he prepared for Saturday's game against California.

Garcia missed five field goal attempts and a conversion in last Saturday's game against San Jose State, but Ralston said he "returned the way we knew he would."

"He was bouncing in several of them from a long ways out," Ralston said.

Washington State

PULLMAN (UPI) —When coach Jim Sweeney feels his team has put in a good workout, he doesn't spare the superlatives.

After Wednesday's 90-minute session, Sweeney remarked: "We had a great practice in all phases with tremendous enthusiasm from the players. Our running game was crisp with good timing and the passers and receivers operated well during the workout."

Faced with the passing arm of Sonny Sixkiller when WSU meets Washington Saturday, Sweeney has put his team through rigorous drills which he says are the most intensive the Cougars have seen this season.

California

BERKELEY (UPI) —The California Bears will be in top physical condition for Saturday's game against Stanford.

Cal coach Ray Willsey said running back Rick Jones, who had been out with the flu, returned to practice to put the squad at full strength.

"We're not quite ready mentally, yet," Willsey said, "but there's still a few days left."

Oregon

EUGENE (UPI) —Flanker Leland Glass was in top form catching passes from quarterback Dan Fouts Wednesday as Oregon prepared for its "civil war" game with Oregon State here Saturday.

Glass sat out two games with a knee sprain.

The Webfoots held a spcrited workout, balancing the offense between passing anj running, while the defense spent most of its time on Beaver running formations.

Oregon State

CORVALLIS (UPI)—"We'll be ready," coach Dee Andros warned Wednesday as Oregon State wemt through a spirited drill Wednesday in preparation for Saturday's season ending game with Oregon.

Andros said Bill Carlquist, starting wingback, missed practice with a slight case of flu and offensive tackle Jim Davidson was absent because of illness in hiu family.

Bob Lutz Confronts Laver's Drive For Tennis Million

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Tiburon pro remains as one of Rod Laver's lone obstacles in the Australian's bid to become the first tennis millionaire.

Bobby Lutz faces the southpaw sensation in the World Championship Tennis Tournament quarterfinals tonight. A triumph over Lutz in the $100,000 tourney and a victory Sunday over the Cliff Drysdale-Arthur Ashe winner will assure Laver of $20,000 and of breaking the $1 million barrier.

Laver, top seed in the tournament, is only 5-foot-8, weighs 147 pounds and is bowlegged. On first glance, he looks about as much like a world class tennis player as he does a pro basketball star.

His powerful legs match his determination. The combination has carried him to four victories and a total of $272,717 this year in a 20-tournament tour.

Jim Johnson Says He'll Go

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The big question mark for Sunday's crucial National Football League game between San Francisco and Los Angeles is 49ers defensive back Jimmy Johnson.

There are several different answers.

Johnson, an All Pro who is regarded as one of the best cornerbacks in the league, fractured his wrist in last Sunday's loss to New Orleans.

But apparently Johnson feels it will take more than that to keep him out of the Rams game. When he was asked Tuesday what his chances were of playing, Johnson's only answer was a simple "one hundred per cent."

San Francisco coach Dick Nolan is not quite the positive thinker that Johnson is. He listed Johnson as "possible," but after talking to the team doctor, he moved him up a notch to "probable."

Los Angeles quarterback Roman Gabriel has made it clear in the past that the Rams passing offense is geared toward avoiding Johnson. And in their Long Beach camp, the Rams probably are shaping a game plan around the theory that even if Johnson plays, he will not be at full speed because of a protective cast he will have to tear on the arm.

Golden State Hosts Portland

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Golden State Warriors, back from a road trip and hot on the trail on Pacific Division leader Los Angeles, meet Portland tonight in a National Basketball Association contest at the Oakland Coliseum arena.

The Warriors returned with 2-2 mark on the recent tour and trail the Lakers by three games. They opened the trip by beating the New York Knicks for the first time in two years and ended it Tuesday night with a 122-101 victory over Detroit.

The Trail Blazers, in fifth place in the Pacific Division, are led by forward Sidney Wicks, a rookie who was an AllAmerican at UCLA. Wicks is averaging 24.5 points a game and 9.3 rebounds.

Raider Rookie Davis Grabs Returns Lead

OAKLAND (UPI) — Clarence Davis, the Oakland Raiders' No. 4 draft choice last year, hasn't had much of a chance to show his talent as a running back, but on kickoff returns he's the top man.

Davis, one of USC's most productive backs, took over the National Football League's kickoff return leadership last Sunday against Houston when he carried two for 41 yards.

The two returns brought his season's total to 15 for 456 yards and a 28.5 yard average.

"I didn't know I'd taken over first place," Davis said. "It gives me something to work to, to try to stay on top."

"But just being here is an incentive to work," he said. "In college it wasn't any problem, you knew you'd made the team because they gave you a scholarship. Coming into the pros, you make it or you're gone.

In addition to kickoffs, Davis has played as a spot player behind starter Pete Banaszak and carried 3 times for 212 yards.

Seals Get Boldirev; Face Buffalo Sabres

BUFFALO (UPI) —The California Golden Seals, having their troubles on their current road trip, have a new center who will join the club tonight against the Buffalo Sabres.

Ivan Boldirev, 22, was obtained Wednesday from the Boston Bruins in exchange for California's No. 1 amateur draft choice in 1970, centerwinger Chris Oddliefson, and a player to be named later.

Seals' general manager Garry Young said he had been after Boldirez for two months because "he goes back to the old days of Jean Beliveu as a puck-handling center."

In another move Wednesday, California sent goalie Gary Kurt to its Baltimore farm club.

THE TRUE OLD-STYLE KENTUCKY BOURBON

HOUSTON (UPI)—Muhammad Ali, who insists he'd give up fighting "if I knew how to make a living some other way," followed up his easy victory over Buster Mathis today with the announcement that the next stop on his long road back to Joe Frazier will be in Switzerland.

The date is Dec. 18 in Zurich, and the opponent Jurgin Blin of Germany, a promising young heavyweight who figures to be just as much of an underdog against Ali as the hulking, out-of-shape Mathis.

"I plan to fight about five times a year until I get Frazier," said Ali after his four-knockdown, 12-round decision Wednesday night before a crowd of 21,000 in the Astrodome and closed circuit TV watchers at 106 locations in the United States and 27 foreign countries.

"Then," he added, "I'll retire and work for my religion."

The 256-pound Mathis, who got up off the canvas four times in the last two rounds in a stubborn effort to prove he's no "pussycat," provided Ali with little more than a spirited workout. For 10 rounds, Ali stayed out of harm's reach until Buster was falling-down weary, and then he chopped down the big man four times.

BUSTER MATHIS
Tired loser

However, Mathis, for one, came away convinced that Ali is exactly what he keeps saying he is —better than champion Frazier.

Big Buster, who was knocked out by Frazier in 11 rounds back in 1968, insisted, "Ali is still a better fighter than Frazier. He's the best fighter I know."

"Some day I'm going to be champion of this world," said Buster, who had spent the last 2 1-2 years trying to make up his mind whether he ever wanted to fight again, and he dropped his head a moment, and added softly, "Some day."

In victory, Ali was generous with his praise of Mathis, explaining, "I didn't open up any sooner because I couldn't find an opening. Buster Mathis is a lot better than you writers told me he was."

And, as usual, Ali had sharp words for the man he always is really fighting, no matter the name of the man in the other corner —Joe Frazier.

"Both Jimmy Ellis and Mathis were better boxers than Frazier," said Ali. "You can print that Frazier is no boxer —he is just an animal."

The first 10 rounds of the Astrodome fight were dull and repetitious. Ali, who'd said he would fight "in and out," fought strictly "out"—staying away from Mathis and spearing him with long lefts and snapping long rights. When the desperately lunging Mathis did manage to maul him into the ropes, Ali disdained slugging and tied him up.

The first knockdown in the 11th round was surprising, because it came after punches that seemed no stronger than a 100 that Ali landed earlier. Mathis went down on his knees, but was up at six. Again he went down from a cuff near the right ear, and this time the bell sounded at four.

His handlers got him out for the 12th and Ali dropped him twice more, each time for a seven-count taken on one knee. At the end Mathis was on rubber legs, but he was standing when the gong sounded.

Ali said referee Chris Jordan should have stopped the fight.

"He should have stopped it when he saw I could just play with him," said Ali. "I toyed with him because he obviously was out and I didn't want to kill him."

Ali also didn't gun for a kayo because he obviously knew he was safely ahead on the scorecards. On the "10 point must" system in Texas that gives a round winner 10 points, Ali won, 118-104, on the card of judge Ernie Taylor, 118-105, from Jordan, and 119-108 from judge Earl Keel.

EX-49ER AIDE

Poor Blocking Prompts Ernie Zwahlen Firing

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Oilers' front office has two ways of dealing with former San Francisco 49er coaches — fire one and keep the other.

Head coach Ed Hughes and his assistant Ernie Zwahlen are the cases in point. With Houston out of title contention, the administration decided an immediate change was necessary. Since Adams had signed Hughes to an extended contract, dumping the bench boss would not do. Thus, Zwahlen was dropped because the club's offensive line "couldn't block against Westbury High School," according to owner K. S. "Bud" Adams.

Adams said he and general manager John Breen disagreed with Hughes over the job done by Zwahlen.

"I fired Zwahlen," Breen said. "I want to get that straight. I fired him, not Mr. Adams.

"Naturally I expect coach Hughes to back up his own people," Breen said. "It is not that we doubt his judgment, it is just that sometimes coaches are so close to their people they can't see the forest for the trees."

In an awkward luncheon meeting with newsmen, Adams and Breen did most of the talking while Hughes, whose record is 1-7-1, kept quiet.

Hughes, who predicted after the exhibition season that Houston would win the AFC central division, would not comment on whether he felt the front office was showing a lack of confidence in him.

After the luncheon, Breen said Hughes was hired on a "produce now basis — none of this rebuilding junk."

"He told us he would produce a winner," Breen said. "He even predicted flatly we would win our division before the Cleveland game. The headlines were all over the Browns' bulletin boards."

Cleveland beat Houston 31-0.

Adams, who has been through six head coaches in the Oilers' 12 years, sat next to Hughes as he said it was his opinion, and that of Breen, the offensive line was the reason Houston ranks last in the conference in rushing and 11th in total offense.

"We got Zwahlen the personnel he wanted," Adams said. "He got rid of Glen Ray Hines, who didn't look too bad (for New Orleans) when I saw him on TV, and he wanted to get rid of Tom Regner. I stopped that. But he put Regner on the move list.

"He was using (Bob) Young instead of Regner. We let Bobby Maples go and used Jerry Sturm. We're still trying to find out whether Sturm is 34 or 38 or just exactly how old he is."

Adams added, "We've got a fine defense, but nothing on offense. We know there must be a reason. "We've got a fine set of quarterbacks and receivers, but no rushing. It has to be the backs or the line.

"We traded for new backs — proven runners (Dick Post from Denver and Robert Holmes from Kansas City).

"Finally we had to realize our line couldn't block against Westbury High School," Adams said.

Breen, who was hired by Adams in 1959 to put together a team for the new American football league and has been with the Oilers ever since in some capacity.

Redwood Finishes Fourth At Fremont

Redwood High School's varsity cross country team tied for fourth yesterday in the North Coast Sectional championships in Fremont, best showing ever for a Marin County Athletic League team.

With Jan-Eric Moller finishing 16th and Mike Killeen 17th, Redwood tied Ygnacio Valley of Concord with 144 points. Washington High of Fremont won the meet with 74 points, followed by Antioch, 88 points, and San Ramon, 134.

Moller was clocked at 14 minutes, 39 seconds and Killeen at 14:44 over the approximately three-mile course at Lake Elizabeth. Mike Dayton of San Ramon won the meet with a 14:01 clocking.

Dan Hutton of Novato High School, competing as an individual, finished in 30th place.

In the frosh-soph division, San Rafael High School's team, led by the running of Tom Stibich (23rd), Ray Green (27th) and Brian McCurdy (30th), scored 187 points for sixth place. Redwood's team, with freshman Pete Demarais 14th, scored 209 points for eighth place. Joey Biancalana of Tamalpais, competing as an individual, placed 24th.

Redwood's frosh-soph team was weakened slightly when Kevin Glasner was moved back to the varsity to replace Bryan Tracy, injured in a recent automobile accident.

That was the final meet of the season for all Marin County high schools.

WEST COAST ROUNDUP

Tribe Practice Pleases Ralston; Bears Healthy

STANFORD (UPI) —Stanford coach John Ralston was pleased Wednesday with place kicker Rod Garcia's workout as he prepared for Saturday's game against California.

Garcia missed five field goal attempts and a conversion in last Saturday's game against San Jose State, but Ralston said he "returned the way we knew he would."

"He was bouncing in several of them from a long ways out," Ralston said.

Washington State

PULLMAN (UPI) —When coach Jim Sweeney feels his team has put in a good workout, he doesn't spare the superlatives.

After Wednesday's 90-minute session, Sweeney remarked: "We had a great practice in all phases with tremendous enthusiasm from the players. Our running game was crisp with good timing and the passers and receivers operated well during the workout."

Faced with the passing arm of Sonny Sixkiller when WSU meets Washington Saturday, Sweeney has put his team through rigorous drills which he says are the most intensive the Cougars have seen this season.

California

BERKELEY (UPI) —The California Bears will be in top physical condition for Saturday's game against Stanford.

Cal coach Ray Willsey said running back Rick Jones, who had been out with the flu, returned to practice to put the squad at full strength.

"We're not quite ready mentally, yet," Willsey said, "but there's still a few days left."

Oregon

EUGENE (UPI) —Flanker Leland Glass was in top form catching passes from quarterback Dan Fouts Wednesday as Oregon prepared for its "civil war" game with Oregon State here Saturday.

Glass sat out two games with a knee sprain.

The Webfoots held a spcrited workout, balancing the offense between passing anj running, while the defense spent most of its time on Beaver running formations.

Oregon State

CORVALLIS (UPI)—"We'll be ready," coach Dee Andros warned Wednesday as Oregon State wemt through a spirited drill Wednesday in preparation for Saturday's season ending game with Oregon.

Andros said Bill Carlquist, starting wingback, missed practice with a slight case of flu and offensive tackle Jim Davidson was absent because of illness in hiu family.

Bob Lutz Confronts Laver's Drive For Tennis Million

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Tiburon pro remains as one of Rod Laver's lone obstacles in the Australian's bid to become the first tennis millionaire.

Bobby Lutz faces the southpaw sensation in the World Championship Tennis Tournament quarterfinals tonight. A triumph over Lutz in the $100,000 tourney and a victory Sunday over the Cliff Drysdale-Arthur Ashe winner will assure Laver of $20,000 and of breaking the $1 million barrier.

Laver, top seed in the tournament, is only 5-foot-8, weighs 147 pounds and is bowlegged. On first glance, he looks about as much like a world class tennis player as he does a pro basketball star.

His powerful legs match his determination. The combination has carried him to four victories and a total of $272,717 this year in a 20-tournament tour.

Jim Johnson Says He'll Go

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The big question mark for Sunday's crucial National Football League game between San Francisco and Los Angeles is 49ers defensive back Jimmy Johnson.

There are several different answers.

Johnson, an All Pro who is regarded as one of the best cornerbacks in the league, fractured his wrist in last Sunday's loss to New Orleans.

But apparently Johnson feels it will take more than that to keep him out of the Rams game. When he was asked Tuesday what his chances were of playing, Johnson's only answer was a simple "one hundred per cent."

San Francisco coach Dick Nolan is not quite the positive thinker that Johnson is. He listed Johnson as "possible," but after talking to the team doctor, he moved him up a notch to "probable."

Los Angeles quarterback Roman Gabriel has made it clear in the past that the Rams passing offense is geared toward avoiding Johnson. And in their Long Beach camp, the Rams probably are shaping a game plan around the theory that even if Johnson plays, he will not be at full speed because of a protective cast he will have to tear on the arm.

Golden State Hosts Portland

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Golden State Warriors, back from a road trip and hot on the trail on Pacific Division leader Los Angeles, meet Portland tonight in a National Basketball Association contest at the Oakland Coliseum arena.

The Warriors returned with 2-2 mark on the recent tour and trail the Lakers by three games. They opened the trip by beating the New York Knicks for the first time in two years and ended it Tuesday night with a 122-101 victory over Detroit.

The Trail Blazers, in fifth place in the Pacific Division, are led by forward Sidney Wicks, a rookie who was an AllAmerican at UCLA. Wicks is averaging 24.5 points a game and 9.3 rebounds.

Tony Esposito Leads Chicago Triumph, 3-0

Never mind trying to beat the Chicago Black Hawks on their own ice. You're coming out ahead if you can simply score a goal.

Tony Esposito was the ungracious host Wednesday night, turning back 18 Vancouver shots as Chicago whipped the Canucks, 3-0.

In the only other game played Wednesday night, the Toronto Maple Leafs routed the Los Angeles Kings, 5-1. Ron Ellis scored a pair of goals in the second period and assisted on a third-period tally by Paul Henderson.

JACK HANLEY

Gallagher Big Hit As Radio Disc Jockey

Alan Gallagher, a .277 hitter for the Giants, batted .400 in his debut as a disc jockey. Dirty Al was the No. 2 man in a lineup of Giants making guest appearances this week on KSFO for vacationing Jim Lange.

"Good morning, this is Dirty Al Gallagher," was the opening greeting of the uninhibited third baseman who explained how he came by his nickname at Santa Clara University.

"I WON a greased pig contest that was the feature of a halftime show at a Bronco football game. I didn't wallow in the mud. I just sized up the situation and waited for the pig to run back to the van that brought him to the scene. Then I corraled him."

Gallagher, of course, knows the Dirty Al tag was put on him at Santa Clara because his baseball uniform never was clean due to the way he stopped ground balls at the hot corner. He would dive to the left and right for them. But such an explanation would have been too dull, too commonplace for Gallagher.

There never is anything dull about Dirty Al. Asked why the Giants let Larry Jansen go as their pitching coach, he said: "I think it was because Jansen and Charlie Fox didn't get along." After a moment's silence, Gallagher added: "I'm momentarily expecting a call letting me go."

WAS IT a disappointing season because the Giants didn't win the National League pennant after winning their division?

"Let me put it this way," said Gallagher. "We did a fantastic job. We are not permitted to bet. But just suppose at the start of the season I went to Reno and asked for odds on the Giants saying neither Perry nor Marichal would win 20 games, that McCovey would be out 2½ months and Mays would have a bad second half.

"The odds would have been $100,000 to $1. But as I say we can't bet."

Between q. and a. periods, Gallagher kept sending greetings to friends, including Perry whom he addressed as "Grease" not "Gaylord."

"I HOPE," Gallagher said, "the microphones are tied down tightly when Grease comes in Friday morning for his stint on this show. He might not be able to hold them.

"Those batters Perry faces claim he greases the ball with stuff from his hair. What hair? He hasn't got any."

Gallagher sells life insurance during baseball's off-season. He's wasting his time. He should switch to disc jockeying even though his selection of soul music is inappropriate for the breakfast trade.

Maravich Returns; Seattle Tops Hawks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Pete Maravich is showing early signs of recovery and it couldn't have come at a better time for the Atlanta Hawks.

Atlanta was beaten by Seattle 112-104 Wednesday night, but Maravich's 18-point effort in a controlled time appearance gave some indication the Hawks might soon snap out of a slump that totals six losses in their last seven games. Pistol Pete was out three months with mononucleosis.

Seattle took a 12-point lead early in the game and then held off a late Hawk charge. Fortunately, Atlanta is in the chaotic Central Division and despite its prolonged slump, the Hawks are only 2 1-2 games out of first place.

Spencer Haywood paced the Sonics with 23 points. Atlanta, playing without injured highscoring Lou Hudson, trailed only 83-81 at the end of three-quarters. Walt Bellamy led Atlanta with 28 points.

Boston mauled Phoenix 140121 Houston surprised Philadelphia, 118-112 and Baltimore beat Cincinnati 113-103 in other National Basketball Association games.

Boston snapped a three-game losing streak and increased its lead to two games over second place Philadelphia in the Atlantic Division as John Havlicek scored 32 points and Jo Jo White netted 28 for the Celtics. Connie Hawkins topped all scorers with 37 points and Paul Silas added 31 for the Suns.

Houston broke an eight-game losing string behind Elvin Hayes' 33 points and Calvin Murphy's 31. Stu Lantz tallied 10 of his 23 in the final period when the Rockets rallied to win. Billy Cunningham scored a Philadelphia high of 29 points before fouling out. Hal Greer and Fred Foster also drew six personals for the 76ers.

Baltimore took a full game lead over Cincinnati by beating the Royals. Jack Marin paced the Bullets with 24 points and Wes Unseld controlled the boards with 16 rebounds. Dave Stallworth, recently acquired from New York in the Earl Monroe trade, helped Baltimore with 23 points.

Calgary Squelches West Foe

REGINA, Sask. (UPI) —The Calgary Stampeders advanced to the Grey Cup final Wednesday night by defeating the Saskatchewan Roughriders, 23-21, to win the CFL West best-of-three series in two straight games.

The Stamps won the first game last Saturday, 30-21.

The Eastern Conference contender for the Grey Cup will be decided this weekend when the Toronto Argonauts and the Hamilton Tigercats clash in the second half of their two-game total point series. The Argos hold a 15-point advantage, after beating Hamilton, 23-8, in the first game last Sunday.

A strong running game with sparkling performances by Jesse Mims, Rudy Linterman and Hugh McKinnis gave the Stampeders the victory Wednesday night.

Calgary points came on touchdowns by Jon Henderson, McKinnis and Linterman. Larry y Robinson had a five point night, booting all three converts and adding two singles on wide field goal attempts in the opening quarter.

BOWL BID ON LINE

Penn State Faces Pitt

DALLAS (UPI)—Penn State's unbeaten Nittany Lions apparently are about three days away from an invitation to be the guest team in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day.

Bowl officials have taken on an official mum regarding their preference but said Wednesday an announcement would be forthcoming Saturday "at either 5 p.m. or 6 p.m. Dallas time depending upon where we make the contract."

Bowl representatives will be in both the east and central standard time zones Saturday to watch the Penn State Pittsburgh and Notre Dame Louisiana State games.

However, members of the Notre Dame football team reportedly voted late Wednesday not to participate in any post season bowl games this season and apparently left the prospects of Cotton Bowl guest team entirely in the hands of the undefeated Nittany Lions.

Other top contenders — Nebraska, Auburn, and Alabama —have been reported heading to the Orange and Sugar Bowls. Georgia lost Bowl appeal last Saturday in its loss to Auburn and Oklahoma has been written off since it already has defeated the Texas, the heavy favorite to be the host team in the Cotton Bowl, earlier in the season.

Texas (8-2) has only to defeat Texas A&M Thanksgiving Day to claim its unprecedented fourth consecutive trip to Dallas.

But there are seven possible ways the Southwest Conference race could end and Texas A&M, Arkansas and Texas Christian still have mathematical chances to get the bowl bid.

Many fans have been calling for a texas-Penn State matchup since 1969 when the Longhorns won the national championship.

Ohio State was undefeated and apparently headed for a second consecutive national championship in 1969. Since it had been to the Rose Bowl the year before, the Buckeyes' season would have ended in Columbus, Ohio, on their final game with Michigan.

Penn State, again undefeated but ranked No. 4 in the nation behind undefeated Arkansas and Texas, turned down a Cotton Bowl bid where it would have faced the winner of the Texas-Arkansas contest and chose to go to the more lucrative Orange Bowl.

But Michigan pulled the upset of the year by defeating Ohio State a few days later, vaulting Texas into the No. 1 position. Texas then defeated Arkansas 15-14 for the Cotton Bowl bid.

Nittany Lion Coach Joe Paterno said his team was as good as Texas' and that Penn State deserved the national championship as much as the Longhorns.

Penn State, however, never got the chance to prove it. While the Nittany Lions were beating Missouri in the Orange Bowl, Texas downed Notre Dame 21-17.

Both Penn State and Texas ended the season the only undefeated teams in the nation but the Longhorns had the national championship.

Kentucky Romps Past Virginia

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Artis Gilmore's offensive talents were a big question mark when the Kentucky Colonels drafted the seven-footer from Jacksonville last season. But the Virginia Squires aren't asking any questions now.

Gilmore, whom the Colonels feel is a couple of years away from his offensive potential, looked like he found it Wednesday night as he hit for 31 points and added a club record 30 rebounds as the Colonels downed Virginia 117-112. The victory put Kentucky a half-game ahead of the Squires in the American Basketball Association Eastern race.

In other ABA action, Utah nipped Indiana 113-11, Carolina beat Denver 113-101 and Pittsburgh edged New York 122121.

Zelmo Beaty converted two foul shots with eight seconds left to lift Utah past Indiana and give the Stars a 1 1-2 game lead in the Western Division. Beaty and Willie Wise also blocked two shots by Roger Brown in the closing seconds to preserve the victory.

Beaty and Jimmy Jones had 23 points each for Utah while Rick Mount led Indiana with 30.

Rookies Jim McDaniels and Ted McClain teammed for 46 points to lead the Cougars over Denver. McDaniels had 27 and McClain came off the bench to score 19.

John Brisker scored 14 points in the last two minutes, including a pair of three-point field goals, as Pittsburgh beat the Nets.

PREP NOTEBOOK

Sports Continuing At Marin Catholic

The strike of Catholic school lay teachers came at a time when little was happening on the Marin Catholic High School athletic scene, so disruption of sports is at a minimum.

"If there is such a thing as a good time to have a strike, this is it, at least from an athletic standpoint," said Rev. John Heaney, who is serving as interim athletic director.

Heaney, Rev. Bill Isetta and Rev. Alan Armstrong are the central figures in the athletic department at this moment. Isetta has taken over the varsity and "B" basketball teams and Heaney the junior varsity and freshmen, in addition to girls volleyball. Armstrong, as always, handles girls swimming.

"I'm just a fill-in," said Isetta, who coached junior varsity last year but moved to an administrative position this fall. "I've been following the overall plan conceived by (striking head coach) Dave Gonsalves."

Football and soccer seasons ended last week. Basketball doesn't begin until the alumni game next Wednesday. The first interscholastic opponent will be St. Patrick's of Vallejo next Saturday.

Marin Catholic does not have teams in wrestling or water polo.

"The major decisions, like who to schedule or what basketball strategy to follow, have already been made," said Heaney.

In short, a brief strike would leave athletics at Marin Catholic virtually unchanged.

TERRA LINDA High School had its annual awards banquet Tuesday night. John Buckley was named most valuable player in football, Bill Aaker got the soccer MVP and Pat Thornton was chosen outstanding cross-country runner. Guard-linebacker Brian Jordan was selected the most inspirational football player, and split end-defensive back Rich Nicholes was named the most improved player. Nicholes is the first junior to receive that award.

Tony Esposito Leads Chicago Triumph, 3-0

Never mind trying to beat the Chicago Black Hawks on their own ice. You're coming out ahead if you can simply score a goal.

Tony Esposito was the ungracious host Wednesday night, turning back 18 Vancouver shots as Chicago whipped the Canucks, 3-0.

In the only other game played Wednesday night, the Toronto Maple Leafs routed the Los Angeles Kings, 5-1. Ron Ellis scored a pair of goals in the second period and assisted on a third-period tally by Paul Henderson.

JACK HANLEY

Gallagher Big Hit As Radio Disc Jockey

Alan Gallagher, a .277 hitter for the Giants, batted .400 in his debut as a disc jockey. Dirty Al was the No. 2 man in a lineup of Giants making guest appearances this week on KSFO for vacationing Jim Lange.

"Good morning, this is Dirty Al Gallagher," was the opening greeting of the uninhibited third baseman who explained how he came by his nickname at Santa Clara University.

"I WON a greased pig contest that was the feature of a halftime show at a Bronco football game. I didn't wallow in the mud. I just sized up the situation and waited for the pig to run back to the van that brought him to the scene. Then I corraled him."

Gallagher, of course, knows the Dirty Al tag was put on him at Santa Clara because his baseball uniform never was clean due to the way he stopped ground balls at the hot corner. He would dive to the left and right for them. But such an explanation would have been too dull, too commonplace for Gallagher.

There never is anything dull about Dirty Al. Asked why the Giants let Larry Jansen go as their pitching coach, he said: "I think it was because Jansen and Charlie Fox didn't get along." After a moment's silence, Gallagher added: "I'm momentarily expecting a call letting me go."

WAS IT a disappointing season because the Giants didn't win the National League pennant after winning their division?

"Let me put it this way," said Gallagher. "We did a fantastic job. We are not permitted to bet. But just suppose at the start of the season I went to Reno and asked for odds on the Giants saying neither Perry nor Marichal would win 20 games, that McCovey would be out 2½ months and Mays would have a bad second half.

"The odds would have been $100,000 to $1. But as I say we can't bet."

Between q. and a. periods, Gallagher kept sending greetings to friends, including Perry whom he addressed as "Grease" not "Gaylord."

"I HOPE," Gallagher said, "the microphones are tied down tightly when Grease comes in Friday morning for his stint on this show. He might not be able to hold them.

"Those batters Perry faces claim he greases the ball with stuff from his hair. What hair? He hasn't got any."

Gallagher sells life insurance during baseball's off-season. He's wasting his time. He should switch to disc jockeying even though his selection of soul music is inappropriate for the breakfast trade.

Maravich Returns; Seattle Tops Hawks

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Pete Maravich is showing early signs of recovery and it couldn't have come at a better time for the Atlanta Hawks.

Atlanta was beaten by Seattle 112-104 Wednesday night, but Maravich's 18-point effort in a controlled time appearance gave some indication the Hawks might soon snap out of a slump that totals six losses in their last seven games. Pistol Pete was out three months with mononucleosis.

Seattle took a 12-point lead early in the game and then held off a late Hawk charge. Fortunately, Atlanta is in the chaotic Central Division and despite its prolonged slump, the Hawks are only 2 1-2 games out of first place.

Spencer Haywood paced the Sonics with 23 points. Atlanta, playing without injured high-scoring Lou Hudson, trailed only 83-81 at the end of three-quarters. Walt Bellamy led Atlanta with 28 points.

Boston mauled Phoenix 140121 Houston surprised Philadelphia, 118-112 and Baltimore beat Cincinnati 113-103 in other National Basketball Association games.

Boston snapped a three-game losing streak and increased its lead to two games over second place Philadelphia in the Atlantic Division as John Havlicek scored 32 points and Jo Jo White netted 28 for the Celtics. Connie Hawkins topped all scorers with 37 points and Paul Silas added 31 for the Suns.

Houston broke an eight-game losing string behind Elvin Hayes' 33 points and Calvin Murphy's 31. Stu Lantz tallied 10 of his 23 in the final period when the Rockets rallied to win. Billy Cunningham scored a Philadelphia high of 29 points before fouling out. Hal Greer and Fred Foster also drew six personals for the 76ers.

Baltimore took a full game lead over Cincinnati by beating the Royals. Jack Marin paced the Bullets with 24 points and Wes Unseld controlled the boards with 16 rebounds. Dave Stallworth, recently acquired from New York in the Earl Monroe trade, helped Baltimore with 23 points.

Calgary Squelches West Foe

REGINA, Sask. (UPI) —The Calgary Stampeders advanced to the Grey Cup final Wednesday night by defeating the Saskatchewan Roughriders, 23-21, to win the CFL West best-of-three series in two straight games.

The Stamps won the first game last Saturday, 30-21.

The Eastern Conference contender for the Grey Cup will be decided this weekend when the Toronto Argonauts and the Hamilton Tigercats clash in the second half of their two-game total point series. The Argos hold a 15-point advantage, after beating Hamilton, 23-8, in the first game last Sunday.

A strong running game with sparkling performances by Jesse Mims, Rudy Linterman and Hugh McKinnis gave the Stampeders the victory Wednesday night.

Calgary points came on touchdowns by Jon Henderson, McKinnis and Linterman. Larry y Robinson had a five point night, booting all three converts and adding two singles on wide field goal attempts in the opening quarter.

PREP NOTEBOOK

Sports Continuing At Marin Catholic

The strike of Catholic school lay teachers came at a time when little was happening on the Marin Catholic High School athletic scene, so disruption of sports is at a minimum.

"If there is such a thing as a good time to have a strike, this is it, at least from an athletic standpoint," said Rev. John Heaney, who is serving as interim athletic director.

Heaney, Rev. Bill Isetta and Rev. Alan Armstrong are the central figures in the athletic department at this moment. Isetta has taken over the varsity and "B" basketball teams and Heaney the junior varsity and freshmen, in addition to girls volleyball. Armstrong, as always, handles girls swimming.

"I'm just a fill-in," said Isetta, who coached junior varsity last year but moved to an administrative position this fall. "I've been following the overall plan conceived by (striking head coach) Dave Gonsalves."

Football and soccer seasons ended last week. Basketball doesn't begin until the alumni game next Wednesday. The first interscholastic opponent will be St. Patrick's of Vallejo next Saturday.

Marin Catholic does not have teams in wrestling or water polo.

"The major decisions, like who to schedule or what basketball strategy to follow, have already been made," said Heaney.

In short, a brief strike would leave athletics at Marin Catholic virtually unchanged.

TERRA LINDA High School had its annual awards banquet Tuesday night. John Buckley was named most valuable player in football, Bill Aaker got the soccer MVP and Pat Thornton was chosen outstanding cross-country runner. Guard-linebacker Brian Jordan was selected the most inspirational football player, and split end-defensive back Rich Nicholes was named the most improved player. Nicholes is the first junior to receive that award.

BOWL BID ON LINE

Penn State Faces Pitt

DALLAS (UPI)—Penn State's unbeaten Nittany Lions apparently are about three days away from an invitation to be the guest team in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day.

Bowl officials have taken on an official mum regarding their preference but said Wednesday an announcement would be forthcoming Saturday "at either 5 p.m. or 6 p.m. Dallas time depending upon where we make the contract."

Bowl representatives will be in both the east and central standard time zones Saturday to watch the Penn State Pittsburgh and Notre Dame Louisiana State games.

However, members of the Notre Dame football team reportedly voted late Wednesday not to participate in any post season bowl games this season and apparently left the prospects of Cotton Bowl guest team entirely in the hands of the undefeated Nittany Lions.

Other top contenders — Nebraska, Auburn, and Alabama —have been reported heading to the Orange and Sugar Bowls. Georgia lost Bowl appeal last Saturday in its loss to Auburn and Oklahoma has been written off since it already has defeated the Texas, the heavy favorite to be the host team in the Cotton Bowl, earlier in the season.

Texas (8-2) has only to defeat Texas A&M Thanksgiving Day to claim its unprecedented fourth consecutive trip to Dallas.

But there are seven possible ways the Southwest Conference race could end and Texas A&M, Arkansas and Texas Christian still have mathematical chances to get the bowl bid.

Many fans have been calling for a texas-Penn State matchup since 1969 when the Longhorns won the national championship.

Ohio State was undefeated and apparently headed for a second consecutive national championship in 1969. Since it had been to the Rose Bowl the year before, the Buckeyes' season would have ended in Columbus, Ohio, on their final game with Michigan.

Penn State, again undefeated but ranked No. 4 in the nation behind undefeated Arkansas and Texas, turned down a Cotton Bowl bid where it would have faced the winner of the Texas-Arkansas contest and chose to go to the more lucrative Orange Bowl.

But Michigan pulled the upset of the year by defeating Ohio State a few days later, vaulting Texas into the No. 1 position. Texas then defeated Arkansas 15-14 for the Cotton Bowl bid.

Nittany Lion Coach Joe Paterno said his team was as good as Texas' and that Penn State deserved the national championship as much as the Longhorns.

Penn State, however, never got the chance to prove it. While the Nittany Lions were beating Missouri in the Orange Bowl, Texas downed Notre Dame 21-17.

Both Penn State and Texas ended the season the only undefeated teams in the nation but the Longhorns had the national championship.

Kentucky Romps Past Virginia

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Artis Gilmore's offensive talents were a big question mark when the Kentucky Colonels drafted the seven-footer from Jacksonville last season. But the Virginia Squires aren't asking any questions now.

Gilmore, whom the Colonels feel is a couple of years away from his offensive potential, looked like he found it Wednesday night as he hit for 31 points and added a club record 30 rebounds as the Colonels downed Virginia 117-112. The victory put Kentucky a half-game ahead of the Squires in the American Basketball Association Eastern race.

In other ABA action, Utah nipped Indiana 113-11, Carolina beat Denver 113-101 and Pittsburgh edged New York 122121.

Zelmo Beaty converted two foul shots with eight seconds left to lift Utah past Indiana and give the Stars a 1 1-2 game lead in the Western Division. Beaty and Willie Wise also blocked two shots by Roger Brown in the closing seconds to preserve the victory.

Beaty and Jimmy Jones had 23 points each for Utah while Rick Mount led Indiana with 30.

Rookies Jim McDaniels and Ted McClain teammed for 46 points to lead the Cougars over Denver. McDaniels had 27 and McClain came off the bench to score 19.

John Brisker scored 14 points in the last two minutes, including a pair of three-point field goals, as Pittsburgh beat the Nets.

BASKETBALL

Color Novato's Cagers Green

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Third in a series on Marin County Athletic League basketball prospects.)

Novato's school colors are black and gold, but you can color the basketball team green.

Only one starter will be returning from the team that finished fourth in Marin County Athletic League last year with a 6-8 league record. That starter is a good one to build a team around, however — second-team all-conference forward Marty Moroski.

"We'll have to get some mileage out of the guys up from the junior varsity if we're going to have a successful season," said coach Jim Carimica.

"We're really looking forward to a good year from Moroski," he went on. "Marty broke his wrist about halfway through last season, but was still on the all-league team."

The only other senior on the team is 5-7 guard Howard High, a reserve last season but a vastly improved player this year, according to Carimica.

Seven former J.V.s plus one good sophomore will be competing for the remaining three spots in the starting lineup. Included among them is center Warren Clark, who at 6-8 could be a dominant player in the MCAL if he can put it all together.

Other candidates include 6-3 forward Greg Gilliam, 6-0 forward-guard Stan Conte, 5-11 guards Joe Powell, Joe Robinson and Dan Del Rose and 5-8 guard Tom Conklin.

The sophomore is Willie Barnes, who stands 6-4 and can play either forward or center.

"We'll take the five best players —the five who want to play the most," said Carimica. "We should have adequate height, but we won't be overwhelming."

Novato figures to have the usual problem that inexperienced teams face — occasional spurts of fine basketball mingled with some mistake-ridden stretches.

"We will concentrate on defense this year," said Carimica. "Offensively, we'll have a disciplined offense. We'll fast break if we can, but our overall strategy will vary with the opponent and the personnel."

Novato opens its season next Wednesday at Vallejo, and begins MCAL play Jan. 7 at home against Marin Catholic.

The schedule:

THE SKI SCENE

Bear Valley Adds Tennis Program

By CHARLIE COANE

Grab your skis, boots and poles — and tennis gear — and head for Bear Valley, because after a day of skiing you can quickly change from ski clothes to tennis togs and bat the little round ball around for a couple of quick sets.

Sound crazy? "Not so," says the Mother Lode's resort vice president, Chuk Dwight. "We've had a lot of interest in tennis, and this year we've hired Barry MacKay of Ross as our teaching pro during the ski season. He'll operate in our newly built 'bubble' with a court inside. This has been very popular at Aspen and other places and we expect many participants".

The court goes for $10 per hour and my quick mathematical calculation figures that to $2.50 per person for a doubles set-up. So ski by day and tennis by night — but be in pretty good shape.

Bear has also doubled the number of available places to stay through their central reservations. And those staying at the Lodge or in the condominiums have free access to the newly built recreation building containing a swimming pool, sauna bath, whirlpool and game room.

Now let's see. Up in the morning. Ski all day. A quick whirlpool to loosen up. A couple of sets of tennis. A few laps in the pool and about 30 minutes in the sauna. Dinner, and then a few spirited rounds of table tennis in the game room. To bed? Oh no you don't. Top name entertainers from the Bay Area will also be there.

On the "slopes" side of the situation, Peter Brinkman returns to the California scene from Colorado to head the ski school. The "Graduated Length Method" will be stressed this season.

Lifts and runs will be about the same as last season with some grooming having been accomplished during the summer. Daily adult rates go to $8, but Bear will open and close its lifts 30 minutes earlier and later respectively. Ski touring, which seems to become more and more popular, is also available.

BASKETBALL

Color Novato's Cagers Green

By LEW CODDINGTON

(Third in a series on Marin County Athletic League basketball prospects.)

Novato's school colors are black and gold, but you can color the basketball team green.

Only one starter will be returning from the team that finished fourth in Marin County Athletic League last year with a 6-8 league record. That starter is a good one to build a team around, however — second-team all-conference forward Marty Moroski.

"We'll have to get some mileage out of the guys up from the junior varsity if we're going to have a successful season," said coach Jim Carimica.

"We're really looking forward to a good year from Moroski," he went on. "Marty broke his wrist about halfway through last season, but was still on the all-league team."

The only other senior on the team is 5-7 guard Howard High, a reserve last season but a vastly improved player this year, according to Carimica.

Seven former J.V.s plus one good sophomore will be competing for the remaining three spots in the starting lineup. Included among them is center Warren Clark, who at 6-8 could be a dominant player in the MCAL if he can put it all together.

Other candidates include 6-3 forward Greg Gilliam, 6-0 forward-guard Stan Conte, 5-11 guards Joe Powell, Joe Robinson and Dan Del Rose and 5-8 guard Tom Conklin.

The sophomore is Willie Barnes, who stands 6-4 and can play either forward or center.

"We'll take the five best players —the five who want to play the most," said Carimica. "We should have adequate height, but we won't be overwhelming."

Novato figures to have the usual problem that inexperienced teams face — occasional spurts of fine basketball mingled with some mistake-ridden stretches.

"We will concentrate on defense this year," said Carimica. "Offensively, we'll have a disciplined offense. We'll fast break if we can, but our overall strategy will vary with the opponent and the personnel."

Novato opens its season next Wednesday at Vallejo, and begins MCAL play Jan. 7 at home against Marin Catholic.

The schedule:

THE SKI SCENE

Bear Valley Adds Tennis Program

By CHARLIE COANE

Grab your skis, boots and poles — and tennis gear — and head for Bear Valley, because after a day of skiing you can quickly change from ski clothes to tennis togs and bat the little round ball around for a couple of quick sets.

Sound crazy? "Not so," says the Mother Lode's resort vice president, Chuk Dwight. "We've had a lot of interest in tennis, and this year we've hired Barry MacKay of Ross as our teaching pro during the ski season. He'll operate in our newly built 'bubble' with a court inside. This has been very popular at Aspen and other places and we expect many participants".

The court goes for $10 per hour and my quick mathematical calculation figures that to $2.50 per person for a doubles set-up. So ski by day and tennis by night — but be in pretty good shape.

Bear has also doubled the number of available places to stay through their central reservations. And those staying at the Lodge or in the condominiums have free access to the newly built recreation building containing a swimming pool, sauna bath, whirlpool and game room.

Now let's see. Up in the morning. Ski all day. A quick whirlpool to loosen up. A couple of sets of tennis. A few laps in the pool and about 30 minutes in the sauna. Dinner, and then a few spirited rounds of table tennis in the game room. To bed? Oh no you don't. Top name entertainers from the Bay Area will also be there.

On the "slopes" side of the situation, Peter Brinkman returns to the California scene from Colorado to head the ski school. The "Graduated Length Method" will be stressed this season.

Lifts and runs will be about the same as last season with some grooming having been accomplished during the summer. Daily adult rates go to $8, but Bear will open and close its lifts 30 minutes earlier and later respectively. Ski touring, which seems to become more and more popular, is also available.

Statistic Honors Go To San Rafael

San Rafael and Novato high schools tied for the Marin County Athletic League football championship, but if you were to award the title on the basis of statistics, it would go to San Rafael.

The Bulldogs led the league with 2,004 total yards in six league games, more than doubling their opponents' total of an even 1,000. Novato gained 1,780 and surrendered 1,281.

Unanimous all-league selection Scott Duncan of San Rafael led the league in rushing, finishing well ahead of rapidly-developing Mike Connor of Redwood. Connor was the top scorer.

Terra Linda's Kevin Donohoe regained the passing lead from Marty Moroski of Novato, based on total yardage, but Moroski led in completion percentage and was the all-league choice.

John Buckley of Terra Linda, overlooked by the all-star pickers (MCAL coaches) on offense, led the league in receptions and yardage.

San Rafael based its offensive supremacy on a bruising ground attack that netted 1,681 yards, more than 600 ahead of runner-up Redwood. Bulldogs were last in passing (although quarterback Dirk Gansloser was effective when he threw) but still cracked the magic 2,000-yard barrier.

San Rafael's dominance is illustrated by the fact that three Bulldog rushers finished in the top 10. Duncan was first with 664 yards in 95 carries, Mark Farrar third with 447 in 72 tries, and Jimmy Grigg tenth with 159 in 28 rushes. Grigg wasn't even a starter.

Connor, only a junior at Redwood, scored a league record five touchdowns Saturday to finish the season with 15 T.D.s for 90 points, beating Duncan be three scores. Connor rushed for 190 yards to overtake Farrar by 50 yards for the second-place spot. With 497 yards in 48 carries, the halfback is the only MCAL ball-carrier to average more than 10 yards a try, 10.4.

Leo Magers, who had been second and creeping up on Duncan for three weeks, fell back to fourth at 442 yards.

Donohoe of Terra Linda was the only MCAL passer to throw for more than 1,000 yards, finishing the season with 1,010 on 67 completions in 157 tires. He led in attempts, completions and yardage.

Moroski, who threw more sparingly, hit 54 of 104 for 906 yards, and was the only regular passer to complete more than 50 percent of his tries, 50.9.

Donohoe's favorite target at Terra Linda was Buckley, who finished with 22 receptions. He was three catches ahead of Greg Biber of Tamalpais and four ahead of Marty Larson of San Marin.

The reception yardage battle was a close one. Buckley had 354 yards, Larson 347, Biber 344 and Joe Powell of Novato 334. Powell averaged an incredible 30.3 yards a catch.

Connor and Magers were the only players to finish in the top 10 in both rushing and receiving. A converted flanker, Connor tied for eighth as a pass-catcher with 10 grabs. Magers deadlocked for 10th with nine.

Terra Linda was the total defense leader and the only team to surrender less than a thousand yards. The Trojans gave up 933, and also led in pass defense with only 358.

San Rafael, the best running team, was the best against the run, yielding only 527 yards. Apparently the ground game is well understood at San Rafael.

Top passing team was Terra Linda, because of Donohoe. Novato was second in over-all offense and presented the best balance with 828 yards on the ground and 852 through the air.

Chuvalo Defeats 'Big Cat'

HOUSTON (UPI)—Brawling, bloody George Chuvalo, the Canadian heavyweight champion, scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Cleveland "Big Cat" Williams Wednesday night in a preliminary to the Muhammad Ali-Buster Mathis fight in the Astrodome.

Chuvalo, 227, had Williams in trouble several times but never could put the 38-year-old Houston product on the floor. Williams, 229 1-2, 10-round Chuvalo under the right eye in the first round and across the left side of his nose in the second round.

But despite opening those cuts that bled throughout the fight, Williams was unable to mar Chuvalo's unusual record of never having been knocked down in his 84-fight professional career.

Referee Earl Keel scored it 98-93 judge Ernie Taylor 97-94, judge Jimmy Webb 98-93. All for Chuvalo. UPI scored it 97-95 for Chuvalo.

Chuvalo was penalized two points in the eighth round for a low blow, one of many he landed throughout the fight and especially during the last five rounds.

Williams doubled over with pain after the blow in the eighth and Keel stopped the fight to give him a one-minute rest period to recuperate.

Williams never connected with his left hook that had accounted for the majority of the 56 knockouts in his long career, tops among active heavyweights.

Williams has won 75, lost 12 and had one draw. Chuvalo, 34, has a 66-16-2 record, including 55 by knockouts.

Irish Vote 'No' To Bowls

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Members of the Notre Dame football team have voted by a "wide margin" not to participate in any post-season bowl games.

A source close to the Irish said Wednesday night the team — 8-1 on the season and ranked No. 7 nationally — would pass up any post season offers.

Coach Ara Parseghian was not immediately available for comment, but the source said the team's decision is expected to be made public today.

There has been speculation that the Irish probably blew any chance of getting a post season invite to the major bowls — Orange, Cotton or Sugar — when they dropped their only game of the season to Southern California.

McPhails Triumphs In Rec Basketball

McPhails downed Golden Gate Trotters, 39-25, last night behind the 20-point output of Vince Rosebrock in San Rafael Parks and Recreation adult basketball play.

Buresh, Vallarino, Costamagna and Claxon whipped Motorcycles Unlimited, 49-37. Roy Wolford scored 18 points for the winners and Joe Smith had 12 for the cyclists.

Carty, who has a seven-year major league batting average of .322, is scheduled to leave the hospital today but will remain in Atlanta until stitches are removed in a week or 10 days. Then he will return to his home in the Dominican Republic to start a final rehabilitation program in preparation for the 1972 season.

Gerry Glen of New York maintained his lead in the National Invitational Three-Cushion Billiards Tournament Wednesday with a 7-1 record.

Statistic Honors Go To San Rafael

San Rafael and Novato high schools tied for the Marin County Athletic League football championship, but if you were to award the title on the basis of statistics, it would go to San Rafael.

The Bulldogs led the league with 2,004 total yards in six league games, more than doubling their opponents' total of an even 1,000. Novato gained 1,780 and surrendered 1,281.

Unanimous all-league selection Scott Duncan of San Rafael led the league in rushing, finishing well ahead of rapidly-developing Mike Connor of Redwood. Connor was the top scorer.

Terra Linda's Kevin Donohoe regained the passing lead from Marty Moroski of Novato, based on total yardage, but Moroski led in completion percentage and was the all-league choice.

John Buckley of Terra Linda, overlooked by the all-star pickers (MCAL coaches) on offense, led the league in receptions and yardage.

San Rafael based its offensive supremacy on a bruising ground attack that netted 1,681 yards, more than 600 ahead of runner-up Redwood. Bulldogs were last in passing (although quarterback Dirk Gansloser was effective when he threw) but still cracked the magic 2,000-yard barrier.

San Rafael's dominance is illustrated by the fact that three Bulldog rushers finished in the top 10. Duncan was first with 664 yards in 95 carries, Mark Farrar third with 447 in 72 tries, and Jimmy Grigg tenth with 159 in 28 rushes. Grigg wasn't even a starter.

Connor, only a junior at Redwood, scored a league record five touchdowns Saturday to finish the season with 15 T.D.s for 90 points, beating Duncan be three scores. Connor rushed for 190 yards to overtake Farrar by 50 yards for the second-place spot. With 497 yards in 48 carries, the halfback is the only MCAL ball-carrier to average more than 10 yards a try, 10.4.

Leo Magers, who had been second and creeping up on Duncan for three weeks, fell back to fourth at 442 yards.

Donohoe of Terra Linda was the only MCAL passer to throw for more than 1,000 yards, finishing the season with 1,010 on 67 completions in 157 tires. He led in attempts, completions and yardage.

Moroski, who threw more sparingly, hit 54 of 104 for 906 yards, and was the only regular passer to complete more than 50 percent of his tries, 50.9.

Donohoe's favorite target at Terra Linda was Buckley, who finished with 22 receptions. He was three catches ahead of Greg Biber of Tamalpais and four ahead of Marty Larson of San Marin.

The reception yardage battle was a close one. Buckley had 354 yards, Larson 347, Biber 344 and Joe Powell of Novato 334. Powell averaged an incredible 30.3 yards a catch.

Connor and Magers were the only players to finish in the top 10 in both rushing and receiving. A converted flanker, Connor tied for eighth as a pass-catcher with 10 grabs. Magers deadlocked for 10th with nine.

Terra Linda was the total defense leader and the only team to surrender less than a thousand yards. The Trojans gave up 933, and also led in pass defense with only 358.

San Rafael, the best running team, was the best against the run, yielding only 527 yards. Apparently the ground game is well understood at San Rafael.

Top passing team was Terra Linda, because of Donohoe. Novato was second in over-all offense and presented the best balance with 828 yards on the ground and 852 through the air.

Chuvalo Defeats 'Big Cat'

HOUSTON (UPI)—Brawling, bloody George Chuvalo, the Canadian heavyweight champion, scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Cleveland "Big Cat" Williams Wednesday night in a preliminary to the Muhammad Ali-Buster Mathis fight in the Astrodome.

Chuvalo, 227, had Williams in trouble several times but never could put the 38-year-old Houston product on the floor. Williams, 229 1-2, 10-round Chuvalo under the right eye in the first round and across the left side of his nose in the second round.

But despite opening those cuts that bled throughout the fight, Williams was unable to mar Chuvalo's unusual record of never having been knocked down in his 84-fight professional career.

Referee Earl Keel scored it 98-93 judge Ernie Taylor 97-94, judge Jimmy Webb 98-93. All for Chuvalo. UPI scored it 97-95 for Chuvalo.

Chuvalo was penalized two points in the eighth round for a low blow, one of many he landed throughout the fight and especially during the last five rounds.

Williams doubled over with pain after the blow in the eighth and Keel stopped the fight to give him a one-minute rest period to recuperate.

Williams never connected with his left hook that had accounted for the majority of the 56 knockouts in his long career, tops among active heavyweights.

Williams has won 75, lost 12 and had one draw. Chuvalo, 34, has a 66-16-2 record, including 55 by knockouts.

Irish Vote 'No' To Bowls

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Members of the Notre Dame football team have voted by a "wide margin" not to participate in any post-season bowl games.

A source close to the Irish said Wednesday night the team — 8-1 on the season and ranked No. 7 nationally — would pass up any post season offers.

Coach Ara Parseghian was not immediately available for comment, but the source said the team's decision is expected to be made public today.

There has been speculation that the Irish probably blew any chance of getting a post season invite to the major bowls — Orange, Cotton or Sugar — when they dropped their only game of the season to Southern California.

McPhails Triumphs In Rec Basketball

McPhails downed Golden Gate Trotters, 39-25, last night behind the 20-point output of Vince Rosebrock in San Rafael Parks and Recreation adult basketball play.

Buresh, Vallarino, Costamagna and Claxon whipped Motorcycles Unlimited, 49-37. Roy Wolford scored 18 points for the winners and Joe Smith had 12 for the cyclists.

Baseball

ATLANTA — Doctors removed a pin from Atlanta Braves batting star Rico Carty's injured left leg Wednesday and reported X-rays of the leg "look good."

Carty, who led the majors in hitting in 1969 with a .366 average, missed all of the 1970 season after breaking his leg last Dec. 11 in a collision during a game in the Dominican Republic.

Carty, who has a seven-year major league batting average of .322, is scheduled to leave the hospital today but will remain in Atlanta until stitches are removed in a week or 10 days. Then he will return to his home in the Dominican Republic to start a final rehabilitation program in preparation for the 1972 season.

Billiards

Gerry Glen of New York maintained his lead in the National Invitational Three-Cushion Billiards Tournament Wednesday with a 7-1 record.

Chet Krizek of Milwaukee remained in second place in the complete round robin tourney with a 6-1 record and Walt Jones of St. Paul, Minn. moved into third place with a 5-3 record.

The tournament is scheduled to finish today.

Auto Racing

ONTARIO — The second annual National Hot Rod Association Super Nationals, carrying a guaranteed purse and accessory monies of $225,000, gets under way at Ontario Motor Speedway tomorrow.

Rick Ramsey, 26, Marina Del Rey, Calif., will be back to defend his top fuel eliminator championship.

Drivers will compete for money in eight divisions —top fuel, top gas, funny car, pro stock, competition, modified, super stock and stock eliminator — in the three-day meet.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

How To Put Funds Away Each Month

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have no large amount to invest but would like to put some money away each month. Would U.S. savings bonds be sensible for me? I am a single woman earning my own way and I cannot afford to risk my capital. — R.S.

A. Savings bonds are entirely appropriate for a person in your circumstances. When held to maturity — five years and 10 months — Series E bonds yield 5½ per cent and each bond has an automatic 10-year extension period at a flat 5½ per cent per annum, which is guaranteed until the bonds enter another extension period, if one is granted. New bonds may also be extended three times as older issues to a 40-year life.

In your case, the small initial cash outlay is of prime importance. Other Government bonds, notes and bills are sold in minimums of $1,000, $5,000 or $10,000. Not only is the small capital outlay to your advantage, but you will not be giving up much by way of interest. The most recent Treasury debt offerings carry interest rates of 4.2 per cent to 6.1 per cent depending on the term of the particular issue.

The appeal of savings bonds has increased monthly, reflecting decreasing interest rates available through other channles. In September holdings of Series E and Freedom shares reached an all-time high at a value of $54 billion.

Q. I bought Leadville Lead (OTC) at 26⅝ early last year. Can you advise me? — C.C.

A. Now operating as Leadville Corp., company has successfully defeated a dissident stockholder group seeking to gain control. Stockholder dissatisfaction is understandable since ore production has yet to begin. Promotional exploration and development costs, however, totaled $4.4 million by the 1970 year end. Property is held in Colorado, where a refining plant is scheduled to be built. Perhaps management, recently spurred by the shareholders progress committee, will now begin to make some progress.

Midday Stocks Are Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) —Stocks were higher in moderate trading at midday today, but strength was not widespread as investors waited for the uncertainty about phase two to clear.

The Dow Jones industrial average was ahead more than 2 points at 824.55, while Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a gain of 0.34 at 93.19. Advances topped declines by 200 issues.

Electronics and motors ranged to about a point higher. Airlines generally tacked on fractions in the wake of encouraging earnings statements by some of the air carriers.

Stocks of mortgage investment companies, 923:34, came under marked pressure. A spokesman for one of the firms reportedly has stated that the industry may be in for a slowdown in earnings.

Prices were slightly higher in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange.

Union American Mortgage warrants, the most active Amex issue, was off more than 2 on over 50,000 shares.

Net Sales Rise

EL MONTE (BW) — Computer Equipment Corp. has reported that during the first nine months of 1971 net sales from continuing operations rose approximately 5 per cent over the like period in 1971: $16,114,000 compared to $15,392,000.

Leslie Salt May Sell To C and H, Mobil

NEWARK (UPI)—Leslie Salt Co. announced Wednesday it would enter negotiations to sell most of its assets to the California and Hawaiian Sugar Co. and Mobil Oil Estates, Ltd.

The negotiations, authorized by the board of directors, would involve the sale of salt, chemical and food divisions, plus extensive land holdings, for approximately $20 million.

Leslie is the leading salt producer in the Far West and one of California's major landowners, with 50,659 acres of property in the San Francisco Bay Area.

It also has extensive interests in the food industry and land development in northern California and an overseas salt plant at Port Holland, in western Australia.

C and H, a San Francisco-based cane sugar refining and marketing company and one of the nation's major sugar suppliers, has said it plans to operate Leslie as a separate entity with substantially the same personnel.

Negotiations with Mobil Oil Estates, a subsidiary of the Mobil Oil Corp., will be separate, and will involve all of Leslie's salt-producing lands in the San Francisco Bay Area as well as the proposed Redwood Shores community project at Redwood City, Calif., and adjoining lands known as Bair Island.

The negotiations contemplate that C and H would have use of the San Francisco Bay Area salt ponds under agreements with Mobil Oil Estates, the salt company said.

Copenhagen means "merchant's haven."

Lucky Stores Hike 3rd Quarter Earning

SAN LEANDRO (BW) — Lucky Stores earnings for the third quarter ended Oct. 31 were 5 per cent over earnings for the third quarter of 1970, on an 11 per cent increase in sales.

Earnings amounted to $6,004,000, compared to $5,740,000 in the same quarter of 1970. This is equivalent to 22 cents per common share, after preferred dividends, on the average number of common shares outstanding during the quarter. It compares to 22 cents per common share in the third quarter of 1970 (after adjustment for a 3 per cent stock dividend and a 100 per cent stock distribution).

Royal Inns Report

SAN DIEGO (BW) — Royal Inns of America Inc. has reported third quarter net income of $435,233, or 26 cents per share on 1,717,904 shares outstanding, adjusted for a 5 per cent stock dividend paid in 1970.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

How To Put Funds Away Each Month

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have no large amount to invest but would like to put some money away each month. Would U.S. savings bonds be sensible for me? I am a single woman earning my own way and I cannot afford to risk my capital. — R.S.

A. Savings bonds are entirely appropriate for a person in your circumstances. When held to maturity — five years and 10 months — Series E bonds yield 5½ per cent and each bond has an automatic 10-year extension period at a flat 5½ per cent per annum, which is guaranteed until the bonds enter another extension period, if one is granted. New bonds may also be extended three times as older issues to a 40-year life.

In your case, the small initial cash outlay is of prime importance. Other Government bonds, notes and bills are sold in minimums of $1,000, $5,000 or $10,000. Not only is the small capital outlay to your advantage, but you will not be giving up much by way of interest. The most recent Treasury debt offerings carry interest rates of 4.2 per cent to 6.1 per cent depending on the term of the particular issue.

The appeal of savings bonds has increased monthly, reflecting decreasing interest rates available through other channles. In September holdings of Series E and Freedom shares reached an all-time high at a value of $54 billion.

Q. I bought Leadville Lead (OTC) at 26⅝ early last year. Can you advise me? — C.C.

A. Now operating as Leadville Corp., company has successfully defeated a dissident stockholder group seeking to gain control. Stockholder dissatisfaction is understandable since ore production has yet to begin. Promotional exploration and development costs, however, totaled $4.4 million by the 1970 year end. Property is held in Colorado, where a refining plant is scheduled to be built. Perhaps management, recently spurred by the shareholders progress committee, will now begin to make some progress.

Midday Stocks Are Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) —Stocks were higher in moderate trading at midday today, but strength was not widespread as investors waited for the uncertainty about phase two to clear.

The Dow Jones industrial average was ahead more than 2 points at 824.55, while Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a gain of 0.34 at 93.19. Advances topped declines by 200 issues.

Electronics and motors ranged to about a point higher. Airlines generally tacked on fractions in the wake of encouraging earnings statements by some of the air carriers.

Stocks of mortgage investment companies, 923:34, came under marked pressure. A spokesman for one of the firms reportedly has stated that the industry may be in for a slowdown in earnings.

Prices were slightly higher in moderate turnover on the American Stock Exchange.

Union American Mortgage warrants, the most active Amex issue, was off more than 2 on over 50,000 shares.

Net Sales Rise

EL MONTE (BW) — Computer Equipment Corp. has reported tnat during the first nine months of 1971 net sales from continuing operations rose approximately 5 per cent over the like period in 1971: $16,114,000 compared to $15,392,000.

Leslie Salt May Sell To C and H, Mobil

NEWARK (UPI)—Leslie Salt Co. announced Wednesday it would enter negotiations to sell most of its assets to the California and Hawaiian Sugar Co. and Mobil Oil Estates, Ltd.

The negotiations, authorized by the board of directors, would involve the sale of salt, chemical and food divisions, plus extensive land holdings, for approximately $20 million.

Leslie is the leading salt producer in the Far West and one of California's major landowners, with 50,659 acres of property in the San Francisco Bay Area.

It also has extensive interests in the food industry and land development in northern California and an overseas salt plant at Port Holland, in western Australia.

C and H, a San Francisco-based cane sugar refining and marketing company and one of the nation's major sugar suppliers, has said it plans to operate Leslie as a separate entity with substantially the same personnel.

Negotiations with Mobil Oil Estates, a subsidiary of the Mobil Oil Corp., will be separate, and will involve all of Leslie's salt-producing lands in the San Francisco Bay Area as well as the proposed Redwood Shores community project at Redwood City, Calif., and adjoining lands known as Bair Island.

The negotiations contemplate that C and H would have use of the San Francisco Bay Area salt ponds under agreements with Mobil Oil Estates, the salt company said.

Copenhagen means "merchant's haven."

SAN LEANDRO (BW) — Lucky Stores earnings for the third quarter ended Oct. 31 were 5 per cent over earnings for the third quarter of 1970, on an 11 per cent increase in sales.

More And More Pets; Same Old Trouble

Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. has something called its family economics bureau, which makes surveys. It made a survey of pets in the United States, and has just come out with a report that they outnumber us homo sapiens by three to one.

This is not quiet so bad as it sounds. Most of these 600 million pets (the bureau's estimate) are fish, swimming around in home aquariums. Some people wouldn't call them pets at all.

There are about 20 million birds chirping, singing or sulking in little cages in people's homes, according to the survey. Some of these are not just canaries or lovebirds. Hawks, owls and vultures "are often found in city apartments," the insurance company's bureau declares.

OWLS MIGHT BE SOME annoyance to dwellers in neighboring apartments. But the most difficulty over pets arises from dogs. The bureau says more than 45 per cent of U.S. families own a dog, a cat, or both. "Estimates of the dog population vary from 26 to 33 million," it says. "Due to the large numbers of stray cats that refuse to stand still and be counted, the feline population is estimated to be anywhere from 10 to 30 million."

The suburbs — which get blamed for all sorts of things these days, from the troubles of the "core cities" to spreading environmental pollution — get the blame for the oversupply of pets, too. Says Northwestern National Life:

"One of the major reasons for the pet explosion is the continuing growth of suburbs whose residents have the time, space and income to devote to pets."

Not surprisingly, the insurance company's bureau also reports; "California, the most transient state, is also the center of the greatest pet activity. California has more pets and pet clubs, more pet shops, more kennels and catteries than all the other western states put together."

ALL OF THIS EXPLAINS why leash law disputes continue to rage, year after year, before the city councils of most cities in Marin.

The ruckus is almost entirely over dogs. Cats are inoffensive creatures and very neat, leaving no mess where it's visible — if they can get outside to bury it. They do yowl on the back fence, but seldom do city councils hear complaints about that.

The complaints come because of dogs that (1) bite people, and (2) make messes on people's property.

The city councils try enacting tougher leash laws, but these fall down in enforcement. The dispute goes 'round and 'round, while the number of pets increases and neighborhood feuds arise between pro-dog and anti-dog factions.

MUCH OF THE TROUBLE would vanish if people who keep dogs would fence them in. None of the cities, however, seems to have ever considered an ordinance requiring that anyone who keeps a dog must have a yard for it completely surrounded by an eight-foot wire fence.

It might work — except that now and then somebody would leave the gate open.

The Noisy Deer

Marin's deer will probably never add much to the county's increasing level of noise pollution. But do not imagine that they pass silently through the night.

These lovely creatures move through the underbrush slowly, carefully, gracefully — but with all the crunching, crackling and popping of a baby elephant playing tag in the shrubs.

They are not grazers and are not interested in grasses, but are browsers, fond of bushes and the small stuff toward the ends of tree branches. Needless to say, they do not nibble at this formidable foliage. Rather, they whack it away in noisy chomps that can be heard a hundred feet away on a quiet night.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

'One Man, One Vote' Gives Only Cities Representation

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (Capitol) — One of the unfortunate results of having a city-dominated state legislature (and this was predicted when the "one-man, one vote" ukase of the Supreme Court went into effect) is the fact the country people have nothing to say about the imposition of new taxes.

The case in point is the application by the legislature of the sales tax to gasoline, for the express purpose of raising funds for rapid transit purposes.

ONLY THE TWO metropolitan areas of the state, Los Angeles, and San Francisco, are vitally interested in raising money for rapid transit.

Neither community or even groups of communities, has enough money, and consequently, they are searching the landscape for additional taxes to foot the billion-dollar transit bills.

One of the few items not covered by the state sales tax is gasoline, which was exempted in the beginning for the simple reason it was already taxed almost out of proportion. The funds from the tax were designated exclusively for the construction of highways and a watchful state senate kept it that way until recent years, when inroads started on the gas tax monies for various purposes.

Not being able to raise the gas tax for rapid transit purposes, the legislature took the next best road, and applied the sales tax to gasoline. Governor Reagan signed the bill, and he let the non-urban population in for some double taxation. They have no representation because of the supreme court decision, and a better case of taxation without representation has not been found since the American Revolution.

GRANTED THAT RAPID transit is necessary in urban areas, and granted some state aid should be given to help the programs get started, there would seem to be no logical reason why people in non-urban areas should be forced to pay a tax to assist the city dwellers in getting back and forth to their places of employment.

So the "one man, one vote" concept now is beginning to reward the urban section of the state. When the governor had the temerity to sign the bill into law, he did nothing but impose a grievous tax on a segment of the people which will find no way to benefit from the payment.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Mini-Nations Now Control U.N. Vote

On Nov. 3, Norman Leach wrote in the I-J of a day of rejoicing (admission of Red China to the U.N.) and a day of sadness (expulsion of Nationalist China).

Mr. Leach does not mention that the expulsion of Taiwan has been a foregone conclusion for some years, since the general assembly has come under the voting control of the many small nations formed since World War II (i.e., Niger, Togo, Chad and Dahomey), many of which are heavily aided and indirectly controlled by the U.S.S.R. The U.N. cannot now, and never will, properly function until it is recognized that the mini-nations (with populations far less than many of our states) cannot expect to have equal voting rights with the major nations. Until the U.N. is totally reconstituted with the voting control limited to the major nations, there is no hope that it can be of any great value.

One can only hope that the tragic expulsion of Taiwan would cause the City Council of San Anselmo to reconsider the wisdom of mundialization and to reverse its vote thereon, recognizing that the U.N. General Assembly does not and will not function or vote in the best interests of the United States.

Column On Attorneys Lacking In Logic

Mary Leydecker's column of Nov. 10 regarding attorneys for the middle class is seriously lacking in logic. She claims that the poor get the public defender with a lot of experience and the rich get the famous lawyer. The middle group "is forced to hire lawyers who really can't do much in such cases."

Overlooking the case load of a public defender which may not allow him to take a deep look at his poor client, and disregarding the considerably higher fee that the "famous lawyer" commands by his fame, there is no logical basis for saying that with any other lawyer you "can't do much in such cases." If the case is defensible on its facts, it is equally defensible by any competent lawyer.

The real problem was hinted at by dear Mary. It is the basic problem of an attorney's competence in a particular field of the law. So long as the public assumes that any lawyer can handle any type of case well and so long as lawyers accept cases they are not necessarily qualified to handle, you will have the problem which Mary attributes to the amount of the lawyer's fee. The California State Bar is belatedly moving toward recognition of specialists in certain legal fields. Until attorneys can hold themselves out as proficient in a particular field of law, the general public has no way of knowing the attorney's experience without making specific inquiries as to the type of cases he handles.

Reader Appreciates 'Mythological' Letter

Thanks for printing the Norman Leach mythological letter which lets us have something of a peek into a vacillating mind. It lends an opportunity to attempt to understand how so many people rationalize during this sort of weird phase the United States is hopefully passing through. The fact that we have groups that would overthrow our country's government, or provide sanctuary to individuals who would disobey the laws of the land, and who openly discredit our country and our flag. Or, why we have those dwarfs who would throw garbage on the Olema grave of some man who helped make America great when times were really difficult.

The delineation of myths or stories believed to be told to the poor Mr. Leach by our government is like so much diatribe that I've seen endless columns of. I'm surprised he didn't refer to America as a pack of running dogs.

Legislators Really Record Accomplishment

Hooray for our state legislature! They've really outdone themselves this session and we shouldn't begrudge them the money it's costing us for their prolonged stay in Sacramento this year. They've passed a bill, a most important one — requiring a hunting license to shoot rats, mice, gophers, and moles. This sounds like a far better bill than those proposed which would outlaw the killing of endangered species of animals.

This is about as intelligent as the law passed by Congress a couple of years ago which changed Columbus' birth date for him and the anniversary date of the end of World War I among others. They were crying about air pollution and the amount caused by cars so they passed this bill so there were more three-day weekends for more people to get out in their cars for longer trips and more highway carnage and pollution.

Yes, we surely have some great brains and conscientious people working for us in Sacramento and Washington, trying (?) to solve the problems facing this nation and state.

Equity In Franchise Requires Abolishing Electoral College

(Reprinted from Sacramento Bee)

It is gratifying to see the fight for reforming American presidential elections remains alive in Congress.

The 33 House members who introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the Electoral College and substitute direct, popular election of presidents accurately reflect the sentiment of the majority of Americans, as sounded in survey after survey.

Their action breathes new life in the matter and signals the first such attempt in the 92nd Congress. In 1969 the House by a large margin approved such reform. It was killed in the Senate by a southern-led filibuster last year.

NEVERTHELESS, IT IS a vitally needed change which is inevitable, and opponents, in the end, can succeed only in delaying the reform, not killing it.

The leader of the new reform move is Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., who presented the same irrefutable argument offered in 1969 which is gathering strength with the American electorate. The point is: The present archaic Electoral College system in effect wipes out the vote of a person in any state where the plurality of voters favored a different candidate.

Said Mikva: "People vote for the President, not states. Whether an American lives in Delaware or Mississippi or Illinois, he is still an American and his vote should count as much as any other American's. It is his president that is being elected, not the president of Delaware or Mississippi or Illinois."

THE ISSUE OBVIOUSLY will have to be argued over and over. The importance of giving the people a direct voting say in their choice of president warrants battling for it without letup.

The present system, among other defects, gives undue influence to the larger states. The smallest plurality for a particular candidate can swing the large state's entire bloc of electoral votes to that candidate, although conceivably his opponent's winning margin in a number of smaller states could give the opponent a larger total of the popular vote.

Equity of the franchise demands abolishment of the Electoral College and the direct, popular election of presidents. The House members who are keeping the issue alive deserve the support and gratitude of all Americans.

One Fantasy About China Being Replaced With Another

NEW YORK — The American temperament, as innumerable foreign observers from De Tocqueville on have noted, runs to extremes. China is a perfect example. For 20 years, the most-populous nation in the world was taboo and specialists who insisted on pointing out the harsher realities were banished to outer darkness.

Now the entrace of the Chinese delegates into the United Nations has been treated, in the news media at least, as though it marked a miraculous transformation. Hosannas will sound in the company of nations and the lion will lie down with the lamb.

In their carefully self-contained performance the Chinese showed none of the elation of their principal sponsors. Self-possessed, reserved — the cliche word is inscrutable — they accepted their place as recognition long overdue. These skilled professionals with long experience in foreign affairs, Chiao Kuan-Hua, a deputy foreign minister, and Huang Hua, who has been ambassador to Canada, will never dance in the aisles.

MAKE NO MISTAKE, however, that the grace of admission to the U.N. will soften their implacable hostility to the "imperialists," foremost among them being the United States. They will conduct themselves with propriety. But they will pursue zealously their endeavors with the Arab, African and certain Latin-American states that must, in the Maoist concept, be "liberated."

The disastrous policy from 1940 on was rooted in the myth of the other China. The missionaries had fostered the belief that the Chinese were on the way to becoming a Christian people. Christian advocates contended that Chian Kai-shek's wartime cabinet was the most Christian of any in the world. Add to this Franklin Roosevelt's fixation that China must be a big power.

All this went blindly in the face of facts. At best two to 2½ per cent of the Chinese were at any one time converts. During the Boxer rebellion, Christian missionaries were slaughtered wholesale. As the Communists began to gain power, the naive notion was fostered that they were not Communists at all but agrarian reformers.

WITH THE GRAND illusion of the '30s and '40s — a Christian nation progressing in the democratic tradition of the West — swept away, the signs of a new delusion are visible. That is, China as a great source of trade, tourism and friendly exchanges.

It derives from the same kind of wishful thinking that inflated the other delusion. Hundreds of American businessmen are primed on a sprinter's start for the bonanza of those first trade agreements. Actually in terms of international trade, as widely accepted in the exchange of goods, China offers little that the United States needs or wants. West Germany has long had an energetic and knowledgeable trade mission in China, yet the exchange of goods thus far has been about equivalent to Germany's trade with little Luxembourg.

As for tourism, a recent visitor to Peking — an old China hand who has kept close trading connections over the years — was told by the official responsible for travel that the People's Republic was interested in only three classes of visitors: delegations from friendly countries, long-time friends of Communist China from abroad, and some businessmen. The official bluntly ruled out tourism as a source of hard-currency earnings. That held no interest whatsoever for China.

THAT THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC is now part of the U.N. is a cause for satisfaction. No one except the proponents of Chiang on his island of Taiwan could have wanted it otherwise. To have excluded for so long, largely due to American opposition, a nation of 700 million people will seem to future historians as great a puzzle as China itself.

The old China hand mentioned above presents to his friends a nicely bound book with the title, "What I Know About China." It contains 40 blank pages. That is a bit of modesty which others with far less knowledge might emulate. The very fact that, within so vast a land mass and with so teeming a population, the secret of the present uncertainty has been so well kept is a tribute to the controls and the conditioning so efficiently exercised.

Latin American States Relax Boycott Of Cuba

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Fidel Castro's visit to Chile, his first trip outside Cuba in seven years, is contributing to a belief that Cuba is about to break out of the quarantine imposed upon it in 1964 by the Organization of American States behind the leadership of the United States.

The change, if it comes about, will be less the result of any change on Castro's part than a decline in U.S. influence brought about by a number of factors including mounting nationalism among Latin American nations and a conviction that the United States neither understands nor cares about their problems.

A nose count of nations indicates that at least half the members of the OAS want at least to discuss a possible change in the attitude toward the Castro regime and that some may simply go ahead and re-establish relations with or without OAS approval.

CHILE'S MARXIST President Salvador Allende Gossens scarely had taken office a year ago when he announced diplomatic recognition of Cuba.

Mexico never had broken its Cuban ties.

Eight others have shown themselves in favor of some sort of change. They are Barbados, Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador, Jamaica, Peru, Trinidad and Tobago, and Uruguay.

Costa Rica, Panama and Venezuela have indicated they at least are willing to discuss the issue.

IN THE GENERAL attitude of Cuba's neighbors toward Castro, special significance is attached to his Chile visit.

Between Castro and Allende there are strong ties.

Both are Marxists although they reached high office by different routes; Castro by violent revolution, Allende by the peaceful route via free elections.

Allende had been a frequent visitor to Castro Cuba before his fourth and finally successful bid for the Chilean presidency.

Among other Latin American nations there obviously is an increasingly relaxed attitude toward Castro, based partly on a belief that his attempt to export violent revolution throughout his hemisphere blew itself out with the death of Che Guevara in Bolivia and partly on Moscow's condemnation of violent revolutionary movements in Latin America.

NOTEWORTHY IN ALL THIS has been the attitude of the chief antagonists toward each other.

Washington has replied with a firm negative to speculation that its moves toward improved relations with Communist China presage similar moves toward Cuba. Castro has declared, "We are not seeking conciliation of any kind with Yankee imperialism."

And so long as Cuba is costing the Soviet Union something like a million dollars a day to sustain and so long as the United States is reluctant to take over any such burden, that is probably the way things will remain.

It remains to be seen whether the United States' lowered world posture also includes noninterference as other nations of the hemisphere move to make their own accommodations with Castro.

More And More Pets; Same Old Trouble

Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. has something called its family economics bureau, which makes surveys. It made a survey of pets in the United States, and has just come out with a report that they outnumber us homo sapiens by three to one.

This is not quiet so bad as it sounds. Most of these 600 million pets (the bureau's estimate) are fish, swimming around in home aquariums. Some people wouldn't call them pets at all.

There are about 20 million birds chirping, singing or sulking in little cages in people's homes, according to the survey. Some of these are not just canaries or lovebirds. Hawks, owls and vultures "are often found in city apartments," the insurance company's bureau declares.

OWLS MIGHT BE SOME annoyance to dwellers in neighboring apartments. But the most difficulty over pets arises from dogs. The bureau says more than 45 per cent of U.S. families own a dog, a cat, or both. "Estimates of the dog population vary from 26 to 33 million," it says. "Due to the large numbers of stray cats that refuse to stand still and be counted, the feline population is estimated to be anywhere from 10 to 30 million."

The suburbs — which get blamed for all sorts of things these days, from the troubles of the "core cities" to spreading environmental pollution — get the blame for the oversupply of pets, too. Says Northwestern National Life:

"One of the major reasons for the pet explosion is the continuing growth of suburbs whose residents have the time, space and income to devote to pets."

Not surprisingly, the insurance company's bureau also reports; "California, the most transient state, is also the center of the greatest pet activity. California has more pets and pet clubs, more pet shops, more kennels and catteries than all the other western states put together."

ALL OF THIS EXPLAINS why leash law disputes continue to rage, year after year, before the city councils of most cities in Marin.

The ruckus is almost entirely over dogs. Cats are inoffensive creatures and very neat, leaving no mess where it's visible — if they can get outside to bury it. They do yowl on the back fence, but seldom do city councils hear complaints about that.

The complaints come because of dogs that (1) bite people, and (2) make messes on people's property.

The city councils try enacting tougher leash laws, but these fall down in enforcement. The dispute goes 'round and 'round, while the number of pets increases and neighborhood feuds arise between pro-dog and anti-dog factions.

MUCH OF THE TROUBLE would vanish if people who keep dogs would fence them in. None of the cities, however, seems to have ever considered an ordinance requiring that anyone who keeps a dog must have a yard for it completely surrounded by an eight-foot wire fence.

It might work — except that now and then somebody would leave the gate open.

The Noisy Deer

Marin's deer will probably never add much to the county's increasing level of noise pollution. But do not imagine that they pass silently through the night.

These lovely creatures move through the underbrush slowly, carefully, gracefully — but with all the crunching, crackling and popping of a baby elephant playing tag in the shrubs.

They are not grazers and are not interested in grasses, but are browsers, fond of bushes and the small stuff toward the ends of tree branches. Needless to say, they do not nibble at this formidable foliage. Rather, they whack it away in noisy chomps that can be heard a hundred feet away on a quiet night.

'One Man, One Vote' Gives Only Cities Representation

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (Capitol) — One of the unfortunate results of having a city-dominated state legislature (and this was predicted when the "one-man, one vote" ukase of the Supreme Court went into effect) is the fact the country people have nothing to say about the imposition of new taxes.

The case in point is the application by the legislature of the sales tax to gasoline, for the express purpose of raising funds for rapid transit purposes.

ONLY THE TWO metropolitan areas of the state, Los Angeles, and San Francisco, are vitally interested in raising money for rapid transit.

Neither community or even groups of communities, has enough money, and consequently, they are searching the landscape for additional taxes to foot the billion-dollar transit bills.

One of the few items not covered by the state sales tax is gasoline, which was exempted in the beginning for the simple reason it was already taxed almost out of proportion. The funds from the tax were designated exclusively for the construction of highways and a watchful state senate kept it that way until recent years, when inroads started on the gas tax monies for various purposes.

Not being able to raise the gas tax for rapid transit purposes, the legislature took the next best road, and applied the sales tax to gasoline. Governor Reagan signed the bill, and he let the non-urban population in for some double taxation. They have no representation because of the supreme court decision, and a better case of taxation without representation has not been found since the American Revolution.

GRANTED THAT RAPID transit is necessary in urban areas, and granted some state aid should be given to help the programs get started, there would seem to be no logical reason why people in non-urban areas should be forced to pay a tax to assist the city dwellers in getting back and forth to their places of employment.

So the "one man, one vote" concept now is beginning to reward the urban section of the state. When the governor had the temerity to sign the bill into law, he did nothing but impose a grievous tax on a segment of the people which will find no way to benefit from the payment.

The Tamalpais High School District is casting worried glances at a potentially costly new law signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan on Oct. 22.

Like a hound dog meeting a porcupine, the district knows it is in trouble. The question is how much the encounter will hurt. Local officials had no immediate answer.

The new law, authored by Democratic Assemblyman Leroy F. Greene, chairman of the Assembly Education Committee, requires school districts to pay property taxes on unused school sites.

The bill says the tax will not go into effect until land bought for high schools has lain idle seven years, but this is no solace to the Tam District.

THE DISTRICT has two sites for which it paid more than $225,000 already eligible under the bill, and another site waiting in the wings.

Already past the seven-year limit are a 32-acre site in Marin City purchased in 1962 and a 47-acre plot in Lagunitas obtained in 1964.

A 52-acre site in Tiburon bought for $440,000 in June of 1966 will soon be eligible.

The bill seems to have caught the Tam District by surprise. Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins said he has no idea how much the law could cost the district or what sort of property development would negate the tax.

County Assessor Bert W. Broemmel likewise did not know the potential cost to the district.

THE LAW EMPOWERS the state allocation board to decide that sites have not been used "for the purposes intended within the period specified," according to Don Anderson, executive officer of the board.

The board also has the authority to extend the time limit by finding that a school district will use the property within a reasonable period of time, he said in a letter to school districts throughout the state.

He said the legislation developed from reports to the board that 400 sites valued in excess of $1 million have been bought with state school building funds, but not used.

Unless Tamalpais High School District can show it plans to use its sites within a reasonable length of time, it may soon be receiving a healthy tax bill just like the homeowners that support the district.

Continued Drop In Enrollment Is Seen

Bunker reported to trustees Tuesday night that elementary enrollment has declined from a peak of 6,797 in the 1968-69 school year to 6,378 this year.

He predicted a drop to 5,685 by the fall of 1973, dropping enrollment to about 1,100 below the peak year.

New housing in Novato, mainly townhouses and apartments, "don't produce pupils and there is a declining birth rate," Bunker explained.

"Next year for the first time, the kindergarten enrollment will be less than the twelfth grade enrollment," he said.

As a result of the declining enrollment, the district has "plenty of space" for elementary pupils and "might even need to close" a school in the 1973-74 school year, he said.

In contrast, there will be a slight increase in secondary school enrollment, junior high and high schools, in the next few years, Bunker reported.

The secondary enrollment, now at 5,102, is expected to increase slightly next year and reach 5,360 by 1974-75.

If these enrollment projections hold up, the district will have "ample secondary capacity," although there might be a "tight year" at the junior high level, Bunker said. In that event, portable classrooms could be used temporarily, he said.

The district's two high schools, Novato and San Marin, have the capacity to meet the expected enrollment, Bunker said. Novato High School has a capacity of 1,520 students and San Marin High School a capacity of 1,130.

The district has a site for a fourth junior high school, but under the current "enrollment pattern" it won't be needed, Bunker said.

The total district enrollment this year is 11,470 and it is expected to drop to 11,150 in the 1972-73 school year.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

NEGOTIATING — Appointed Bunker and Asst. Supt. Paul C. Mobley as board representatives in negotiations with the Certificated Employee Council, the teacher bargaining unit.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Nov 30 at Novato High School Lecture hall instead of the scheduled meeting date of Dec. 7, and changed its scheduled Dec. 21 meeting to Dec. 14.

Cleaner Drinks On Laundry Day All Explained By Q And A

WASHINGTON — Thanks to the government, housewives are completely confused about the use of phosphate detergents.

First, they were warned that if they used these detergents they would pollute the waters of the land.

Then, after the women of America decided they would give up phosphates and use other kinds of soaps, they were told by the surgeon general to go back to using phosphate detergents.

BECAUSE OF THIS confusion we have decided on a question-and-answer format to clear up this matter once and for all:

Q. — Why does the government tell you one thing about phosphate detergents, and then a few months later tell you the opposite?

A —Because one department of the government never knows what the other department of the government is doing. The Environmental Protection Agency, which worries about clean water, is against phosphate detergents because they cause algae to grow in the water. The surgeon general is for phosphate detergents because they are safer for children to eat than caustic detergents without phosphates in them.

Q — WHERE DO THE SOAP companies stand?

A — They can go either way, at least in their advertising campaigns. When the first publicity about phosphate detergents made the headlines, all the soap companies announced they had new nonphosphate products that would save America. Now that phosphates have the surgeon general's approval, the soap companies are back to their old products and have decided their new detergents won't save the environment after all.

Q — What is the soap companies' solution to eutrophication, the process which clogs the water with algae?

A — The soap companies' solution is for each community to build new sewage-disposal plants to screen out the phosphates.

Q — Isn't that more complicated than screening out the phosphates before they go into the detergent boxes?

A — Yes, it is, but soap companies don't have to pay for the sewer plants.

Q — WHAT IS THE SURGEON general's argument for housewives going back to phosphate detergents?

A — His argument is that 85 per cent of people using phosphate detergents are not contributing to water pollution. Only 15 per cent of the population, mostly around the Great Lakes, are guilty of eutrophication. Ecology people opposed to phosphates say the surgeon general is all wet. Any time you discharge phosphates into water, they affect the quality of water hundreds of miles away. The lakes of 32 of the 50 states show signs of dying from phosphate-fed algae.

Q — Who is the housewife to believe?

A — That's a good question. The housewife has to make a choice between clothes that are whiter than white or water that is cleaner than clean.

Q —Are you trying to say we must all choose between what we wear and what we drink?

A — Something like that. We have been brought up in this country to believe that clean laundry is next to godliness. But we now have scientific proof that people can live longer drinking clean water than they can wearing clean shirts.

Q — BUT WON'T a housewife be pilloried in her neighborhood if her husband's shirts aren't sparkling white?

A — That is the biggest myth of all. Nobody wears white shirts any more.

Q — If a housewife didn't want to use phosphate detergents and she was afraid of using nonphosphate detergents, could she use laundry soap?

Nader Scores GM On Heaters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader has attacked General Motors' decision not to pay the bill for repairs for defective heaters that may allow carbon monoxide to seep into the passenger compartments of 1961-69 model Corvairs.

The auto firm Tuesday agreed to a government request and said it would warn 760,000 Corvair owners about the possibility heaters in their cars were defective. But GM said it would not pay for repairs unless the car still was under warranty.

Continued Drop In Enrollment Is Seen

Bunker reported to trustees Tuesday night that elementary enrollment has declined from a peak of 6,797 in the 1968-69 school year to 6,378 this year.

He predicted a drop to 5,685 by the fall of 1973, dropping enrollment to about 1,100 below the peak year.

New housing in Novato, mainly townhouses and apartments, "don't produce pupils and there is a declining birth rate," Bunker explained.

"Next year for the first time, the kindergarten enrollment will be less than the twelfth grade enrollment," he said.

As a result of the declining enrollment, the district has "plenty of space" for elementary pupils and "might even need to close" a school in the 1973-74 school year, he said.

In contrast, there will be a slight increase in secondary school enrollment, junior high and high schools, in the next few years, Bunker reported.

The secondary enrollment, now at 5,102, is expected to increase slightly next year and reach 5,360 by 1974-75.

If these enrollment projections hold up, the district will have "ample secondary capacity," although there might be a "tight year" at the junior high level, Bunker said. In that event, portable classrooms could be used temporarily, he said.

The district's two high schools, Novato and San Marin, have the capacity to meet the expected enrollment, Bunker said. Novato High School has a capacity of 1,520 students and San Marin High School a capacity of 1,130.

The district has a site for a fourth junior high school, but under the current "enrollment pattern" it won't be needed, Bunker said.
